PREFACE.

IN the preface to the first volume of the „Bibliotheca Wiffeniana“ published in January 1874, I expressed the hope, that the whole manuscript, which already in 1872 was almost ready for the press, would be published within a couple of years, and now I can only present the second volume to the Public, and it is not the last. Had I been able to devote these nine years wholly to the Spanish Reformers, I should have brought forth something better. But for a long period I only found time occasionally to collect notices and books for this work; and a winter, which I spent in Italy to improve my health, but served to extend my list of materials; in Strassburg my powers were well nigh exhausted in the duties of my professorship, and in concurrently sustaining my periodical, entitled „Romanische Studien.“ But then, whilst I worked cheerfully amidst surrounding students, in the studies connected with my chair, which I had myself organised in the recently founded University, and which flourished to my heart's content, I found my health had become so enfeebled that it was impossible for me to encounter the difficulties incident to my position, and I sought, of the Emperor's grace and favour, my release, which was vouchsafed me in the year 1879.

To promote the Evangelical movement in Spain, it was now less urgent that I should at once prosecute my biographies with their associated bibliography, than that I should publish some Spanish works of the sixteenth century which had never been printed, and that I should bring out again to public notice others, which, formerly much read, had disappeared, but have in the meanwhile been discovered in the recesses of libraries.

The most pressing thing to do amongst works of this class, because the most important, was to print the unpublished works of Juan de Valdés, recently found in the Court-library at Vienna, where they had been kept since the time of the Emperor Maximilian II, and which assuredly had belonged to the choice private library of that benign and enlightened Monarch.

The copy of Valdés' Commentary upon the Gospel of Matthew, which I had made during vacation, whilst still discharging my professorial duties, I handed over to my friends, the brothers Fliedner, in Madrid, for them to print, and the work appeared there in the year 1880. I avail myself of this the first opportunity that presents itself to state that of which I was unaware when I wrote the preface to the Commentary upon Matthew, to wit, that my old friend Doctor Wilkens of Vienna was the person, who, by a letter of a young friend to a colleague of mine, drew my attention to the fact, that this commentary of Valdés was indicated in a recent volume of the catalogue of manuscripts in the Court-library at Vienna, which appeared in the year 1875; see a letter from Wilkens to Betts, bearing date July 1882, which Betts has published in German and English, because it embodied Dr. Wilkens' appreciation of Juan de Valdés as an admirable expositor of Scripture. Betts published his English translation of this commentary in 1882.

In the same year 1880 I finished the first edition of Juan de Valdés' translations of the Psalms from the Hebrew, and a volume of divers papers by the same author which I entitled „Trataditos;“ none of them had ever previously been printed in Spanish; some of them were published by Betts in 1882 in English, in his „XVII Opuscles by Juan de Valdés.“ These two Spanish volumes were printed at the expense of a Spanish friend, who then wished that his name should be suppressed. Now, however, that he has left this world, — for he died a few days after that he had received perfect copies of both the works, — I hold it to be a pious obligation to state, that he is the person mentioned in the LXXVIIth report of the British and Foreign Bible Society 1881, at page 64, characterised thus: „The Society has had no more generous supporter in Spain than Don Fernando de Brunet of St. Sebastian, who has recently died, a devout man and a sincere friend.“ He was the faithful friend, correspondent and coadjutor of Don Luis Usóz i Rio and of Benjamin B. Wiffen for a quarter of a century, and having myself enjoyed Don Fernando's aid and friendship, I lovingly cherish his memory.

From Valdés' introduction to his translation of the Psalms I only extracted certain passages to elucidate the volume just mentioned, reserving the whole to be edited in its entirety with the author's commentary upon the first forty one Psalms, contained in another manuscript, sent to me at Strassburg, which I engaged Don Manuel Carrasco to copy there. The Revd. Fritz Fliedner has begun in 1882 the publication of this work in his „Revista Cristiana“ of Madrid, where it will be completed in the course of 1883.

In the year 1881, another friend paying the copyist and the printer, I issued a new edition of Dr. Constantino Ponce de la Fuente's Sermons commenting upon the first Psalm. The old editions of these sermons had long eluded discovery, having in vain been sought for in many directions.

In my „Romanische Studien“ I had already, in the year 1878, declared my intention of printing Juan de Valdés' first dialogue between Mercury and Charon from a manuscript in the Escorial which had never been utilised; this M. S. presents a form of the work earlier than that which was printed in 1529 and in subsequent editions. It has been published in 1881 in my periodical; with a reprint of the second dialogue between Mercury and Charon added to it.

I then prepared for the press the Italian translation (printed in the XVI. century, and at last discovered) of Valdés' so called Spiritual Milk, as also of my translation of it back into the Spanish, the original being lost; they were printed in 1882, the Spanish twice in Spain, once in America, a German translation in America, and an English version of it by Betts, all in the same year.

There has to be added the separate edition of the Lives of Juan and Alfonso de Valdés, made for Betts in 1882, extracted from my first volume of the Spanish Reformers, with my own emendations. Betts appends this revised biographical sketch to his translations of Valdés' works. In his introduction to the new edition of the Lives is found an English translation of a letter of Juan de Valdés, together with a reprint of the original, the only autograph of his hitherto known, kept in the Episcopal Archives of Frauenburg (from which I had got some letters of Juan's brother Alfonso, see vol. 1. p. 99); its existence was intimated to me by Professor Waltz of Dorpat, who placed his copy at my disposition, whereupon it was printed in Comba's „Rivista Cristiana“ in Florence, 1882.

This done, I was at liberty to devote myself to the continuation of the Bibliotheca Wiffeniana.

Wiffen had title-copies or notices, more or less defined, which corresponded with the following of my present numbers: 178—181. 186. 187. 190. 191. 193. 201. 205—210. 212. 213. 218—220. 237. 246. 249—252. 262. 263. 268—270. 274. 276—281. 283—291^b. 292. 293^b. 321. 327—329. 333^{a. h. k.} 334. 335. 355. 356. 358. 359. 362. 423. 443—445^a. 460. 475. 479. 488. 493—495. 498. 500. 505. 508. 510—516. 540. The great intervals 336^f. 362^f. are to be accounted for from the fact that I had to register editions of Bibles and of Bible-portions which have appeared since dear Wiffen's death. In other places I had likewise to add that which has appeared since 1867, together with some articles of earlier date. Where I do not specially state the contrary, or that from the context it manifestly is so, I have personally seen the copies in the libraries which I specify, and have made the title-copies and descriptions from them. As affecting the biographies, Wiffen's manuscript notes furnished me with some details concerning Reina, especially those extracted from the Records of the French Church in London and from the National Archives of Brussels (all cited in my Life of Reina, p. 167. 170. 172. 178. 309). These notes by Wiffen on Reina were only lately brought to my knowledge, so that they could not be mentioned in the preface to my first volume.

In the meanwhile an important work upon the Spanish Protestants had appeared, Menendez Pelayo's second volume of the „Heterodoxos Españoles,“ 1880; the supplements contained in his third volume, issued in summer 1882, refer already to this my second volume, of which the sheets, as soon as finished, were by me communicated to him. For highly interesting additions to my sketches of Constantino Ponce de la Fuente herein published I am indebted to his second volume. Doubtless Menendez Pelayo is the best read and best informed man in Spain as to the literature of the Evangelical movement amongst his countrymen, neither is there amongst them an Evangelical who could claim to rank with him in this respect.

He, moreover, wields varied learning, he vindicates morality, and is a man stamped with firm religious principles. He, a master in his own language, frequently avows his admiration at the purity and energy of expression in the Spanish works of men, to whom he is antagonistic. I almost could apply to him the exclamation of an old French poet, who, speaking of a noble warrior opposed to Charlemagne in Spain, exclaimed: God! what a champion, had he but Christianity! „Deus! quel barun, s'ouïst Chrestientet!“ It stands to reason that Menendez on his part holds it to be unchristian for any one, who writes upon ecclesiastical subjects, not to do that which he expressly does, viz. submit from first to last in every thing to the judgment of the Roman Church and of its rulers. I take leave, however, to point to the impossibility of getting rid of that „private judgment,“ which horrifies him: for every one severally selects his own authority, and remains ultimately responsible for his selection. Menendez Pelayo's mind is too clear to misapprehend this, even though it fail to work out an altered bearing. Through inadvertence, we all fall into error, and my „Reformers“ are as little without such faults as are his „Heterodoxos,“ whence we grant and ask pardon reciprocally — „veniam damus petimusque vicissim.“ There is a union of all mankind, preestablished in that moral autonomy, of which St. Paul speaks Rom. 2. It will always be grateful to me, when the results of my investigations in the history of Spanish literature shall meet with the approval of my learned friend Menendez Pelayo.

It would have been very useful for this Bibliotheca if I could have consulted the work upon which my friend and colleague in the line of Romance languages, Professor Dr. W. I. Knapp of Yale College, New Haven, is engaged, his Bibliographical Thesaurus of Prohibited Literature. May this important work soon appear.

I thankfully acknowledge the kindness of many librarians who promoted my labours. The Imperial Court-library at Vienna has been of incalculable service to me in working up the materials of this volume (and to avail myself of it was my motive for migrating to Vienna in the autumn of 1881). Many, many passages witness to the fact. Whilst I thank all the officials of this library who have assisted me, my thanks are especially due to Dr. Gödlin, who greatly facilitated and furthered my bibliographical researches. Many others, who aided me in my work, will be found named in their respective places.

With relation to the emendations and additions for volume 1 and 2, the introduction of which I partly contemplate in the third and last volume and partly elsewhere, I solicit that printed and manuscript communications may be by scholars kindly furnished me. My Bible-catalogue is defective, but, this notwithstanding, the catalogue with the Specimens may prove useful to Bible-societies in their future undertakings. I do not know of even one of these societies as having in its library a complete series of its own publications. My own collection of Spanish Bibles, without which I should have been unable to find out the genealogy of the different editions and revisions of Reina's Bible, will be increased and finally incorporated into some public library. (B—r after the title of a book means that a copy is in my collection).

In order to prevent loss of time and to ensure the delivery of letters and parcels addressed to me, I beg to notify, that I return to Lichtenthal near Baden-Baden next April, where I shall permanently reside.

I must needs repeat that I should have written this work in German, had I had some one near me who would have translated it into English, in which language it had been decided that the Bibliotheca Wiffeniana should be published. As for this volume, my wife had translated the lives of Constantino and of Perez into German from my English originals of them (without annotations and bibliography); then Mr. Betts translated this German translation back again into English; translating also the life of Nuñez from my German original into English (which Life was added to the plan of this work after the publication of the first volume); and I had these manuscripts of Mr. Betts before me, when I finished my manuscript of this volume for the press. But I had much to add to what I had previously written, and many things likewise to remould, so that to complete the work I found myself constrained to resume English composition, better or worse, though in point of fact I have had no leisure to exercise it. The proofs (except what I inserted in the last moment) have had the joint revision of the author and of my dear old friend Betts, who has attentively controlled all that presented itself in the different languages, whether English or German, Spanish or Italian or French, Latin or Greek, contributing occasionally his own observations upon the subjects treated (compare on pages 110. 171. 371). Had I but had the pleasure and the honour to address his English speaking Christendom through his eloquent lips! The circumstance, however, of my not being able to hand him, who indeed translates in a masterly manner, a finished and neat manuscript in German, would only then have been no obstacle, had we both lived on the same spot in continuous intercourse. So I can only ask of my benevolent English readers, that, exercising self-denial on their part, they may let my English, which is not insular, nevertheless pass as cosmopolitan, and, resting absorbed in the matter, „frui paratis.“

It has been my good fortune that the management of the press of this volume too should have been in the experienced hands of Herr Carl Bobardt, Administrator of the Press of Francke's Orphan Asylum and Canstein's Bible Institute at Halle, to whose careful cooperation I am indebted; for, thanks to it, my wearied eyes have been greatly relieved in the revision.

CONSTANTINO PONCE DE LA FUENTE.

CONSTANTINO, Juan Gil and Vargas, who had been fellow students in the university of Alcalá, laboured at Seville, in the fifth decade of the sixteenth century, for the spread of the gospel.¹

Constantino Ponce de la Fuente, born at San Clemente in the diocese of Cuenca,² was therefore a countryman of Juan Diaz and of Alfonso and Juan de Valdés. His genius was sprightly and very humorous. He passed the bright days of youth in dissipation, then he resolved in the full energy of his gifted spirit, to devote himself to usefulness as an author and preacher, a calling for which he was extraordinarily endowed by his experience in life and by his clear and ready mode of expression. In 1553 a celebrated humanist, Alfonso Garcia Matamoros, professor of rhetoric in Alcalá, author of a treatise on pulpit-eloquence, says of Constantino: ³ „He enjoyed in Seville that admiration which, according to Cicero, is so important for the perfect orator. He attains so much by common sense, his movements are so far from being constrained by school and doctrine, that the

2) Doctor Constantino de la Fuente, de la diócesis de Cuenca — says a testimonial on his ordination written in 1556 and incorporated in the Acts of the Chapter of Seville. Those Acts as far as they concern the doctors Constantino and Gil from 1533 to 1561 have been published by Menendez Pelayo in his Historia de los heterodoxos españoles, Madrid 1880, vol. 2. — Gons. 281: canonicatum Guenguensis Ecclesiæ . . in propria patria . . contempserat. highly delighted hearers would think, he took at once from the popular feeling those things which, however, have deep roots in the soul of divine philosophy. He owes much to art, but more to nature and to the rich vein which every day produces more than art could reach by hard and persevering study.“ Luis de Usóz i Rio says, speaking of ascetics: ⁴ „To my mind, Dr. Constantino is, amongst them, one of the best Spanish writers; for if language be most praised when it presents with greatest vividness to the hearer a very clear idea of that which lies hidden in the mind, the doctor's mode of expression, which so well succeeded in setting forth his most latent thoughts without borrowing obscure terms, may truthfully be called a pattern and a model in our tongue.“ And this characteristic he appears to have in common with three other Spanish reformers, with Valdés, Perez and Valera, who, according to Usóz, as for naturalidad, for unaffected simplicity of expression, are all four unequalled in the Castilian language, and bear the palm even when compared with such most celebrated writers as Luis de Granada and Luis de Leon. Menendez Pelayo, at present professor of Spanish literature at the university of Madrid, and member of the Academia Española, judges of Constantino's Summary of Christian doctrine: „The style is pithy, simple and of remarkable neatness and clearness, without great transports or movements, but with a modest and well sustained elegance: a complete model of the didactic style. It is the best written of the Castilian catechisms, although unfortunately not the purest. Nevertheless, if only some phrases which the Inquisition did not notice were expurgated, it might, but for the name of the author, pass as texto de lengua.“ The same is, according to Menendez to be said of Constantino's Catecismo. His translation of the Sermon on the mount is found admirable by the same critic, who calls the Confession of a sinner a beautiful piece of ascetic eloquence.⁵

This Confession of a sinner is a prayer from the inmost soul to the Son of God, who had been given to man by the eternal Father to be his saviour and judge. Going orderly through the ten commandments and the creed, the suppliant sees every form of self-righteousness desert him, and finds his sole consolation through faith in the forgiveness of sins through the merits of Jesus Christ. To Him the sinner says: „Man is indeed God, since Thou art indeed man; and all men have now faculty and liberty to be like God, for they are Thy brethren by lineal descent, and Thy Father calls upon them and Thou callest upon them, to walk in Thy steps, that they may be like Thee, that they may imitate Thy obedience and Thy righteousness and Thy goodness, so that it may be truly said: they are sons of God and born of God.⁶

All externals in the Established Church he interpreted in his Summary as pointing to inward things, and to him there was nothing however unimportant that he did not recognise as significant and useful in spirituals.⁷

Gonzalez in his portraits of the evangelical martyrs of Seville does not know how to eulogize sufficiently Constantino whom he personally knew. He was, according to Gonzalez, the first at Seville who preached the true religion.⁸ But in teaching truth, he proceeded with such circumspection that no enemy could prevent his work of a sower.

On 13 June 1533 Doctor Constantino was by the Chapter of Seville received as preacher of the cathedral.⁹ He was graduated as licentiate of theology in the Sevillian university on 30 August 1534.¹⁰ In the next year on 22 May he was in the same town ordained as a priest.¹¹

About 1537, when the magistral canonry of Seville was vacant, viz. the place of a canon who had to preach, a friend of Constantino was elected, Dr. Gil, an Aragonese,¹² who was teaching scholastic theology in Sigüenza. He had never previously been a preacher, and he had spent but little time in the study of the bible, for he was still subject to the mental tone which prevailed at the university of Alcalá, where such persons as were not accomplished scholars in the systems of Lombardus, Aquinas, Scotus and other scholastic theologians, were only spoken of with a shrug of the shoulders as good biblists.¹³ So little had old prejudices been changed by the publication in that very university of the first polyglot bible. Now to every one's astonishment, as well as his own, the doctor of Alcalá proved himself so little able to preach, that not only did the Chapter several times deliberate as to whether it must needs seek another, but even he himself repeatedly thought of resigning his new office. But God sent him a monitor who, in a few hours, so fully enlightened him as to the real duty of a preacher and as to the way in which he should do it, that he thenceforth spoke from his heart and with effective results. This monitor was Rodrigo de Valer, of Lebrixa, a man of honest family and not without fortune, who, when immersed in levity, was struck by a ray of light flashed from a higher world, so that he was at once changed; he studied the Holy Scriptures, and never wearied in speaking to the priests of the actual corruptions of the clergy and of the whole church. From him Dr. Gil learnt to understand the gospel, and so he was converted to a more genial Christianity. For some time Valer was left unmolested, for it was thought that his brain was affected; however after a while the Inquisition interfered, but as one deranged he was set at liberty, whilst his property was confiscated. This last proceeding was not calculated to strengthen his thinking faculty, and hence no wonder that the Inquisition occupied itself again with him some years afterwards. He was condemned to be imprisoned for life.¹⁴ When he

Llorente 4, 92 (cf. 81), French 2, 148 (cf. 140), gives the date 1540, but it does not seem he had any documents besides the work of Gons. It would therefore perhaps be more accurate to say 1541. — Gons. says 258 that Dr. Gil met with Valer after having been annos aliquot in Seville, where he went about 1537. Valer was at that time thought an idiot neque de mentis sanitate omnino bene audiens, ib.; one should think that this was before the Inquisitors had examined him and had dismissed him on account of insania, confiscating, was brought on sundays with other prisoners into the church of San Salvador at Seville, he would rise there in his sanbenito and contradict the preacher in the midst of his congregation. At last they shut him up in a convent of San Lucar, and kept him there until his death. His frock of infamy was hung up in the cathedral of Seville, and for many years one read the inscription written upon it in large letters: Rodrigo Valer, inhabitant of Nebrixa and Seville, apostate and pseudo-apostle, who declared, that he had been sent by God.

Dr. Gil had done for him what he could; to his influence it was ascribed that the Inquisitors had been moved to what they called clemency. He continued to preach zealously and by the friendship he made with Constantino he progressed in theology.

Constantino preached less frequently than Gil, but not less successfully. On 18 May 1539 he preached the funeral sermon for the Empress.¹⁵ In 1541 — the year probably of Valer's final condemnation — we meet with the first trace of opposition to Constantino. On 29 March some members of the Chapter officially however, his property, ib. 263. After this judgment he was at liberty aliquot annos, until they began a new examination, ib. Therefore from Gil's coming to Seville about 1537 to Valer's second summons there elapsed some years and again some years, so that indeed the year 1540 seems to be the earliest possible of his condemnation to perpetual prison. Cipriano de Valera, Tratado del papa, Rf. Esp. VI, 246, places this condemnation zerea del año 1545.

Gons. 263 sq.: ut . . ab insania resipisceret, dimiserunt. Resipuit vero nunquam, adeo ut post aliquot annos iterum ob easdem causas accerseretur: atque ad palinodiam adactus, parvum est vitæ ipsius quod adhuc insanire æstinaretur. The French translation, reprinted in the Hist. des mart. (1582, f. 505) has: il fut rappelé pour la mesme cause, et contraint de se desdire, the German translation Heidelberg 1569, reprinted (1606, p. 1118) in the great Martyrbuch: darumb sie ihn wider für forderten, vnnd zum widerruff nötigten. And no doubt palinodia is recantation. It may, however, also mean the repetition of the old song, and in this sense Gons. would say that the second trial was only the old thing over again: the Inquisitors repeated their questions, and Valer repeated his answers. But Cipriano de Valera says likewise, l. c.: hiziéronlo recantar ó desdezir, and his words are not simply a combination of the palinodia of Gons. and the desdire of the Geneva martyrology; he had got information from elsewhere, for he adds the circumstance not found in Gons.: no en público auto, sino á él solo, en la Iglesia mayor entre los dos coros, and soon afterwards: Valióle tambien mui mucho á Valer ser Christiano viejo, i no de raza de Judíos, ni de Moros. The Spanish translation of Gons. in the Rf. Esp. has: obligándole a cantar la palinódia, le perdonaron la vida.

intimated that he should only preach when called upon to do so,¹⁶ but as no such restriction is found in the protocols, it is to be concluded that the Chapter did not adopt it.¹⁷

All the writings of Constantino which have been printed, viz. the confession of a sinner, a doctrinal summary with an exposition of Christ's sermon on the mount, six sermons on the first psalm, a catechism, and the first part of his larger dogmatics, appeared in the years 1544 — 48; the confession of a sinner may have been published earlier. They were all printed at the expense of the author who only got in 1548 a royal privilege for Spain for the next ten years. After 1548 there only appeared new editions. In all those works, which did not want the approbation of the Inquisition, there is no mention of the pope or of the church of Rome, not even when speaking of the one and universal church and of its mystical head, Christ.

The accession of Fernando de Valdés, the new archbishop of Seville and Inquisitor General, which occurred in the year 1547, was an event issuing in terrible consequences.

Vargas, who held lectures in which he expounded the bible, at first the gospel of Matthew, and then the psalms, was the first of the three friends that came into collision with the Holy Office; he however died ere it could sentence him.

When, in the year 1548, Constantino, following another call, left Seville, Ægidius remaining alone, had a hard time of it. In the year 1550¹⁸ he was nominated by the Emperor Bishop of Tortosa, but the Inquisition, to prevent his elevation to such dignity, laid hands on him and threw him into prison.¹⁹ In August 1552 he was condemned to one years imprisonment in the castle of Triana, and he was forbidden to teach, either orally or by writing, for the term of ten years, neither was he allowed to leave Spain.²⁰ In 1555²¹ he visited the Evangelicals at Valladolid who gathered around Augustin Caçalla who had been at one time Confessor to the Emperor. A few days after his return from this, to him, exhausting journey, he sickened and died; this occurred in the beginning of the year 1556.²² The Chapter of Seville had, in 1550 and again in 1551, determined to pay him „600 ducats a year during all the time he might be in the prison of the Holy Inquisition;“ they now buried him in the cathedral and honoured him by an epitaph. But in 1559 an epithet which the Chapter had given him in that inscription was censured by high authority, viz. by the Inquisition, and they had to efface it;²³ and in the next year the tomb was, by command of the same authority, rifled of his remains, and they were burnt. The manuscripts which he left behind him, commentaries upon the book of Genesis, upon some of the psalms, upon Solomon's Song, and upon the epistle to the Colossians, all written in Spanish, were still preserved by admiring friends up to the year 1567. His best compositions were written in prison, nay were written by him when in chains. No one of all these writings, so far as we know, has ever been printed, and there is little hope of discovering any of the manuscripts.

One of Dr. Gil's principal enemies was Pedro Mexia, a man of letters whose merits are not yet forgotten, but not a scholar, and narrow-minded, although he was called a philosopher.²⁴ He could not but discover that Dr. Constantino's views agreed as little with his philosophy as did Dr. Gil's. Once he exclaimed when returning from a sermon of Constantino: By God, this is no good doctrine, nor is this the same that our fathers taught us! As Mexia enjoyed great authority in the town, many were startled.²⁵ But, whilst, in 1548, Mexia was honoured by the title of an Imperial historiographer, Constantino was called to functions in the Imperial court.

Various opportunities had presented themselves to Dr. Constantino to exchange Seville for other places of residence. The Chapter of Toledo offered him a rich canonry. He replied to the deputation which came to Seville for that purpose, that he should ever feel grateful to the Chapter, but that he never should like to do anything that might disturb the bones of his parents and forefathers. This is an allusion to the fact that the archbishop of Toledo was about that time digging up the remains of the ancestors of some of his metropolitan canons who were said to be of Jewish extraction.²⁶ We have no reason to conclude from that refusal that there was Jewish blood in Constantino himself; he could not but dislike a bishop who cared so little about the true genealogy of the Christian, which was the capital question for Constantino, as we have seen above in the extracts from his Confession of a sinner. In a similar way he had previously refused a canonry in his native Cuenca. Summoned by the Emperor, he did not think it right to decline the call. In November 1548 Constantino embarked with the prince Philip, having inaugurated the voyage by a sermon on All Saints day; Caçalla also was in the suite. They accompanied the prince through Italy and Germany to the Netherlands, where they arrived, the next spring, at the court of the Emperor.²⁷ Charles appointed Constantino his confessor and chaplain.²⁸ When he stayed at Augsburg with Charles and Philip in the time of the diet, in the year 1550, he received Gaspar a Nidbruck in the most friendly manner, who presented himself with a letter of introduction from Francisco de Enzinas. Constantino earnestly pressed Enzinas to return to his family in Spain, or, at least, to settle at Antwerp,²⁹ — a proof that the doctor still cherished very illusory hopes for the safety of persons of such convictions. From Augsburg Constantino, doubtless, started at the end of May in the next year with Philip and prince Maximilian, the future Emperor, to Castile, seeing on the way at Trent the celebrated Council. He seems to have remained at Philip's court during the next three years. He was in England with Philip.³⁰ About the end of the year 1555 he had returned to Seville from which he had been absent for seven years.³¹ His friend Dr. Gil died a few weeks after Constantino's return.³²

The canons thought of giving to Dr. Constantino the canonry and preachiership vacant by Dr. Gil's death. The edict that invited candidates to compete for this prebend was issued on 15 February, and Constantino was appointed by the Chapter to preach the Lent-sermons.³³ He preached alternate days, though, being convalescent from a severe attack of illness, he was so weak that he had to be carried into the church, and took at intervals during the sermon a little wine, a freedom which in the case of a man so highly respected and so much beloved caused no scandal.³⁴ As for the magistral

Dr. Constantino, que venia de la jornada que el rey n. sr. D. Felipe II hizo a Inglaterra . . y hallándose con mi padre, le rogó [mi padre] que pues iba [Constantino] a Sevilla, donde yo estaba entonces . . — Juan Pineda Hispalensis speaks in 1619 of Constantino's Anglicana et Germanica peregrinatio (see below note 59). Nic. Antonio l. c. in both editions: Concionator Philippi principis, quocum in Angliam trajecit. Philip left England on 4 Sept. 1555 and arrived at Brussels towards the latter part of the same month. The solemn abdication of the Emperor took place there 25 October. Constantino probably was present at it.

31) It is evident that Gons. 282 supposes that C. had not been at Seville between 1548 and his final return to that town. As for the date of this return, one must consider that according to the same historian ib. C. preached at Seville during the Lent alterius a reditu suo anni, and that in the Acts of the Chapter from 1533 to 1561, published by Menendez as far as they relate to C., no other Lent-sermons of his are mentioned besides those of 1556. There is an incident which may confirm my view. Gons. tells ib. that C. was so weak during that Lent that he had to be carried to the cathedral, and in May of 1556 C. himself states that he had been ready, eight days ago, to deliver a lecture before the Chapter, even if he had to be carried there; aunque me trajeron en una silla, Acts p. 757. Ribero who says in 1602 that C. passed through Barcelona in 1556 (see our preceding note) made a mistake of only some weeks. Llorente 4, 260, French 2, 275, is more mistake in giving the year 1557 for those Lent-sermons of which Gons. speaks.

32) Compare above p. 9. As Dr. Gil died after C.'s return, the words of Gons. 282: post doctoris Ægidii obitum are to be construed, not with reversus e Cesare et aula, as the Spanish translator has misinterpreted the passage, but with ad interpellatum propagande lucis cursum rediit, which construction besides is grammatically the natural one. Gons. says immediately afterwards that C. preached those Lent-sermons (see our preceding note), lectured in the city school which was under the direction of Escobar, and was elected Dr. Gil's successor to the magistral canonry.

canonry, the Provisor of the diocese (the archbishop's delegate for jurisdiction) required by writ, that no one should be elected who had not passed a public and rigorous examination to be held for the transaction in question, in order to avoid a new case like that of Dr. Gil, or who did not descend from persons whose catholic faith was unsuspected. He declared at the same time, that, if the canons should act contrary to such a regulation, they would be excommunicated ipso facto, and have to pay 500 ducats to the fund for His Majesty's war against the infidels. He even exacted, under the same penalties, that the negotiations between the canons on electing a certain candidate should be discontinued, and that no one should disclose his future vote. The provisor stated orally that he had been informed that Constantino was married and therefore ineligible unless he proved that he did not live with his wife and unless he exhibited the dispensation for not living with her.³⁵ The Chapter answered: Constantino is a man of exemplary conduct; for more than twenty years he is known here as a priest and as an eminent preacher and theologian, and nobody has learned anything contrary to his good name, otherwise we must have heard of it; but the archbishop never prohibited his preaching, and king Philip took him into his service and confessed to him and had the maestrescopia of Malaga given to him and pays him as his preacher. Whilst in His Majesty's service, this prebend was at another time offered him without opposition,³⁶ but he declined. The canons state that all this is notorious. The statutes excluding sons and grandsons and great-grandsons of persons condemned or reconciled on account of heretical pravity³⁷ was, to their knowledge, not applicable to any of these candidates. They besides reminded the provisor of his not being judge in the present state of affairs, but simply colector. After all, nothing of what the provisor desired was done, and without examination of doctrine or of genealogy Doctor Constantino de la Fuente was by all the canons, no one being absent, unanimiter elected, on 12 May 1556. As soon as this result was ascertained, Constantino's proctor was introduced and took possession, in the doctor's name, of his canonry, appealing to the pope against the archbishop. The provisor threw Constantino into prison, and tried to instal his candidate, a Dr. Çumel. Constantino, who seems, after a few days, to have been set at liberty, offered to deliver a lecture in the Chapter by way of supplement, in order to calm the provisor, who, however, was irreconcilable. The case had to be decided at Rome. On 7 June 1557 Constantino presented to the Chapter the confirmation of his canonry by the Roman Rota. Some weeks later, on 21 July, the Chapter permitted Constantino to miss the canonic hours when he preached or studied to prepare his sermons.

35) Acts 750: como no hace vida maridable con su mujer. Gons. 286 tells that C.'s competitor Mazuelo ad exceptiones personales conatus omnes convertens suscitavit ei ineptias omnes juventutis suæ, contracta videlicet, antequam sacris initiaretur, matrimonia, neque rite sacris initiatum, neque recte atque ordine magisterii et doctoratus insignia accepisse. It is clear that Gons., who had already spoken of the dissipated youth of C., but had not mentioned his having been married, is only telling what was said by Mazuelo. According to him, C. would have been married more than once. In a report written a short time after C.'s death it is said that it was discovered that he lived in bigamy, and this is repeated by Paramo and Cabrera (see note 58 appended below). After all, it is unknown whether Constantino ever was married.

36) Competitors are also called oppositors. The offer must have been made after Dr. Gil's condemnation in 1552.

Besides preaching he lectured. When his health was somewhat restored from the illness of the spring of 1556, he began to lecture on the bible in a school of the city, the rector of which, Escobar by name, set apart a portion of his income to meet the outlay involved in founding a lectureship for this branch of study. Dr. Constantino first expounded to the young men the Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, and what may appear extraordinary, Solomon's Song; then he went on with the book of Job and got through more than the half of it. All these lectures were reduced into writing by an attentive hearer, and in 1567 were got ready for the press in Germany, but it would seem that they were lost ere printed.

Already before his stay in England, the Jesuits had become aware of his perilous character. When Francisco de Borja, Duke of Gandia, a grandee of Spain, since 1548 a member of the Company of Jesus, subsequently its General, and later canonized, had heard a sermon of Constantino, he quoted that cautioning line of Virgil: *aut aliquis latet error; equo ne credite, Teucri!*³⁸ In the first congregation held by the Company in Spain, at Medina del Campo, in autumn 1554, Borja was proclaimed as Comisario General for Spain and India, and, especially at his persistent proposition, missionaries were sent to Seville, the most excellent and learned ones of which the Company could dispose.³⁹ Borja himself made a short stay at Seville at Christmas 1554.⁴⁰ A year later Constantino returned there. The Jesuits first combated him secretly, then openly.⁴¹ He preached against them, saying: They recommend to you extraordinary asperities, but the Law is antiquated! Afterwards he remarked: If they are men of prayer and not given to women, they will persevere. He was repeatedly summoned before the Holy Office to give explanations of certain passages in his sermons. His friends, who had noticed his visits to the castle of Triana, asked him what they wanted with him? „They wish to burn me,“ he replied, „but they find me as yet too green.“ However dextrous he proved himself to be in eluding the acuteness of his examiners when under hearing, he nevertheless held it to be advisable, to look around for some other stay, and he boldly elected as his resource, to seek admission into the order of Jesuits. There was in them a mystical element which at that time an ingenious Christian might hope to win over to evangelical tendencies. Constantino, however, was not admitted; an Inquisitor had given them a hint.⁴² Perhaps the books smuggled into Seville by the intrepid Julianillo were already discovered.⁴³ When this tempest broke out, and many hundred persons were seized, — how, says Gonzalez, could Constantino hide himself? He was secured in the Inquisitorial stronghold.⁴⁴ He withheld the confession of his faith before the Inquisitors until an untoward accident put at last an end to his tergiversation. A widow lady Doña Isabel Martinez had been imprisoned and condemned by the Inquisition and her property had been confiscated. Her son had, however, managed to secrete some chests filled with valuables. This was betrayed by a servant, and an officer was sent to get away the things that had not been delivered up. As soon as Martinez saw the officer, he thought he knew what his errand was, and anticipated his demand, by offering him all he wanted at once, only stipulating that he should be left free. The officer unhesitatingly promised him this, since his duty did not affect the man's person. Whereupon Martinez took the officer to the most out of the way corner of the large house, and taking some stones out of the wall, shewed him a mass of papers. The officer amazed took possession of them, but did not, however, leave until those chests, for which Martinez did not suppose him to be sent, were delivered up to him. These papers had been committed by Constantino to the widow, for her to preserve in concealment.

38) Cienfuegos, Vida del grande San Francisco de Borja, 1702 Madrid, p. 292. One should think from this Jesuit historian, that the incident happened during Borja's stay at Seville about the beginning of 1555; at that time, however, Constantino was not there. Borja may have heard him at Tordesillas, either in 1552 or short before the English journey in 1554; during one of Philip's two stays there (see Cienfuegos p. 237. 262). It was in 1554 that people debated who preached better and more Christianlike, Constantino or Borja (Cienfuegos 273; see the passage in the appendix to my edition of Constantino's Sermons on the first psalm). And Cienfuegos, about to tell that in November 1554, the first Jesuits arrived at Seville, says (p. 288 f.): Avia algunos meses, que Borja andava tan solícito sobre fundar en Sevilla un Colegio, . . . porque estava prerenido con repetidas ilustraciones y relampagos su entendimiento del veneno que por la lengua de dos serpientes iba secretamente vomitando la Sierpe del Parayso. By those two serpents the biographer, no doubt, means Constantino and Gil. Nieremberg in his Vida of Franc. de Borja, Madrid 1644, p. 314 says: por lo qual dió tanta prisa el sieruo de Dios a la fundacion tan arrebatada de aquel Colegio, para que predicassen los nuestros, como lo hizieron, contra Constantino, y los demas hereges dissimulados. Afirman lo referido el Padre Ribadeneira, y P. Dionisio Vazquez. Ribadeneyra in his life of Borja, Madrid 1592, fol. 93 does not name Constantino. — According to Ribadeneyra, fol. 91 it was Hernan Ponce de Leon who gave the Jesuits their first morada at Seville. His widow was in 1560 condemned as a Lutheran.

Amongst other things found there was a thick volume in the doctor's own handwriting, wherein he minutely set forth his heartfelt convictions upon the points in dispute between Papists and Protestants. In his printed works he had abstained from all mention of the Pope; this and some other points, which are unnoticed in those books, he proposed treating, as he used to say, in the second part of his Doctrina. In this manuscript he portrayed the Pope as Antichrist, and called purgatory a bugbear and invention of the monks to fill their bellies. When Constantino was asked by the Inquisitors whether he acknowledged his handwriting, he even then endeavoured for some days and in every possible manner to avoid doing so, but at last he surrendered himself to the will of God and confessed: I wrote it all, and it represents my real convictions. Seek no further proofs against me, and do with me what seems good to you.⁴⁵ When Charles heard that his confessor was imprisoned, he said: If Constantino is a heretic, he is a great one.⁴⁶ Constantino's Christian Doctrine was one of about thirty favorite works which constituted all the library which the Emperor had, in his retirement at San Yuste, when he died.⁴⁷ Two years⁴⁸ did Constantino pine away in prison. The fearful beat in his cell, which compelled him to strip off every thing but his shirt, brought upon him dysentery, to which he succumbed in a fortnight. A monk of the convent of San Isidro, who likewise was incarcerated for his faith and who was confined in the same cell, closed Constantino's eyes. Nevertheless the lie was circulated that Constantino had committed suicide.⁴⁹ His death occurred in the summer of 1560. On 22 December of that year his remains and those of his friend Ægidius were committed to the flames. Caçalla had already been burnt a year and a half previously, with the alleviation of being first strangled because he had repented; the solemn declaration which he is reported to have made, having death before his eyes, proves indeed his penitence, but does not imply a retraction of his evangelical convictions.⁵⁰

The books which Constantino had published with the approbation of the Inquisitors were now prohibited by them, „not as if they had found anything in them worthy of condemnation, but lest there should exist any honorable memorial of a man doomed to execration.“⁵¹ Even some expressions in praise of Constantino found in books which were published before his imprisonment were blotted out and not allowed to be reprinted.⁵²

54) Constantino named by mistake instead of Cazalla.

Jac. Schopper tells (see Caroli memorabilia t. 1. 1697. p. 342 sq.), that, when he was in the cradle, he had been kissed by the Emperor's confessor Constantino, who had come at the time of the Schmalkalden war, in Lent, during the Emperor's stay at Ulm, to Biberach, where Alphonsus Vives, Spanish magister de campo, arranged a disputation between old Schopper and that confessor, who after this colloquy called on his opponent and confessed being beaten by the testimonies of Holy Scripture, and declared his conversion to Schopper's belief. However, Constantino was not then in Germany with the Emperor. Charles resided at Ulm from January 25 to March 4. 1547 (Caroli V iter ex infer. Germania ab a. 1545 usque ad comitia a. 1547, ab Mamerano annotatum, denuo revisum. 1548. Folio B 8 and C 1). Alphonsus Vivas is registered as Magister campi in the Catal. omnium generalium, tribunorum, ducum, primorumque totius exercitus Caroli V super rebelles conscripti a. 1546. authore Nic. Mamerano, Coloniae 1550, p. 42; he perished in the coup-de-main against Constance in September 1548 (Girolamo Faleti: prima parte delle guerre di Alemagna, Vinegia 1552, p. 363 f.; compare Constantia Rhenana, authore Bucelino, 1667, p. 349 f.). In the Catalogus familiae totius aulae Caesareae per expeditionem adv. inobedientes usque Augustam Rheticam, per Nic. Mameranum, Coloniae 1550, the dedication of which is dated August 2. 1548, p. 13: Petrus de Soto professionis ordinis Dominici, Theologus Confessor Caesareus. Johannes Munietones Augustinianus frater Birbiescae Alcaldi, hoc est, iudicis Aulae Caesareae, Concionator. No doubt Augustin Cazalla (the Christian name was unknown to Mameranus who for that reason puts an N instead of it) was that clergyman of the Imperial court of whom Schopper speaks. If Cazalla was at Biberach in Lent 1547 when the Emperor was at Ulm, it must have been in the very beginning of March, as the Emperor left that town on March 4, and Easter was on April 10. Dr. Constantino most likely was in Ulm, when prince Philip was there, who (according to Calvete de Estrella's Viaje) arrived on the 27 of February 1549 and left on the first of March. Alf. Vives had died in the preceding year.

55) Doctor Constantino and Cardanus.

Hieronymus Cardanus, the celebrated physician of Milan, in his work de subtilitate, book XIX: de daemonibus, tells: Vigebat olim in Hispania haec ars [necromantiae], publiceque docebatur in Salamantica academia, nunc vero publicis legibus sublata est. Unde ibi aliqua adhuc artis experimenta supersunt. Narrabat mihi Don Constantinus Fontanus Hispanus theologus, et ab exomologesi Principis Philippi Hispaniarum, dum in Vagliadolit civitate Hispaniae, in domo typographi quae male ob strepitus audiebat nocturnos diversaretur, prima nocte incubum sensisse: sed cum olivas nigras in coena comedisset, naturale existimasse, cum incubus inter morbos numeretur. Sequenti nocte super lecto videt auditque feles concertantes, quod quamquam durum videretur, quia tamen esse poterat, et hoc naturale esse duxit. Tertia autem nocte cum nondum dormitum isset, de hisque dissereret, tubae vocem quasi in aure audivit. Existimans sibi speciem esse, pueros videbat qui ibi astabant ridentes: tum vox illa cubiculum circuire coepit, perfectoque circuitu sub lecto se abdidit, ibi diu strepens, cum nihil videretur. Sed nullibi magis seu daemonum seu mortuorum vestigia videre aut audire licet quam circa morituros, aut post ingentes clades, vel pestilentiae temporibus. Dupliciter autem morituris haec eveniunt: vel ipsis, unusquisque enim antequam moriatur aliquid videns terretur: et postquam viderit, non supervivit. Et quanquam naturale esse possit, mirum tamen est. I have copied this from p. 539 of the folio edition of the de subtilitate libri XXI. nunc demum recogniti atque perfecti. Basileae per Ludovicum Lucium. Anno 1554. Colophon: .. excudebat .. M. D. LIIII. mense Martio. [VIENNA Court. Also in my possession]. Dedication Ferrando Gonzaghae, dated XI. Calendas Maij, anno M. D. LII. Lutetiae, The passage recurs in the reprints of this edition: p. 691 of the octavo edition Lugduni Apud Gulielmum Rouillium, M. D. LVIII. [FLORENCE Nazionale. ROMA Vittorio Emanuele]; on the same page of the edition Lugduni M. D. LXXX. [STRASSBURG Univ.] (from which Bayle, Dictionnaire, article Ponce, has copied it, stopping, however, with videretur). The folio Basle 1560 [MILAN Brera, also in my possession] is the print of 1554; only it has received a new title (on which the portrait of Cardanus with the year of the portrait: 1553), a new last leaf (p. 561) and the accession (indicated on the title) of the apology in Calumniatorem, at the end of which is the notice: Basileae ex officina Petrina anno MDLX mense Martio. The edition Basle 1554 was the second one of the de subtilitate. Cardanus himself states as for the second edition: anno MDLiiij, atque in eius initio publicata est; this he says p. 139 of in Calumniatorem librorum de subtilitate actio prima, in his Quaedam opuscula artem medicam exercentibus utilissima. Basileae, at the end: ex officina Hieronymi Curionis, impensis Henrici Petri, MDLIX mense Martio [MILAN Brera].

The first edition of De subtilitate, Norimbergæ apud Joh. Petreium. M. D. L. dedicated Ferrando Gonzaghae [MILAN Brera. VIENNA Court] does not contain the above passage, nor is it contained in the editions Parisiis ex officina Michaelis Fezandat & Roberti Granlon 1551 [FLORENCE Nazionale] and Lygdvni apud G. Rouillium 1551 [VIENNA Court]. (The Sorbonne censured in 1551 Cardanus de subtil. libri XI Lugduni apud Guil. Rouillium 1550; see Du Plessis d'Argentré's Collectio t. 2. 1728, p. 169. In Argelati Bibliotheca scriptorum Mediolanensium 1745, col. 310 is mentioned a reprint Lugduni 1552 of the first edition). In the French translation by Richard le Blanc, Paris 1556 [STRASSBURG Univ.], the passage is wanting (fol. 380), as also what, in the Latin, is said immediately before, after the words acutiorem ad equorum hinnitus (1554, p. 539. 1580, p. 690); after the translation of these words follows that of the sentence (which we have copied) Sed nullibi magis and so on; so also in the editions of this translation Paris 1566 fol. 465 [VIENNA Court] and Paris 1578 on the same fol. [I think it was in the Univ. library at Strassburg that I used this ed.]

An octavo edition with the actio and the same subscription: Basileae ex officina Petrina anno M. D. LX mense Martio [VIENNA Court. ROME Casanatensis] has a dedication Ferrando de Corduba, where is said that the two former editions had been dedicated to Ferrando Gonzaga, who had died since. Instead of in Vagliadolit is printed in Pinthia seu Valleoletana, vulgato nomine Vagliadolit. With this same addition the passage recurs in the reprints Basileæ per Sebastianum Henricpetri CIO. IO. XXCII [ROME Vittorio Emanuele] p. 976. 977; at the same publishers CIO. IOC XI [VIENNA Court. FLORENCE Nazionale] on the same pages; in Cardani operum tomus tertius, Lugduni M. DC. Calvete de Estrellas in the Viaje del Principe Phelippe 1552 (MILAN, Brera. See above here p. 11) mentions that in December 1548 in Pavia Alciatus and Cardanus had been visited by muchos hombres doctos cortesanos. Amongst these will have been Dr. Constantino; the only other occasion for him and Cardanus to meet, was when Constantino passed through Lombardy in 1551. At all events the above conversation is not mentioned in the first edition of de subtilitate which appeared in 1550.

The accident in question had, no doubt, occurred in 1548, when Constantino had joined the court of Philip.

56) Two letters of Gaspar a Nidbruck to Francisco de Enzinas.

Nobilitate pietate et eruditione praestanti domino Francisco d'Enzinas, amico suo pie colendo.
Argentorati.

S. P. Tuas ad octavam usque expectavi, et quia profectio mea ob nautarum importunitatem moram non patiebatur, diutius Argentinae haerere non licebat; adhuc literae tuae non ita necessario desiderabantur, sufficet si nunc proximo tabellario ad me huc mittas. Hodie patrui mei literas ex Anglia accepi: probatur ipsi meum institutum, et consilium suum addit quomodo conficere id commode possim. Quare te pro amicitia nostra reverenter rogatum volo, ut ad doctorem Constantinum in mei gratiam perscribere velis, quibus in locis et cum quibus versatus sim. Non necessarium fuerit addere de religione. De me non multa polliceberis, hoc vere affirmare poteris, fidei et piorum virorum studioso commissurum quicquid cuiuscunque generis communicaverit. Si quid etiam de tuis rationibus cum ipso conferre velis, id meo iudicio tum melius fiet, cum Augustae fuero, facile enim resciscam quo animo sit erga puram Evangelii doctrinam, et quemadmodum erga te affectus sit; item quid alii de te sentiant. Haec enim omnia diligenter expiscabor, et per legatos Argentinenses Argentoratum meas transmitti curabo. Hoc meum est consilium, quod tamen tuo iudicio submitto. Nempe ut in iis literis, quas ad me mittes, de religione non nimium exacte (ut te et omnes pios vere decet) cum doctore Constantino colloquaris, sed tantum in mei commendationem pro tua humanitate amice scribas; habebis me tum semper fidelem et diligentem sollicitatorem. Si qui etiam sint nobiles in aula sanguine vel necessitudine tibi devincti, iis et ad mei promotionem aliquid dignaberis scribere, et significare, me linguis haecenus dedisse operam: Germanicam habere vernaculam, Gallicam haud longe dissimilem, Italicam me per aliquot annos exercuisse, Hispanicam intelligere et maius studium in ea perdiscenda collocaturum si cum Hispanis, officiorum meorum praestatione, honesto vel mediocri loco esse queam. Et cognosces si quid donorum largiatur aeternus pater, te non in ingratum posuisse beneficium. Vale in domino qui vos isthinc conservet, consiliaque vestra ad nominis sui gloriam et verae religionis propagationem dirigat. Nova quae habeo ex Augusta, ad dominum Sledanum perscripsi, inde petere licebit. Iterum vale ac tuas per primum tabellarium transmittere digneris; addet percommode suis dominus Sledanus. Coniungem honestissimam una cum familia officiose et amanter salutabis. Datum Spirae 26 Augusti 1550.

Gaspar a Nidbruck. D.

Ex harum latore, studioso Argentinensi, nomine Joanne Winckelio, intelliges de rebus Saxoniciis, venit enim ex Wittenberga. Dominus Fredericus nondum venit, nescio in patria an vero Augustae sit.

Ornatissimo viro virtute et nobilitate praestanti, domino Francisco d'Enzinas.

Argentorati.

S. P. Tuas reddidi, domine carissime, tua quoque commendatio apud gravissimum virum doctorem Constantinum non parvum pondus habuit, nam humanissime me excepit, et, qua est prudentia ac eruditione, non dubito quin consilio suo iuvare atque promovere meum institutum possit, quod facturum se pollicitus est, neque ego ipsius benevolentiae diffido. Erga te quoque me gratum exhibebo si quando concedatur et occasio se offerat declarandi meum erga te studium. De mea profectione in Hispaniam nihil adhuc certi habeo: si quid iuvante Deo assequi potero, reddam te certiore. Rerum novarum nihil te dignum. Quid Status ad propositiones responderint, procul dubio tibi notum est, quid item replicarit imperator; ad hanc Caesaris replicam Status responderunt, sed Caesari responsum traditum neque adhuc publicatum; cum evulgabitur, tum ad vos perscribam. Reliqua ex domini Sledani literis cognosces qui omnia non gravatim communicabit. Summopere desiderat doctor Constantinus te ad tuos redire, vel saltem in Belgico Antuerpiae esse, idcirco responsum petit ad suas. Si rescribas, mittas ad legatum Argentoratensem per nuncium juratum; hunc legatum ego rogabo ut vel ad meas manus literas mittat, vel doctori Constantino ipsi per famulum tradi curet si ego hinc discedam, de quo tamen ad te pluribus cum aliquid constitutum habuero. Vale in domino, et me tui studiosissimum redama. Augustae 8 Octob. 1550.

The D behind his name means Doctor iuris. Some years later he calls himself Roem. koen. Maj. u. kön. Würde zu Behem. Hoverath.

Parts of these two letters, the autographs of which are in the Thomas archives at Strassburg (see not. 1, p. 164), are translated and printed in English in Wiffen's biographical sketch of Dr. Constantino prefixed to Betts' translation of Constantino's Confession of a sinner 1869, p. 14 f. At the end of the former letter the word Agent is another translation of the same word which first was translated by correspondent. P. 16, l. 10 write He asks instead of I ask; on the same page instead of Brussels must be written Augsburg (in the foregoing line a comma would be better than a semicolon).

The Emperor was at Augsburg from the 7th of August 1550 to May 51.

57) Constantino not at S. Yuste with the Emperor.

Dav. Chytræi oratio de Carolo quinto, Cesare augusto. 1583. p. 56 sq.; also in the same author's de tribus nostrae ætatis Caesaribus Augustis orationes, Witebergæ 1583, p. 82 sq.; and in his Saxonia under the year 1558, ed. of 1593, p. 572 sq., and tertium recognita 1611, p. 512: Habuit in ea solitudine Hieronymianorum fratrum Carolus postremo vitæ suæ biennio familiarem qui a confessionibus ipsi fuerat, doctorem Constantinum, virum gravem, pium et præeclare eruditum. Is, inter quotidiana et assidua precum et laudum divinarum a Carolo suscepta exercitia, ad scriptorum Bernhardi lectionem, citatis in consolatione sententiis quibusdam insignibus, eum invitarat. After some quotations from Saint Bernard on justification by mercy through faith: His Bernardi dictis se mirifice delectari et recreari Carolus ostendit. In another place of his Saxonia, under the year 1559, ed. 1593, p. 580, ed. 1611, p. 519, Chytræus says: illum Constantinum qui patri Carolo V. morienti adfuerat (see the passage below here note 58). The fact is that Constantino was in prison when the Emperor died.

De Thou and Sarpi fell into this same error that Constantino had been present at the death of the Emperor. Thuani Hist. 23, 14. London t. 1. 1733. p. 788: Constantinus, qui a sacris confessionibus diu Caesari, eique in solitudine sua post Imperii ac regnorum abdicationem ac postremo animam agenti semper praesto fuerat, ad idem mox tribunal raptus, in tetro carcere paulo ante expiraverat. And the historian of the Concilio Tridentino book 5 (Geneva 1660, p. 426): finalmente la statua di Constantino Pontio, il quale confessor di Carlo quinto nella solitudine sua lo servì in quel ministerio sino al fine, & raccolse nelle sue braccia l'Imperadore moriente. Questo pochi giorni innanzi [dell'auto de fe] era morto in pregione, nella quale, per imputazione d'heresia, fu posto immediate dopo la morte dell'Imperadore. Pallavicino in the Istoria del concilio Tridentino, parte seconda, Roma 1657, libro XIV, capo XI, p. 135, observes against Sarpi: il Ponzio fù Predicatore non Confessore di Carlo; il qual ufficio*) nel tempo della sua infermità mortale veniva esercitato da Frate Francesco di Viglialva. With the marginal note: Vedi Gioannantonio di Verazugniga nel Compendio della Vita di Carlo V. e'l Sandoval nel fine della Vita dello stesso. In the text Pallavicino says some lines later on Ponzio: venne imprigionato in Siviglia per la mentovata causa vivente Carlo, il quale uditane la novella, disse tosto: Se Constantino è eretico, è grand' eretico: accennando, che s'era tale, si era egli simulato con 'una ipocrisia tanto più empia quanto più fina per ottimo catolico (Giattino's Latin translation, pars II, Antwerp 1673: egregii Catholici personam fuisse mentitum). According to Vera y Zuñiga, Epitome de la vida del Emp. Carlos V. 1627. Madrid [VIENNA Court], Charles took with him to Yuste fray Juan de Regla, su Confessor (f. 111); as for fray Francisco de Villalva, Vera y Zuñiga only says (f. 114 f.) that Charles was listening to his consolations when the agony begun. Sandoval (ed. Pamplona 1634. VIENNA Court) does not name the confessor who assisted the dying Emperor.

In a letter of Gerardus Busdragus to a Cardinal, dated Padova 15 Dec. 1558 we read: de Hispaniis quoque narrant, quod illic etiam sint tumultus hac in re, et quod Carolus Q. Episcopo Toletano moriens dixerit, Lutheranos habere justam causam, saltem in articulo justificationis. The letter is found in Hispanicae Inquisitionis secretiora per Ursinum 1611. Gerdesius reprinted the whole from Ursinus in Scrin.

antq. t. 1. I recollect having read, if not the whole letter, at least the above passage in Dorothei Asciani montes pietatis, Lps. 1670. It had been published by P. P. Vergerio, s. l. e. a. (compare Baumgarten's Nachrichten von einer Hallischen Bibliothek, Bd. 2. 1748. p. 61 f.), probably in 1558 or 1559; it is a fiction. The same P. P. Vergerio writes in his fictitious Secretarii pontificii actio tertia, first published 1559, reprinted in Primus tomus operum Vergerii. Tubingæ 1563 (from which edition fol. 90 I copy): Mirum certe, quod ex omnium sermonibus et literis vestra Sanctitas audit, ubique sparsam esse et invalescere istud venenum Germanicum, etiam in terris nuper repertis, etiam in ipsis Hispaniis, quibus nihil solebat esse firmitus et constantius. Certum est nuperime plurimos illic coniectos in carcerem, plurimos igne consumptos, plurimos fuga sibi cosuluisse: et nihilominus videtur non posse malum eradicari. Nunc metuo ne sit additum oleum camino, cum ad Sanctitatem vestram Toletanus Episcopus scripserit, ipsum Carolum morientem dixisse, sibi videri, veram esse Lutheranorum de Iustificacione sententiam. Fama idem statim per universam Europam (ut audio) tulit, et simul, quod Sanctitas vestra dixerit, se nolle ipsi, propterea quod cum Lutheranis in præcipuo religionis capite sensisset, ullas exequias celebrare. Ac non est dubitandum, quin talis fama, seu vera seu falsa fuerit, ego puto esse veram, multos magnopere commoverit. Compare Llorente c. 18, art. 2.

58) Constantino bigamist, suicide (compare p. 13 and 18); burnt alive.

A notice in the Archivo municipal of Seville says: Hoy se ha suicidado el Dr. Constantino en la carcel de la Inquisition, rompiendo el vaso en que le entraban el vino. Menendez who gives this extract p. 438, states: no se ha podido averiguar el dia. It seems that Menendez misinterpreted this relation where he says 437: Algunas relaciones del tiempo añaden que se suicidó, introduciendo en la garganta los pedazos del vaso en que le servian el vino. He quotes no other document to prove that C. introduced pieces of glass into his throat. In a report written about 1560 (quoted by Vicente de la Fuente, Hist. eccles. de España, 2ª ed. t. V. 1874. p. 241) we are told: se quemaron las huesos de Constantino que se había muerto en la cárcel, y los de Egidio, canónigo de Sevilla. Hallóse por verdad que Constantino era casado dos veces con dos mujeres vivas, y que siéndolo, se ordenó de sacerdote, y con ser abominablemente carnal y vicioso, había sabido tan bien fingir santidad, que con su nunca vista hipocresía era tenido en el pueblo por santo. Al fin, dicen, que él mismo se mató en la cárcel y así se acabó de descubrir de todo punto su maldad y la máscara con que tenia el mundo engañado. Gonzalez p. 292: in optimam sancti viri existimationem sævire decreverunt [Inquisitores], frequentibus sparsis rumoribus, vitreis fragmentis scissa vena, ut dolorem atque ignominiam supplicii effugeret. mortem sibi conscivisse. Paramo, de origine &c. Inquisitionis, Matriti 1598, p. 302: inventus est Constantinus ex his, utraque conjuge viva, matrimonium contraxisse, et in eo statu ad sacrum presbyteratus ordinem fuisse promotus, and: sibi ipsi suis manibus mortem conscivisse perhibent. He only says perhibent, as the above report written about 1560 only says dicen.

Cabrera, Filipe Segundo. Madrid 1619. libr. V, cap. III, p. 236: En Sevilla quemaron en otro auto de Inquisicion cincuenta, i los huesos del Dotor Constantino, porque se mató en la carcel con vn cuchillo el Luterano, casado con dos mugeres viviendo anbas, i tomó el orden Sacerdotal también. Nicolaus Antonius, Bibliotheca Nova 1. 1672. p. 196 (repeated 1783, p. 256), after the catalogue of Constantino's writings: Tot vallatus vir doctrinæ atque existimationis ornamentis simul, et munitis (1672: munimentis), ne quis altum sapere præsumat, sed potius timeat, sibique a se ipso caveat, in fœdissimas hæreses lapsus, dum in custodia esset, brevi dicturus coram omni populo Hispalensi, ut moris est, arenuntiata veræ fidei causam, ipse sibi manus sæve intulit, ne huic scenæ se vivum exhiberet. Effugere tamen non potuit in cadavere vindices flammas. Cienfuegos, Vida de F. de Borja, Madrid 1702, p. 292: en la carcel se arrimó un puñal al pecho, y fué su infame brazo Juez, Reo, y Verdugo. Pellicer, Ensayo p. 31: Constantino salió en estatua por haberse quitado a sí mismo la vida en la prison.

Some historians thought that Dr. Constantino had been burnt alive. Beza says, Icones 1580 li. iij: Egidio quidem post mortem cremato, Varquia in ipso Inquisitorum certamine mortuo, Constantino denique, viro trium linguarum egregie perito, et quo confessore, quem vocant, diu fuerat usus Carolus quintus, Sivilia damnato et cremato. David Chytræus expressly tells in his Saxonia under the year 1559, ed. of 1593, p. 580, of 1611, p. 519: Philip returned to Spain, ubi primo adventu in multos pios et innocentes homines hæresis nomine accusatos acerbè animadvertit, ac inter cæteros plurimos Doctorem etiam illum Constantinum, qui patri Carolo V. morienti adfuerat, cum tota familia, Hispali in foro vivum cremavit. A rumour that the whole family was burned with him, may have been occasioned by the circumstances, that in 1559 a Juan Ponce was executed, and in 1560 the widow of a Fernando Ponce was condemned to penitences (compare here p. 15); both, however, were Ponces de Leon. Calvisius, no doubt, did not think to alter anything by writing children instead of family; Opus chronologicum, ed. altera, Fref. a. O. 1620, p. 846: Philippus . . . vivum cum liberis exussit Constantinum, qui patri Carolo morienti adfuerat . . . Chyt. (viz. Chytraeus). The same in the third edition, Franef. 1629, p. 1185 f., and in the fourth, Fref. a. M. et Embdæ 1650, p. 934. The ed. Fref. a. M. et Lps. 1685, p. 934 has cum liberis excussit [sic]. The first ed. Lps. 1605, p. 968 says, without quoting Chyt. and without naming Constantino: exustus est, qui adfuerat Carolo patri morienti.

59) Constantino's Doctrina Christiana translated into Italian.

La vita dell' invittissimo imperator Carlo Quinto; descritta da Alfonso Ulloa . . Venetia . . M D LX. [STRASSBURG Univ.]. Preface dated Venice 1 March 1560. Libro quarto, p. 520, speaking of the celebrated persons who accompanied prince Philip on his travel from Spain in 1548: Nella Theologia lo seguiron Don Pietro di Castro Vescovo di Salamanca, Cappellano maggiore di su' Altezza; Il Dottor Constantino gran filosofo, & profundissimo Theologo, & de' piu signalati nel pulpito & eloquenza, che sono stati al mondo da gran tempo in qua, come si uede chiaro per le opere che egli scrisse degne del suo diuino ingegno, & spetialmente per la Dottrina Christiana, che tratta sopra gli articoli della fede: la quale habbiamo tradotto in questa lingua. Nella Jurisprudentia . . . The eulogy of Doctor Constantino is translated from Calvete de Estrella, see above here p. 11; Ulloa only changed profundo into profundissimo, and ingenio into diuino ingegno, and added the passage following this word. It would seem he states he translated the larger Doctrina Christiana, of which the only part which has been printed treats, as the title states: de los articulos de la fe (see below n° 184), the smaller Summa de doctrina Christiana by the same author treating also the ten commandments &c. Ulloa does not state whether he got his translation printed, and we may therefore conclude that it was not printed at that time. — Also the second passage of Calvete on Constantino, on his embarkation with Doria and his sermon on All Saints day, is reproduced by Ulloa. I did not copy it from the edition of 1560 and now transcribe the last words of the passage from the edition of 1566, fol. 245: Quiui si celebrò l'officio diuino con gran solennità, & predicò con quella eccellenza, & dottrina che suol far sempre il Dottor Constantino. Both passages are repeated still in the edition Venice 1606.

The Spanish Inquisition had already ordered the cancellation of the words praising Constantino. Index librorum expurgatorum, . . . Gasparis Quiroga . . . iussu editus . . . Juxta exemplar . . . Fol. 243: quitesse desde las parabrazas“ [sic]. „El Doctor Constantino, d.e. hasta traduxo en esta lengua assi en la dicha impression, como en qualquiera otra: y en qualquiera lengua que el dicho libro se halle.“ The same in the Index expurg. . . Index Sandoral y Rojas, Madrid 1612, reprint Panormi 1628, prohib. part p. 11, among the books en castellano: „Alonso de Vilhoa,“ [on the next page, with reference to this article: Vilhoa] „en la vida del Emperador Carlos V. impressa en Venecia año de 1573. casi à la tercera parte del libro quarto, se quiten de dos lugares las alabanzas de Constantino de la Fuente, Auctor condenado, I lo mismo se haga en la impression de lengua Italiana, y en otra qualquier impression, y lengua.“ Llorente in the Historia de la Inq. de Esp. Madrid 1822. capit. 21. t. 4, p. 264 writes: Alfonso de Ulloa, en la vida de Carlos V, alaba mucho las obras de Constantino, y con especialidad la doctrina cristiana que se habia traducido al italiano. The note to which reference is made at the end of this passage, contains only the quotation: Vilhoa, Vita di Carlo V, edicion de Venecia del año 1589. pag. 237. The same passage, with the quotation Venice 1589, p. 237, in the French translation of Llorente's History, traduite sur le manuscrit et sous les yeux de l'auteur, t. 2. 1817. p. 278, also in the second edition 1818, and in the Italian translation from the French by Ticozzi 1820 and several times. By doctrina cristiana (French traité de la Doctrine Chrétienne) Llorente means the Suma de la doctrina cristiana, not the Dialogo de doctrina cristiana entre maestro y discipulos (write discipulo), as he had some lines before called the two books, following the prohibitory decree of 1559 (see here below p. 26), where, however, Suma means the larger work of which only the first volume has appeared (the French translator of Llorente's History gives Suma by Abrégé).

M'Crie, History of the Reformation in Spain, 1829, p. 214, speaking of Dr. Constantino's Summary of Christian doctrine (meaning the larger sum, which, however, in note † he confounds with the smaller one): The work was translated into Italian, and has been highly praised by some Roman catholic writers. In the note ‡ at the foot of the page, he quotes: Ulloa, Vita di Carlo V. p. 237. Joan. Pineda, Comment. in Fab. Justiniani Indic. Univ. praef. cap. XIII. sect. 6. Neither Pineda nor Giustiniani say anything about an Italian translation of a book of Dr. Constantino's nor do they mention at all his doctrinal works; probably M'Crie did not intend to quote these authors for the former part of his sentence. As for the second part, we shall enquire hereafter (p. 29). M'Crie does not say here in which edition of Ulloa's Vita di Carlo V, nor does he quote this book in any other place of his two volumes on the Reformation in Spain and in Italy. M'Crie's words have been simply reprinted in the new edition edited by his son, 1856, p. 103.

Adolfo de Castro, Historia p. 275: Escribió Un diálogo de doctrina cristiana entre maestro y discipulos, que se prohibió por Valdés y que fué traducido al idioma italiano, segun dice Alonso de Ulloa en la Vida de Carlos V. (Venecia, 1589).

It is singular that Llorente, M^cCrie and de Castro all refer to the edition Venice 1589, whilst there exist so many editions of the book.) Now, in the edition Venice 1589 of Ulloa's life of Charles V [ROME, University library = Alexandrina] the pages are not numbered, but the leaves, and on fol. 237 nothing at all is said of Constantino Ponce de la Fuente. It is clear that M^cCrie simply copied Llorente. And de Castro did the same (he has Llorente's discipulos); if he had read the passage of Ulloa, he would most likely not have said, that the Christian doctrine (de Castro mistakes it for the dialogue) had been translated into Italian as Ulloa stated, but: that Ulloa had translated it. As for Llorente himself, he does not state but what he could derive from Ulloa, whom he quotes and whom he really must have read; there is only some mistake in the reference to the place where Ulloa's statement is to be found in his book.*

We have therefore no trace of Ulloa's translation being ever printed. We may, on the contrary, take it for certain that it never was printed. The translator, who does not seem to have got it published before he edited in 1560 his life of the Emperor, will not have ventured to issue it afterwards, for in the same year Constantino was condemned and his corpse was burnt. Ulloa, when praising the Imperial preacher, was doubtless unaware that he was already in the Inquisitorial prison.

Royal privilege of 1548, printed with Constantino's Doctrina Seville 1548:

Por quanto por parte de vos el Doctor Constantino vezino de la ciudad de Sevilla me fue hecha relacion, diziendo que vos por servicio de dios nuestro señor hezistes y ordenastes cinco libros, intitulados el uno Confession de un pecador, y otro Doctrina christiana, y otro Exposicion del primer psalmo de David, Beatus vir, y otra [sic] Summa de doctrina christiana, y otro Catecismo christiano para instruir los niños: que eran obras muy provechosas para estos reynos: los quales avian sido vistos y examinados por los inquisidores, y ellos los avian aprobado, y vos los aviades imprimido a vuestra costa como por ellos parecia, suplicandome . . .

In the Prefacion to the same Doctrina the author says: tengo proposito si la divina bondad fuere servida, de añadir algunos sermones de principales materias contra los mas ordinarios vicios, y de exhortacion para las mas necesarias virtudes: con una exposicion de las Epistolas y Evangelios que por el curso del año se proponen en la yglesia. And in the preface to the psalms 1546: Sea esto como aviso para la lecion de la scriptura presente, y para la de otras de su calidad, si fuere Dios servido que salgan a luz.

Gonsalvius Montanus says in his Inquisitionis Artes 1567, p. 294 f.: Extant illius scripta typis edita multoties, Parva doctrinae (Christianae summa.)) Item Magna,) sed dimidia sui parte imperfecta . . . Edidit praeterea Catechismum) . . . Extant et sex illius conciones in totidem versus Psalmi primi Davidis . . . hominis peccatoris Confessio . . . This last one he prefers to all the before named books. Already on a preceding occasion he had spoken of some manuscripts, p. 283 f.: Accepit primo Salomonis libros, Proverbia, Ecclesiasten et Cantica canticorum atque his . . . explicatis, librum Jobi est aggressus, quem ultra medium interpretando perduxit. Extant ipsius in hos libros praelectiones omnes manu scriptae . . . quos cum vulgaverimus, . . . de summa viri eruditione certius iudicari poterit. His dogmatical manuscript, which had fallen in the hands of the Inquisitors (ib. p. 289 f.), was probably destroyed.*

Gonsalvius is evidently the source for Simler's article in Gesner's Bibliotheca, Tiguri 1574, p. 146 (article with a star and not found in the edition Tiguri 1545 nor in the Epitome bibliothecae Gesneri by Lycosthenes, locupletata per Jos. Simlerum, Tiguri 1555): Constantinus Fontius in summo templo Hispalensi canonicus, concionator, scripsit Parvam doctrinae Christianae summam. Magnum Catechismum. Conciones 6. in totidem versus Psalmi primi Davidis. Hominis peccatoris confessionem. Commentaria in Salomonis Proverbia, Ecclesiasten, Cantica canticorum. Item in librum Job. It is clear that instead of Magnum Catechismum there must at least be written Magnam. Catechismum. The whole article, including that mistake, is simply repeated not only in Frisius' edition, ibid. 1583, p. 173, but also in Posseviui Apparatus sacer, t. 1, Venet. 1606, p. 679, and Coloniae Agripp. 1608, p. 383.†) And still in Nic. Antonio's second edition we find Magnum Catechismum.

The just mentioned Bibliotheca instituta a Conr. Gesnero, amplificata per Jo. Jac. Frisium Tiguri 1583 has on the same p. 173 a second article on the same Constantino, separated from the above copied article by other articles on other writers; it has a star, the sign that it is not found in the former editions: Constantini Doctoris Theologiae expositio in Psalmum primum, in sex conciones distributa, Hispanice. Antuerpiae, anno 1556. Eiusdem summa Christianae doctrinae. Antuerpiae, in octavo, Hispanice.

Nic. Antonio's Bibl. Hisp. has in both editions the following: Summam Christianae doctrinae. Antverpiae in 8. vulgari Hispanico sermone, ut notat author Supplementi Gesnerianae Bibliothecae. Expositionem in Psalmum I. Davidis in VI. conciones distributam. Ibidem 1556. etiam Hispanice, ut refert proxime adductus author. Qui tamen in Psalmum quinquagesimum scriptam fuisse affirmare videtur. Nec difficilis est lapsus ab I in L. Hominis peccatoris Confessionem, nisi idem sit opus cum Expositione Psalmi L. I do not know in what supplement Antonio may have found that lapsus. In Verdier's supplement 1585 I find nothing on Dr. Constantino.

*) Here Daniel Gerdes, reprinting this part of Gons. in 1754 in his Scrinium antiquarium, t. 4, part. 1, p. 660 says in a note: Dolendum est horum librorum nihil amplius superesse, aut in nostris oris esse cognitum.

) Constantino himself did not call it Magna Summa, but he distinguished it from the breve summa as a mas largo y mas copioso tractado (prologo to the Sermon on the Mount, Usóx p. 240. 241).

In Bibliotheca classica. Authore M. Georgio Dravdio. Francofurti. M. DC. XI. are mentioned, among exegetical books, Constantini Fontii commentaries to the Song of songs (p. 225), Job (p. 296), Proverbs (p. 344), the first psalm (p. 352), and (p. 255) Constantini Foretij commentary to Ecclesiastes, Foretij by mistake instead of Fontij. This mistake of Draudius recurs in two publications of Fab. Giustiniani, who no doubt copied Draudius, not naming him, however, as his authority. The Elenchvs auctorum qui in sacra biblia . . . scripserunt . . . Fabiani Iustiniani Genvensis. appended to the same author's Index vniversalis. Romae MD. CXII. [ROME Vittorio Emanuele] has Constantini Fontij commentaries on Job, first psalm, Proverbs, Song of songs, and Constantini Foretij on Ecclesiastes. In De sacra scriptura eiusque usu ac interpretibus commentarius auctore Fabiano Iustiniano. Romae 1614. [PALERMO Comunale]. Liber tertius seu catalogus vniversalis, p. 30. 36. 48. 54. 57. Constantino's commentaries are mentioned just as in the same author's book of 1612, and, as there, so also here p. 54: Constantini Foretij on Ecclesiastes.

Ioannis de Pineda Hispalensis e societate Jesu in Ecclesiasten commentariorum liber vnus. Hispali 1619. [PALERMO Comunale]. In Praefatio, cap. XIII, §. VI, p. 43: Legas etiam apud Fabianum, Constantini Foretij in Ecclesiasten Commentaria: sed insigni mendo Scriptoris, aut Typographi; quod iterum incorrectum prodijt posteriori eiusdem Fabiani Commentario de Sacra Scriptura, eiusque usu ac Interpretibus, Romae 1614. Ergo sciendum pro Foretio legi omnino debere Fontium. nam is ille est Constantin. Fontius, damnatus auctor, qui cum ex Anglicana et Germanica peregrinatione multum Lutheranae scabiei contraxisset, convexissetque eo unde profectus fuerat, non prius curari potuit, quam salutifero Sanctae Inquisitionis igne eius ossa, ante annos 60 plus minusve, Hispali publice concremarentur. Scripserat vero nescio quas in Proverb. et Ecclesiasten meditationes. The same in the edition of this Commentary of Pineda Antverpiæ 1620 [VIENNA Court] p. 38. Usóz Rf. Esp. 19, 437 f., quotes the same passage, part of it in translation, the words nam f. in Latin, from the edition Parisiis 1620.

There is no trace that Constantino's commentaries ever were printed, and according to all probability the manuscripts are entirely lost. Certainly not one of them who have spoken of these commentaries after Gonsalvius Montanus, has seen them either printed or in manuscript.

It now appears that M'Crie's quotation (here p. 26): Joan. Pineda, Comment. in Fab. Justiniani Indic. Univ. praef. cap. XIII. sect. 6. must mean the remarks on Fab. Giustiniani's Universal Index, made cap. XIII, §. VI of the Preface of John Pineda to his Commentary on Ecclesiastes (which is not the only commentary he wrote). But Giustiniani and Pineda are not to be quoted as Roman catholic authors who highly praised Constantino's Summary of Christian doctrine. For of this work they do not speak at all, and as for Constantino's commentaries of which they speak, Giustiniani only mentions them without praising or blaming the books or the author, and Pineda, who mentions two of the commentaries, gives it to be understood that he does not know them, and only reprobates the condemned author.

Summary of Christian doctrine, four editions, and Christ's Sermon on the mount, four editions.

The Valladolid index of 1559 prohibits among the books en Romance Constantino's Dialogo de Doctrina christiana, entre el maestro y el discipulo.

178. 1544. Summary, first edition.

The upper half of the title-page is occupied by the weapon of a cardinal, no doubt of Don Garcia de Loaysa. In the lower half on each side an angel; between the angels, below, an ornament containing the letters IC which no doubt mean Juan Cromberger. Between the four engravings, each of which is framed separately, is read the title, the first word between two ornamental leaves:

Suma | de doctrina christiana | en que se contiene todo | lo
principal y neces- | sario que el hōbre | christiano de- | ue saber: y | obrar . . .

Under the engravings, between two leaves: Con priuilegio imperial. All the words on the title are in red, as is also the punctuation. Octavo.

Second leaf: Lo que este libro principalmente contiene. On the back begins the dedication Al illustrissimo y reuerendissimo señor Don Garcia d' loaysa Cardenal de sancta Susaña: Arçobispo de Seuilla: Del cōsejo de su magestad y su p̄sidete. &c. which ends on the second page of the next leaf with the subscription: Sieruo y capellan de vuestra señoria illustrissima. Constantino.

Fourth leaf: Al letor christiano. Ends on sheet 2, leaf iiij, p. 1: cada dia mas nos obligo. where follows Aqui comienza la tabla delos capitulos. The contents of the chapters begin on the next page and end on the first page of the seventh leaf with chapter 52. The second page of the seventh leaf and the whole eighth leaf blank.

Text of the dialogue (with the inscription Las personas . .) folio [i] — clxvj. End: El quede con vos. | Deo gracias. With marginal contents. On the back of the last leaf of the text:

MUNICH Royal. On the cover the following words printed in gold: DOCTRINA XPANA. BARTOLOME MAY.

Wiffen in the Notice of Constantino prefixed to Betts' translation of the Confession of a sinner, p. 32 registers a „not discovered“ edition of the Summa „Serilla 1540 (?)“ We did not know the edition of 1544.

179. 1545. Summary, second edition, with Sermon on the mount, first edition.

This description according to the facsimile in t. 19 of the Reformistas Españ., which is taken from the copy in the Royal library at BRUSSELS. Wiffen says: „The book is in Gothic letter (26 lines in a page), the title and last page only are in Roman letter. The colophon is on the recto of folio 179; on the reverse is the figure of Hercules and a motto as on the title.“

The Sermon on the mount is an addition to this edition. From the introduction to the Sermon it would appear that it had not been printed before.

180. 1550? Summary, third edition, with Sermon on the mount, second edition.

MUNICH Royal (The blank leaf is folded back so as to appear between the Tabla and the Dialogue). VIENNA Court (several leaves misplaced). I bought a copy for 25 francs from Tross at Paris, in whose Catalogue de livres anciens, année 1869 — N° III contenant des livres provenant en partie de la bibliothèque de l'empereur Maximilien de Mexique, it is found p. 224, n° 1890. Old calf-binding; on both covers the Imperial double-headed eagle with crown, in contemporaneous gold-pressing. On the title is written H. I. V. Laberzsch [?], by the same hand which wrote the same name on the titles of two other works of Constantino now in the Munich library, see here below n°s 205 and 208.

No doubt this edition is meant by the description Nic. Ant. 1. 1783 p. 256 (added in the second edition): „Hispana operis inscriptio: Suma de doctrina Christiana. Cui subijcitur: El Sermon de Christo nuestro Redemptor en el monte, traducido por el mismo Autor, con declaraciones: ad Garsiam de Louisa S. R. E. cardinalem, Hispanensem antistitem. Antuerpiæ apud Martinum Nutium absque anni mentione.“

The incomplete copy preserved in Trinity library DUBLIN seems to be of this edition. There are wanting the title with the blank front-leaf and folios 121 to 133 incl., according to a description found amongst Wiffen's papers. Compare Usóz, Rf. Esp. XIX, p. 420 f., and what Wiffen says in the Constantino list printed with Betts' translation of Constantino's Confession p. 34, where, however, the number 155 in line 10 appears to be a mistake for 134, see Usóz l. c.; and the size is not decimo as W. says l. 3, following his above mentioned description, which nevertheless contains statements evidently proving that the Dublin copy is in octavo.

The ms. copy made for Usóz from the Dublin copy (see Rf. Esp. 19, 420 f.) is now in the National library at Madrid (Menendez p. 426).

The above mentioned catalogue of Tross remarks: s. a. (vers 1550). I think the reprint was begun after Constantino's arrival in the Low-Countries.

181. 1551. Summary, fourth edition, with Sermon on the mount, third edition.

Svmma de | doctrina Christiana. | En q̄ se cõtiene todo | lo principal y neccessa | rio q̄ el hõbre christia | no deue saber y obrar | Tambien el sermõ de | christo nuestro redẽp- | tor enel monte. | Por el D. Constantino. | This title, black and red, last line Gothic, is in an architectural frame. Under this one, between two crosses: Con priuilegio. | Colophon, Gothic, on fol. ccxiii verso: Fin de la summa de doctrina | christiana, compuesta por el do- | ctor Constantino: impressa | en Seuilla por Chris | toual aluarez: a | XXVIII. de mar | ço año de | 1551. |

This description according to the title-facsimile in t. 19 of the Rf. Esp., taken from a copy in possession of Usóz which now is in the MADRID National library.

The commentary upon the Sermon on the mount has at the end additional matter wanting in the edition of 1545 and in that of Antwerp.

The passage in the introduction to the Sermon on the mount, where the publication of the larger Doctrine is promised, is read even in this edition (Rf. Esp. 19, p. 240, cf. 421), although the larger Doctrine had appeared three years ago. The passage was simply reprinted here, and so is probably the whole work on the Sermon on the mount.

In the Corrigenda of M'Crie's Ref. in Spain, ed. 1856, p. 211 is said, that a copy of Constantino's Suma, Antwerp 1556 is in the Bodleian, Oxford. No doubt the book indicated is the Doctrina of 1554—5, here below n° 209; no other work of Constantino is found in the printed catalogue of the Bodleian library, see Catal. libror. impress. bbth. Bodlei., vol. I. 1843, p. 594.

182. 1556. Sermon on the mount, fourth edition.

Constantino's translation of the Sermon on the mount and the Doctor's notes are reprinted, with some variations and without Constantino's name, together with Luis de Granada's Guia de pecadores, Lisboa 1556. See Usóz Rf. Esp. XIX, p. 425 f.

Prohibited Valladolid 1559.

In the privilege of 1548, the Confession is placed first of Constantino's writings which were then printed.

183. The first edition was probably anonymous. At all events there existed an edition without the author's name; this is proved by the prohibitory notice of 1559, see above here p. 27, and also the Index Sandoval y Rojas 1612, reprint Palermo 1628, Prohib. p. 24 has among books En Castellano: Confession del Peccador de Constantino de la Fuente, autor condenado, ò sin nombre de autor. and p. 27 (under the same head: En Castellano:) Cõfession del Peccador. vide lit. C. Clas. 2. Confession del peccador, &c.

184. It would appear from the same notices that there existed a separate edition with the author's name.

Catecismo.

Prohibited Valladolid 1559.

Printed earlier than the privilege of 1548.

The dedication to Temiño, bishop of Leon, appears to have been written for the first edition. On September 10. 1546 Temiño was consecrated for the church of Leon, while he was staying at Seville where he had just taken possession of the archbishopric in the name of Fern. Valdés (Usóz, Rf. Esp. XIX, 428).

De la Serna Santander possessed a copy of this edition. In his Catalogue des livres de la bibliotheque de M. C. de la Serna Santander, t. 1, Bruxelles, an XI (1803) [Halle Univ.], p. 186, n° 751, he gives this title: Catecismo christiano compuesto por el doctor Constantino. IV): „It has commanded the admiration of three successive martyrologists,“ with the note: „Rabo in German, Crespin in Latin, Goulart in French,“ and again (p. 36): „in Latin, in Crespin's Acta martyrum 1560.“ As for Goulart, the statement is right, his editions of the Geneva martyrology 1582 f. contain Constantino's confession, but Crespin's Latin and Rabus neither translate it nor mention it.

In the Syllabus the title of the translation is given thus: Constantini Foncei Hispani Caroli V. Imp. olim concionatoris, Theologiæ Doctoris, & postea martyris, ingenua and so on as above.

A few notes not found in the French are added: 1582, fol. 508: m'as nettoyé avec l'eau purifiée en ton précieux sang. Chyt.: abluisti me aquâ pretioso sanguine tuo purgatâ, in the margin: Rectius, Aquâ pretiosi sanguinis tui. — 1582, fol. 509 verso: q̄ l'hōme est vray Dieu, puis q̄ tu es vray homme. Marg.: Haec sententia sanū intellectum postulat, ut illud 2 Pet. 1. v. 4. Divinæ consortes naturæ. — 1582, fol. 510 verso: i'ay faite moy seul des biens qu'as departis à tous. At the word solum the marginal note: Id est, maxime omnium. In the next sentence: ta mort est toute mienne, marg.: Sic tamen, ut cæterorum quoq; electorum singulorum tota sit.

Preface of the book dated Bremâ, prid. Calend. Septemb. 1594.

Nathan Chytræus was a brother of the well known David Chytræus.

The same, reprinted. The only differences in the title are the year 1608 and the following divisions: consola- | tionis . . et [instead of &] | nostri martyrum | quoq; . . ; after thesauris full stop. The title in the Syllabus as above. The same text p. 108—134 with the same marginals and the same inscription (only confessio instead of cōfessio). Octavo.

The Hercules of the colophon is different from that on the title. Both differ from that on the title of Constantino's Summa, impressa en Seuilla en casa de Juan de Leon in 1545, where also the inscription at the emblem: Labor oīa vincit. Probably the sermons were likewise printed by Juan de Leon.

Usóz, Reform. Esp. XIX, p. 433 describes a copy of apparently this same edition, bearing in the colophon M. D. LIII, on the title D. M. LIII. Usóz adds: [Así, en vez de MD. LIII]. (In Wiffen's list prefixed to Betts' translation of Constantino's Confession p. 36, line 1 there is a misprint in the year D. M. LIII, notwithstanding the sic; it ought to be D. M. LIII).

The National library at MADRID has a copy of the Doctrina Chr. in the Usóz collection (Menendez 430), it is perhaps that which has D. M. LIII on the title.

CALVIN'S CATECHISM AND LITURGY.

THE earliest Protestant Spaniard we find in Geneva, is the translator of Calvin's catechism from French into Spanish. In the preface, dated 1550, he begs, that, should his Spanish be found defective, it may be pardoned on account of his absence from Spain, which had been so long that a man of more lively intelligence than himself might have been estranged from the native language.¹ Nothing is known about the person of the translator, but what he himself says in his prologue, reprinted here below (n° 211). Nor do we know anything of him, who revised this Spanish catechism in 1559 and added the second half of the volume, containing prayers, instructions and liturgical formularies, likewise translated from the French, with small supplements.² In 1596 Cipriano de Valera made a new edition of the whole, slightly revised.

From the formulary of the public service added to the edition of 1559 we see that the congregation sang psalms.³ It is uncertain whether they were printed.⁴

1) Wiffen thought that Juan Perez was the author of the Spanish Geneva catechisms of 1550 and 1559, and the Strassburg editors of Calvin's letters are of the same opinion (Corp. Rf. vol. 48, col. 615. I reprint the passage in a note to my biography of Perez, below here). It is, however, wholly incredible that Perez should speak thus, who many years afterwards, without ever having returned to Spain, wrote works confidently in the Spanish tongue and wrote it elegantly too (elegante escritor, says Menendez p. 458).

2) The prayers added in the catechism of 1559, p. 140 f. from the French, are not a reproduction of those in Perez's catechism of 1556 which are taken from the same original.

3) P. 3: cantan algun Psalmo los que estan congregados. P. 10: cantan todos algun Psalmo. P. 40: cantan en la congregacion algunos Psalmos. The last of these three sentences occurs also in Valera's Dos tratados, see below here n° 214 f.

4) Felix Bovet: Histoire du psautier des églises réformées. Neuchatel and Paris 1872, unaware of the passages in the Spanish Forma printed already in 1559 and of the repetition in the Dos tratados, concludes p. 104 f. from some Latin verses at the head of Spethe's Psalter of 1596, according to which the psalms of Beza and Marot were sung also by the Spaniards, that there seems to have existed an edition of Juan le Quesne's psalmos metrificados anterior to that of 1606 [PARIS Geneviève and elsewhere, known also to Wiffen] which he registers among the Traductions des psaumes de Marot et de Bèze. He thinks the undated edition mentioned by Adler might be such an anterior one. J. G. C. Adler: Bibliotheca biblica Württembergensium duceis. Altonæ 1787. Appdx II. P. 45: In Octavo. Los Psalmos de David metrificados [write -cados] en lengua Castellana per [write por] Juan le Quesne. (Sine arce & loci indicio). When I asked for this book at Stuttgart, it was not found, not even in the old catalogue; it seems therefore to have been lost long ago. Compare on the edition of 1606: Rodr. de Castro Bibl. Esp. 1, 471—2 and Baumgarten Nachrichten von einer Hallischen Biblth. Bd. 2, p. 486—7. Bôvet who says: Nous n'avons rien pu découvrir sur l'auteur, thinks him a Frenchman, certainly on account of his name.

John Calvin is of course a first class prohibited author, see Roman Index of 1558; and besides there is prohibited there this formulary for public prayers for the sacraments and for marriage, in Italian, among Incertorum auctorum libri prohibiti. The Sandoral y Rojas Index 1612, Palermo reprint 1628, Prohib. p. 27: Catecismo, que significa, forma de instruccion, que contiene los principios de la Religion de Dios, &c.

Prologo [so called in the column-title p. 4—7] of the Catechismo. Tradladado de Frances en Español. 1550. [From the Göttingen copy].

Al myv illvstre señor, el señor .N. el tradlador. Salud en nuestro Señor Jesv Christo.

Hauiendo me Dios (por su misericordia infinita) sacado del abismo de superstitiones & ydolatrias en que tanto tiempo he estado, y reduzido me al conocimiento de su sancta Palabra y voluntad, manifestada al mundo por Jesv Christo su Hijo vnico, bina ymagen y nuestro solo Señor y redeptor. Por salir totalmente del peligro y daño spiritual, que me podia succeder communicando con los que tan poco cuydado tienen del reposo de sus cōsciencias, siguiendo la informacion de muchos que hauian ya experimentado la doctrina delos lugares donde el sancto Euangelio se predica, yo procure por todos los medios posibles de recoger me a esta ciudad enla qual este exercicio respaldece mas que en ninguna otra de la Christianidad, para seguir la profession a que Dios me hauia llamado, y librarme detre las manos de aquellos, que hauiendo se declarado enemigos de Jesv Christo, persiguen cō tal vehemencia a los que dessean seguir sus pisadas. | Siendo pues por la gracia de Dios llegado ala dicha ciudad, yo he por algunos dias oydo la doctrina de aquellos, a quien Dios ha escogido para el ministerio de su sancto Euangelio. Por medio de los quales los fieles son de tal manera enseñados, que no podrian dexar de recebir grandissima vtilidad, si del todo no quisiessen menospreciar su doctrina, y el exemplo dela honestidad con que bien. Yo de mi parte conozco verdaderamente, que Dios confirmādo en mī su misericordia, sin tener respecto a mī indignidad, permete quel desseo que tēgo de aprouechar enesta sancta doctrina se acreciente de dia en dia, de donde me redunda vna tal consolacion, que causaria en mi spiritu entero contentamiento, si viesse todos los hombres del mundo reducidos a este conocimiento. Especialmente la nacion Española, la qual o por falta de instruction, o por ser tan oprimida de los inquisidores de la fe, esta tã agena del. Pero como el remedio desto pertenezca a solo Dios. Denemos suplicarle que se sirua de sacarles de vna ignorancia tan dañosa a sus consciencias, y que de, la gracia, a aquellos que ya estan fuera della de ayudarles, comunicando conellos, la vtilidad dela doctrina Euangelica, de que son enseñados enesta ciudad. Y yo aunque el menor y mas indigno de todos, con-[catchword stri-] striñendo me a ello la charidad Christiana, y la obligacion que como Español les tengo, he procurado (segun la medida de la gracia que ha plazido a nuestro Señor comunicarme) de buscar los medios mas necesarios, para que conociendo el error y engaños en que estan engolfados, puedan seguramente venir al puerto de la pura verdad, contenida enel sancto Euangelio que Jesu Christo nuestro Señor nos dexo, como verdadero camino que derechamēte nos guia a la vida perdurable. Para lo qual, entre muchos libros en que la declaracion desta sancta doctrina se contiene (los quales yo he visto y escudriñado,) segun mī juyzio no he hallado vno, que mas succinta y compendiosamente, tracte aquello que me parece mas necesario a la instruction de los pobres ignorantes, quel Catechismo, o formulario, con que los ministros, o predicadores desta yglesia enseñan & instruyen los moachos questan debaxo de su gouierno, en los puntos y articulos mas importantes y necesarios a los Christianos. El qual con la ayuda y fauor de Dios, yo he traduzido de Frances en lengua Española, para que todos los de aquella nacion (a cuya noticia viniere) puedan gozar de lo que enel se cōtiene, y seguir la regla infallible que enel se les da. Y porque esto no se podria buenamente ha | zer sin vn gran numero de libros, para que el prouecho fuesse mas general, considerādo que mi facultad no se estiende a poder le hazer imprimir, por no quedar me en medio del camino, y que por falta mia no dexe de auer lugar, el biē y vtilidad que soy cierto procedera dello, con la ayuda de nuestro buen Dios. He determinado dedicarle y ofrecerle a .V. S. muy Illustre como a verdadero medio, para effectuar mi intencion. Y como a aquel a quien la gloria de Dios, y el acrecentamiento del Reyno de Jesu Christo son tan encarecidamete encomendados. Suplicandole se sirua de acceptar el presente, conel zelo que me ha mouido a hazer se le. Y que si .V. S. hallare en la traduction algun descuydo, que de, occasion de burlarse a aquellos quen la lengua Española son mas auisados que yo, que escusando me, lo atribuya a la larga ausencia que yo he hecho de España, la qual hauria bien podido diuertir vn entendimiento mas abuiado quel mio. Con protestacion quel sentido de lo que eneste libro se trata, ha sido enteramete guardado. Y assi soy cierto que estando debaxo del fauor y protection de .V. S. no podra dexar de ser accepto y agradable a los que le leyeren, y que la materia de que trata, sera causa de alumbrar muchos entedimientos ciegos, y de enseñar los ignorantes. Para que siguiedo la doctrina de Jesu Christo [catchword nuestro] nuestro Señor que enel se les presenta, vègan al verdadero conoscimiento de Dios, por do su sanctissimo nombre sea por siempre ensalçado y glorificado.

Great sedecimo, 271 pages.

Preface of 12 pages, probably by the translator, not furnishing historical circumstances. This catechism is translated from Calvin's larger catechisme. The translator may have been Cyprian de Valera.

All this I relate from Johann Bartholomäus Riederer: Nachrichten zur Kirchen- Gelehrten- und Bücher-Geschichte, Dritter Band. Zwölftes Stück; Altdorf 1766, p. 475 f. where details are given as to contents.

Having compared Riederer's extracts with the Spanish of 1559, I state that the identity is complete; the differences are almost throughout insignificant, the only word changed being Caliz, instead of which the reprint gives copa. The revisor and editor was certainly Valera.

A copy in Bachelin-Deflorenne's Catalogue 1872, n° 2439. Usóz possessed a copy, according to Wiffen.

Wiffen noticed: „Catechismo que significa, 8vo, 1586, mentioned in the auction catalogue of Richard Davis p. 142 n° 541“ and „Catechismo que significa forma de Instruccion, 8vo, 1569, mentioned in the catalogue of the sale of Dr. John Warner, bishop of Rochester's books, London 1684/5, p. 29“. Probably 1586 and 1569 are misprints for 1596.

The Lord's Supper extracted from the catechism of 1559 in Cipriano de Valera's Dos tratados of 1588 p. 458—466. It is exactly the same, what in the reprint of the edition of 1599 on p. 529—537; only the orthography is changed and a superfluous marginal quotation is suppressed on p. 532 of the reprint, and on p. 537 the number of the versc is added where 1588 only has Num. 6.

In Valera's Dos tratados, second edition 1599, p. 529—537, the Forma que se tiene de celebrar la sancta cena is reprinted. Valera says p. 531: pondre aqui el orden que se tiene en nuestras Iglesias, que Dios . . . ha en nuestros tiempos reformado, quando se celebra la santa Cena. Usóz in his reprint of Valera's Dos tratados in the note to p. 531: Toda esta Forma de la Zena, desde esta paj. 531 hasta la 537, es igual á lo que se lee desde la páj. 233 á 242 en el Catecismo, imp. tambien por Ricardo del Campo . . . el a. 1596, 3.^a Ed. Valera's text agrees with p. 32—41 and 11 of the edition of 1559; the variations are unimportant. In the passage from 1 Cor. 11, p. 529—530 of Valera, the version of the edition of 1559 has in some places been altered, already in the edition of 1588, in the same way as in Valera's N. T. of 1596 (recebi for aprendi; copa for caliz).

SUMARIO DE INDULGENCIAS.

THE evangelical Summary of Indulgences, which appeared in Spanish about the middle of the 16th century, is a cleverly composed and powerfully written tract.

The translation and the division of the Ten commandments is not that of the Sumario de doctrina by Juan Perez,¹ published in 1556, but that of the translation of Calvin's catechism, although not without differences, nor does the Summary of Indulgences follow the edition of 1559 of the catechism, but that of 1550.²

In all probability, the Bull forged by the heretics which in the beginning of the year 1558 Peter Veller confessed to have carried to the Netherlands (see our following article on Juan Perez) was nothing else but this Summary of Indulgences.³

Most likely it was remodelled from a French original.

1) to whom Wiffen and Usóz were inclined and at last were satisfied to attribute the Sumario de indulgencias. See Rf. Esp. XVIII, title and p. 38; the list of the reprinted Ref. Esp. in t. XX; and Bth. Wiff. vol. 1, p. 35 f.

2) In command. 4: estrangero que está de tus puertas adentro. 1550: questa. 1559: que mora.

(It is not Reyna's translation).

I may notice here that in 1568 or 69 Henry Denham got the Stationers' license for printing of the X commandements in spanyssh. See A transcript of the registers of the Company of Stationers of London 1554—1640. Edited by Edward Arber. Vol. 1. London 1875. P. 385.

3) Usóz in the list of Rf. Esp. in t. XX gives the date 1560 for the Sum. de Ind., not, however, without a sign of interrogation.

In Rf. Esp. XVIII, p. xviii is mentioned un tratadillo en Franzés, semejante en Título i Conclusión, á la Obra española, i que, en sustanzia, presenta coincidenzias, mas o menos próximas, con el „Breve sumario“. Half the title of the volume which contains this tratadillo is given there, but not the title of the tratadillo itself. I used the copy in the GENEVA library (bound together with the

Theophile Dufour in the work on Calvin's catechism of 1537, Geneva 1878, p. CCXI f., gives this title: Les grans pardons & indulgences, le tresgrand Iubile de plainiére remissio(n) de peine & de coulpe a tous les confraires de la tressacree co(n)-frairie du saint esperit . . . Nouvellem(e)n(t) imprime a Gand par Pieter van winghue. Dufour thinks it printed at Geneva before the 29 April 1534.

Du Plessis d'Argentré Collectio judiciorum de novis erroribus, t. 2. 1728, p. 177 among books censured by the Parisian theological Faculty in 1551: Le grand pardon de pleniére rémission pour toutes personnes, durant à toujourns, imprimé a Geneve par Adam & Jehan Rivery, 1550. Dufour does not know whether this is the same work as the above grans pardons. In Bibliothèques françaises, ed. Juignyn, III. 1773. p. 376: Le grand PARDON & pleniére Rémission pour toutes personnes & durant à perpétuité; imprimé à Genève par Adam & Jean Riveri, 1550.

The same Rivery got in 1560 the license for printing Le grand pardon dit du pape, as Dufour reports.

Questi sono i gran perdoni & indulgentie della plenaria remissione di pena et di colpa concesdute a tutte le chiese et tempj di Dio per tutti i Christiani i quali sono sotto il cielo. Many copies of this tract were found in the possession of Lucio Paolo Roselli, as is stated in the law-suit of the S. Ufficio di Venice against him in 1551. See Benrath in the Jahrbücher für protestant. Theologie 1882, p. 184. I should think also this Italian tract derived from the French grans pardons.

notice by Vergerio on the composition of the Papal Bulls. He says with reference to the following Ablass of Christ: hat sich ein trewer diener Jhesu Christi vnderfangen, nach fûrgestelter ordnung der puncten oft gemelter Bâpstlicher Bullen mit diser kurtzen schrift, lautter darzûthûn, wie sie dem wort Gottes gantz vnd gar zûwider. The resemblance of the Breve sumario de indulgencias with this little work reproduced by Vergerio is striking as for the above mentioned witnesses.

The Valladolid catalogue of 1559 prohibits among books en Romance: Iubileo de plenissima remission de peccados, concedido antiguamente: y en el fin del dize. Dado en la corte celestial del Parayso, desde el origen del mundo, con preuilllegio eterno, firmado y sellado con la sangre del vnigenito hijo de Dios IESV Christo nuestro vnico y verdadero redemptor y señor. Compare our report on Vergerio's German of 1555 and on the French of 1599.

In the Stationers' register, 14 August 1560, Lucas Haryson is licensed for printing of a generall pardon for ever (Arber 1, 150).

JUAN PEREZ DE PINEDA.

JUAN Perez de Pineda was born at Montilla in Andalusia,¹ about the end of the 15th century.²

In the year 1526 we find him at Rome as Secretary to the Spanish Embassy and Prior of the church at Osma, of which Saint Dominic, who was born in that bishopric, had been a canon. After that the Imperial army, led by Moncada, had without encountering any resistance, taken Rome, on the 20th of September 1526 and that the soldiers had plundered St. Peter's church as well as the Papal palace, Clement VII made peace with the Emperor. On September 23. Perez wrote to Charles: without the sack of the palace and of St. Peter's one might have waited a thousand years ere His Holiness had consented to what he now saw to be inevitable. It was Perez who on the 12. December of that year, at a solemn assembly of the Pope and of the Cardinals, delivered to them the Imperial letter which remonstrated against the Pope's confederacy with the enemies of the Emperor and demanded that a General Council should be summoned without delay.³ In the next year, when the Spanish ambassador, the duke of Sesa, left Rome, secretary Perez, who had lived under the duke's roof, moved into the mansion

1) Llorente c. XXI. art. II. — This Perez is called Pieres in the Geneva martyrology 1570 f. (see here our appended note on Julianillo), Pierius by Beza 1580 (see note 41). No other Pierius is meant by his countrymen Antonio del Corro (in a letter to Calvin 1559, and in two papers 1568, sent to Beza) and Casiodoro de Reina (protestation of 1571); by a Frankfort document of 1558 (see our note 31), by Perrucellus in a letter of the same year to Calvin (our note 32), in an old catalogue of preachers in France and in the Histoire ecclesiastique (our note 40).

2) In October 1558 Calvin calls him homme ancien, here below note 45, and Llorente c. XXI. art. II., speaking of the prohibition of his writings in 1559: Era ya Juan Perez hombre de mucha edad.

3) See instrumentum publicum appended to the Imperial letters, Mayence edition (see above vol. 1, n° 4) p. 100. where the secretary is called Joannes Perez, Cæsareæ maiestatis Secretarius, ac Prior ecclesiæ Oxomēn (just so also in Cratander's edition [see above n° 5], whilst the edition of 1587 [ib. n° 10] writes Oxonien-sis; compare in the Mayence edition p. 210: Garcia de Loaysa Episcopo Oxomēn.

of the bishop of Gurk, Don Antonio de Salamanca. This was one of the only two houses in Rome which were spared in the most indiscriminate sacking, wreaked upon the eternal city by the army of Bourbon in May 1527. Salamanca and Perez thanked God, that they were admitted to ransom at the sum of 2400 ducats for both, without having been tortured or maltreated.⁴

Some weeks later the Secretary asked the Pope to give him a Brief to the Inquisitor General of Spain, Alfonso Manrique, archbishop of Seville, with instructions to silence the attacks directed against the writings of Erasmus. The Imperial Grandchancellor Gattinara had some time previously commissioned Perez to press this demand, and the present circumstances prevented the Pope's refusing ready compliance. The Brief which was written in the castle of St. Angelo, where Clement was a prisoner, was forwarded on 1st August to the Secretary of State Alfonso de Valdés. The Pope forbade, under pain of excommunication, the attacks upon the writings of Erasmus which were opposed to those of Luther.⁵

4) See the anonymous letter in Documentos inéd., t. 7, 1845, p. 451, which when compared with Alfonso de Valdés' diálogo on the sack of Rome, ed. of 1850 p. 414—445, would appear to have likely been written by Don Antonio de Salamanca, as is conjectured in the Noticia previa to the reprint of 1848 of Perez's Epistola consolatoria, p. VII. — Against the identification of this Salamanca with that in the autobiography of Benvenuto Cellini there seems to be the circumstance that Cellini's Salamanca is reported to have borne the Christian name Francis, see Vita di Cellini, vol. 1, Torino, Fontana, 1845, p. 53, where reference is made to Gonzales de Avila's Antiguedades de Salamanca p. 437. — The old editions 1. 2. 4. 5 of the dialogue on the sack of Rome have: don Antonio de Salamanca: hoyos: obispo gurgense (the 3^d has likewise hoyos, to judge from Usó's edition). Usó, following, one should think, the Paris edition, has que hoi es instead of hoyos which however was right, being the name Hoyos. In the list of the bishops of Gurk we find in 1533 the Spaniard Antonio de Hoyos who was murdered in 1551; Balbi resigned in 1526 (Potthast: Supplement zur Biblioth. histor. 1868, p. 326). We learn from this dialogue that already in 1527 Antonio de Salamanca Hoyos had got that see. In the Italian translation Hoyos is left out (at least in ed. 4, fol. 159: Salamanca, Vescono Curcense; the other Italian editions are not at present at my disposition). — In a letter of the Cardinal di Como written Civitavecchia 24 Mai 1527, printed in Carlo Milanesi's little volume Il sacco di Roma, Firenze 1867, we read p. 485 f.: saccheggiato et fatto prigionie sino a Pereres spagnolo, secretario dello imperadore con grandissima autorità, et fatto taglia duemila ducati. A note of the editor to the name Pereres: Il Perrenot, ossia il Granvella. This is a mistake; the Cardinal means Juan Perez.

5) Compare Ed. Böhmer: Franzisca Hernandez 1865 p. 54 f.

On the last day of November Perez, writing from Rome, reported that it appeared more important to withdraw the Imperial troops from the town than to prolong the imprisonment of the Pope in St. Angelo, but that 200,000 ducats were needed to distribute amongst the troops, to induce them to consent to withdraw; that His Holiness had but little money, and that hence it was necessary to create a batch of Cardinals, who would individually pay some twenty thousand ducats for the hat, and that Moncada had already found three candidates in Naples who were prepared to pay.

When the army departed from Rome, Perez also left; he went to Naples. The duke of Sesa had died in August 1526, whereupon Hugo de Moncada had become the Emperor's chief representative, and had soon afterwards been appointed also Viceroy of Naples; his death in a naval engagement is reported by Perez in a despatch dated 30 April 1528.

The last of Juan Perez's official letters, that we know of, is dated Naples 29 October 1528, wherein he states that the Pope had returned to Rome, and that public security was reestablished there. It is probable that Perez returned there, but we have no letters from him of later date thence; as there was an Imperial ambassador at Rome, Perez would naturally have no further reports to make in his own name. The next thing we hear of him is contained in a letter from a Vicechancellor at Naples who writes from this city on the 28th of August 1530: „By a letter from Rome I learn that poor Juan Perez had arrived there“ (most probably he had been with the Emperor's Court in northern Italy before Charles passed over the mountains to hold the diet at Augsburg), „and that on his way to Naples, being about 30 miles from Rome, between Velletri and Sermoneta, he had been attacked, and that nothing further had been heard of him.“⁶

6) Per lettera di Roma ho adviso chel porero Jo. Perez era arrivato in Roma et partendose per Napoli lontan da Roma circa 30 miglia tra Velletri et Sermoneta è stato assassinato et sino (et si) ad mo non si ha nora di lui . . . Fidelissimus servitor Pomp. Vicecancell. The words bracketed by me seem to be a repetition. From Simancas, Archivo General, Estado, Roma, legajo 849 fol. 109 copied in Bergenroth's collection in the British Museum, and from the British Museum copy (registered in Gayangos' Cat. vol. 2, p. 587) copied for me by Geo. F. Warner. Assassinare in Italian does not imply killing, not even the intention to kill (see Tommaseo's dict.).

We subsequently meet with Juan Perez in Spain, where he presided over what was called the College of Doctrine at Seville,⁷ a municipal institution for the education of youth, in which many years later Dr. Constantino accepted a lectureship.

He left Spain when he got notice of the intention of the Inquisitors to arrest him as suspected of Lutheranism.⁸ This he no doubt did after the accession to office in 1547 of the Inquisitor General Valdés, probably when Dr. Gil had already been imprisoned, and perhaps only in 1554.⁹

He next appears at Geneva.¹⁰ There from 1556—1560 the press was busy with his publications. In 1556 he edited his translation of the New Testament from Greek into Spanish.¹¹ It being customary, he says, with authors to dedicate their books to princes, Perez presents his New Testament „to the Almighty King of heaven

7) Llorente cap. XXI. art. II. p. 265, French t. 2, p. 279. Llorente calls him doctor; so Perez calls himself on the title of his Sumario and of the translation of the Psalms; and so does Valera in the Dos tratados 1599, p. 247. 249, and in the Exhortacion prefixed to the bible of 1602, fol. *3; Pellicer in his Ensayo p. 120: doctor en Theologia.

8) Llor. ib.

9) From Valera, Dos tratados 1599, p. 246—7, follows that Perez (whom Valera knew personally) left Seville despues desta persecucion de Rodrigo de Valer whose definitive condemnation he places cerca del a. 1545, and before the expatriation in 1555 of the seven persons to Geneva. M'Crie thinks Perez left at the time that Ægidius was thrown into prison; Menendez follows M'Crie.

10) Menendez is right in saying 459 that it is not proved that the Protestant writer is the Imperial agent, but is he not incautious enough when he asserts that it cannot be proved? At the same time M. is too confident in taking the head of the Sevillian College of doctrine for the refugee of Geneva, as if there could be no doubt about it. In fact, the identity of the Juan Perez of Geneva with the head of that college rests as exclusively upon the authority of Ll. as does the identity of the Genevese Perez with the Roman one. In this state of the question, it is certainly licito, to think the Imperial agent a different person from the Protestant writer, but it appears to me more impartial to suppose that Llorente had reasons to identify those three. Menendez says: el Juan Perez de Montilla parece haber sido clérigo y no diplomático, but the diplomatist was Prior of Osma, see above here. As for the other objection of M. against the identification of the Juan Perez of Rome with the Juan Perez of the Sevillian college and of Geneva: las fechas no concuerdan bien, I am at a loss to see this.

11) In the epistola prefatory to his N. T. he says (fol. *VI), giving the two reasons which moved him to translate it: La una que sintiendo me muy obligado al servicio de los de mi nacion segun la vocacion con que me llamo el Señor a and earth, Jesus Christ." To the supplication to Christ follows an address to king Philip of Spain, in which Perez reminds the Sovereign of his duty to protect and to spread the teaching of this holy book. In the preface he rightly lays stress upon the fact that the inspired writers by the employment of the Greek language disclosed their wish to give their writings the greatest circulation possible at that period. It may strike one as singular that Perez did not hint at the fact that he was not the first Spanish translator of the New Testament;¹² probably he held it to be prudent to avoid making the king of Spain aware of the circumstance, perhaps unknown to or forgotten by him, that his father had prohibited Enzinas' translation dedicated to his Imperial Majesty and had imprisoned the translator, twelve years previously. In the same year in which Perez published the New Testament, he also issued a Spanish catechism. In the succeeding year 1557 Perez published his translation of the Psalms from Hebrew, with a dedication to Maria of Austria, sister of the Emperor Charles V, the Queen of Hungary and Bohemia and Regent of the Netherlands.¹³ In la anunciacion de su Evangelio, pareciome que no avia medio mas proprio para cumplir, sino en todo, a lo menos en parte con mi deseo y obligacion, que darsselo en su propria lengua . . . Richard Simon, Histoire critique des versions du nouveau testament, Rotterdam 1690, chap. 41, p. 496: La Traduction tient le milieu entre celles qui sont trop literales, & celles, qui sont trop étendûes. Il s'attache à son texte, sans estre néanmoins obscur: car il supplée ce qu'il est nécessaire de suppleer pour se faire entendre, & pour ne laisser pas le sens suspendu. Mais il ne marque pas toujours en lettre Italique ce qu'il ajoûte. Comme il ne garde aucune uniformité là-dessus, cela me fait croire qu'il a plustost traduit sur les Versions qui avoient esté faites sur le Grec avant luy, que sur l'Original. Il a enfermé entre deux crochets de certains mots qui ne sont point dans le texte Grec . . . Il a de plus ajoûté à la marge de son texte de petites notes, . . . mais outre que ces observations sont rares, elles ne sont pas toujours exactes . . .

12) He only speaks of his own labour: Dos causas me movieron a tomar no liviano trabajo de traduzirlo . . . (fol. *VI). That the translator is Perez, is proved by Cipriano de Valera in his Dos tratados, 1599 p. 247, reprint of 1851: el Dotor Juan Perez, que se vino á Jeneva, donde imprimió el Testamento nuevo, i otros libros en Español, and in his Exhortacion, fol. *3, prefixed to the Bible of 1602: El doctor Iuā Perez de pia memoria año de 1556. imprimió el Testamento nuevo . . . A Iuan Perez, Cassiodoro y Iulian yo los conocí, y traté familiarmente. Certainly Valera does not mean that Perez only printed the translation of some other person.

13) As he does on the title, so he gives himself as translator in the epístola dedicatoria, fol. A VII: teniendo yo mucho ha desseado servir a vuestra Alteza, no halle otra cosa mas propria para dar verdadero testimonio de mi desseo que traduzir su Psalterio [viz. el de David] en romance Castellano, y dedicarlo a

1556 and 1557 he printed Juan de Valdés' commentaries upon the epistle to the Romans and the first epistle to the Corinthians, the latter with a prefatory letter of dedication to the future Emperor Maximilian, whom, Perez says, all Spain held in affection for his justice, piety, affability and other royal virtues.¹⁴

The peace of Augsburg 1555 had established for Germany an agreement between Protestants and Roman Catholics, who found themselves forced by the insuperable logic of events, mutually to tolerate each other. For Spain too a gleam of hope shone forth to see the nation liberated from the fetters of Rome. After that the duke of Alba had, in August 1556, sent that terrible letter to the Pope which made the Vatican tremble, Perez thought the moment a favorable one to press upon king Philip that he should not recede, but go on still further, and this he implored of him in a letter which was already printed in the summer of 1557.¹⁵ Perez says: It is right vuestro Alteza ... — Pellicer, Ensayo p. 122 on Perez's Psalms: la version es clara y corriente. Menendez who p. 458 calls Perez elegante escritor, says p. 461 on his psalms: Así la dedicatoria, como la Declaracion del fructo y utilidad de los Psalmos para todo cristiano, están gallardísimamente escritas. Juan Perez es prosista sóbrio y vigoroso, de la escuela de Juan de Valdés, y menos resabiado que Cipriano de Valera y otros por la sequedad ginebrina ... La traduccion es hermosa como lengua ... Ni muy libre ni muy rastrera, sin affectaciones de hebraismo ni locuciones exóticas, más bien literal que parafrástica, pero libre de supersticioso rabinismo, esté escrita en lenguaje puro, correcto, claro y de gran lozanía y hermosura. Menendez has, however, afterwards given the preference to the Valdés translation, which was not yet published when he wrote the above.

15) Carta a Philippe, Rf. Esp. t. 3. p. 79 f. As for the authorship, Usóz says in the list of Rf. Esp. in vol. 20: al parecer, por Juán Perez, and Wiffen likewise places the Carta under the head: Juan Perez, Bth. Wiff. p. 37; I think they are right. — The carta evidently is written before the battle of Saint-Quentin which took place in August 1557, see p. 9. 59. Usóz is wrong in thinking the political horizon of the Carta as well as that of the Imagen del Anticristo to have been the time between the beginning of 1558 and the beginning of 1559, Rf. Esp. t. 3. 1848, p. III. Still in 1865 in the list of Reformistas vol. 20 of that series, Usóz gives the date 1558 for Imagen and Carta, Wiffen in the list printed in the same year with his short notification of Usóz's death makes at least an interrogation sign after the mention of this year 1558 as the date of those two writings. I think the heretical Carta en español intitulada al Rey nuestro Señor, which Peter Veller confessed (see p. 64 here) to have brought from Frankfurt to the Netherlands, was this work in question. Twice a year, as Veller himself says, the booksellers used to go to Frankfort to attend the two fairs in order to buy books. His confession dates from Lent 1558, to call things by their proper names. Thus in calling the truth, truth, one honours the truth and God who is the author of it. And in calling evil, evil, one does not injustice to the evil. He who calls black, black, and a lie, a lie, does not wrong them. And if a man calls a Turk, a Turk, no Turk has cause to complain. And when you call a lamb, a lamb, and a wolf, a wolf, there is nothing injurious. Nay, it would be perversion to call evil good, black white, darkness light, and a lie truth. And to do so would be to incur the curse denounced by the prophet Isaiah against those who judge so perversely.¹⁶ The papists, however, cast aside the bible which contains nothing but pure truth and words of God.¹⁷ They think it good that a truth of Christ should not be preached unless cloaked with fifty papal lies.¹⁸ The author severely rebukes the preposterous subjection to the pope,¹⁹ in which the Spaniards, he says, so ignominiously outdo all other nations.²⁰ Roman excommunications are, he exclaims, but scare-crows which only terrify those who do not know what they indeed are.²¹ He recognises the duty of obedience and reverence to the Apostolic See, provided that it really be Apostolic and not opposed to Christ and to his Apostles.²² That then, however, disbelief in God was the smallest evil of the Romish court.²³ His meaning is that its reckless immorality was still more unpardonable than the denial of the existence of a personal God, for the unbelievers „do by nature the things contained in the law.“ In this wretched condition of the church the Pope does not bear the greatest guilt, says Perez, but we do, for „a consenting party suffers no wrong.“²⁴ To disarm the Pope the King must do two things. The first was that which Henry II of France so successfully carried out: the prohibition of the export of money to Rome from his kingdom.²⁵ The second was that he should take Christ as his helper, protecting Christ's followers from papal persecution. The King, however, preferred reconciliation with the Church of Rome; he commanded the duke of Alba to beg pardon, „with a halter round his neck,“ as Ruy Gomez, Philip's minister of State, expressed it.²⁶

Perez had with him at Geneva his countryman Julian Hernandez. This spirited Old-Castilian who on account of his diminutive stature was called by the French le petit Julien, succeeded in the year 1557 in bringing across the Netherlands into Seville two great barrels filled with Perez's New Testaments and Psalms. After that Julianillo had distributed many copies in Seville, he was betrayed to the Inquisition, was arrested, and in a short time the prisons were gorged with eight hundred persons. Concerning the trade in heretical books between Germany and Spain, a bookseller, who was examined by the Inquisition of the Netherlands, gave interesting details, in the beginning of the year 1558.²⁷ This man, Peter Veller, who was engaged in the extensive business of Stels at Antwerp, testified that some Antwerp booksellers fetched, twice a year from the fairs at Frankfort on the Main, the new works which were published by the heretics in Latin and in Spanish. Veller himself had carried to the Netherlands copies of the Spanish „Letter to our Lord the King“ and of the Bull forged by the heretics. He had seen great barrels filled with these Bulls and Letters which were destined to be sold in Spain. There is scarcely any doubt left, that the Letter is the above mentioned by Perez, and the Bull the Summary of Indulgences on which we have treated in our preceding article. Veller further said that Peter Vilman, a bookseller at Antwerp, had book-depôts at Medina del Campo and at Seville. A ropemaker at Antwerp, a relation of the man who had corrupted the mind of Franzisco de San Roman,²⁸ was in the habit of sending books to Malaga. There were many heretics in Andalusia and in Aragon. It had also been confessed by one who was burned the year before at Bruges, that they had in Spain a church, although secretly.²⁹ Much money was sent out of Spain to print Spanish heretical books in Germany, and for the support of Spanish heretical refugees in that country. Such heretics were in the habit of attending the Frankfort fairs, and some of them brought books to the Netherlands purposing to take or send them into Spain. Veller moreover added that the heretics, after they learned that the seaports of the peninsula were no longer safe, sent their books by way of Lyons and over the Pyrenees to Aragon or to Navarra. In consequence of these revelations the Inquisition resolved to send a spy to Frankfort, a monk in disguise, to collect there more varied and precise information, and above all how to enable them to recognise the heretical Spaniards when travelling through the Netherlands, in order to catch them.³⁰

Whilst the books, published by Perez in 1557, were printing at Geneva, he lived in Frankfort, probably from September 1556 until June 1558. Various complaints against the minister of the French church there, Valerandus Pollanus, had to be decided by an arbitration of Notables, accepted by both parties, as all previous means had failed. The arbitrators who met for this purpose in Frankfort in September 1556, were the following, recorded here in the order in which they are placed in the official document: Calvin, Johannes a Lasco, Robert Horne (afterwards bishop of Winchester), Laurent de

Most probably Perez had come in company with Calvin, but he did not return with him (Calvin was at home in October). Perez was the leading man, when in May 1558 the ministers of the congregations of foreigners at Frankfort handed in to the senate of the city their full consent to the so called Frankfort Recess, by which, two months previously, the evangelical electors and other princes had fixed the terms of their religious union in conformity with a proposal of Melancthon.³²

Perez, in June 1558, was constrained to return to Geneva,³³ where, during his absence, many of his countrymen had settled.

In consequence of interminable quarrels among the foreigners themselves (see Franckfurtischer Religions-Handlungen Zweyter Theil, Franckf. a. M. 1735, Beylage p. 86 f.), their church was in 1561 shut by the city government (the English had already in 1559 returned to their country).

33) See note 32. — That Perez was at Geneva in April 1559, appears also from Corro's letter I.

Before the end of the year 1556 two Spanish families had been received into the Italian congregation; in the year 1558 the number of fugitive Spaniards had so increased, that at the recommendation of Calvin, whose mediation they had sought, the City, in October of that year, granted them leave to form a Spanish church, with Juan Perez for their preacher, and conceded to them the church of St. Germain.³⁴

In the year 1559 Perez, formerly the Imperial diplomatist, but now a minister of the gospel, edited his Spanish translation of John Sleidan's two Latin orations which affect public evangelical interests; one of them is addressed to the Emperor, the other to the Princes and the Estates of the Empire. The translator introduces these documents by his own petition to king Philip.³⁵ He reminds the monarch of the efforts made by Wickliffe, by Hus, by Jerome of Prague, and recently by Luther to bring about reformation. He sets forth how anomalous it is to permit the Roman Catholic party to be at once both party and judge. He tells king Philip, that if he allow the Inquisitors to continue their destructive work, he would cease to rule men and that he would be a king over ashes and sambenitos. And what ashes! the ashes of the disciples of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, the ashes of His Majesty's most loyal subjects. Such words shew the impression wrought upon the author by the news of the first of the great executions of the year 1559, the Auto celebrated in May at Valladolid. In September of the same year Lutherans were burned at Seville. Perez, who clearly saw what the end would be for the brave Julian and many dear friends in his native land, wrote and printed in the year 1560 a consolatory letter.³⁶ It is improbable that the edifying little book ever reached the imprisoned brethren. After more than three years imprisonment Julianillo died heroically in the flames at the Auto of December 22, 1560, in which also the effigy of Juan Perez was burnt, as were likewise the remains of doctors Gil and Constantino. A Spanish report issued at that time from the Inquisitorial side³⁷

XVIII, art. II, § 20: haviendosele [al emperador] persuadido muchas veces la multitud y grandeza de los daños del modo de proceder del Santo-Oficio, entre las quales mercede mencion especial la representacion que despues se imprimió en Alemania furtivamente, año 1559, sin el nombre de autor; pero sabiendose haberlo sido los Españoles huidos á Ginebra y Flandes. (The French translation has misinterpreted this thus: une représentation . . sans nom d'auteur, mais qui n'était pas inconnue aux Espagnols réfugiés à G. et en F., whilst LL. means: one knew, however, that the Spanish fugitives had got it printed). Llorente says nothing about the questions who was the author and whether the Informaciones are a Spanish original. Wiffen and Usóz thought the Informaciones were a Spanish original, and they could not but believe that the author was Francisco de Enzinas (Ref. Esp. t. 12, Notas del editor p. 3 f.; t. 13, appd. p. 3; t. 20, list of the series, and Wiffen's list of the same with his notice on Usóz's decease; this Biblioth. Wiff. I, p. 40). Usóz was right in supposing the division in chapters and the headings of them, as also the summary of the Information to the Princes and Estates, to be the Spanish editor's work. The first sentence of this summary he took, it is true, from the author's preface. He somewhat amplified the last sentence of the address to the Emperor. That Perez was the editor of the Informaciones and the author of the Supplicacion is what Usóz thought.

36) Menendez 463: notable por la dulzura de los sentimientos, y lo apacible y reposado del estilo. 465: fuera de los resábios protestantes (sobre todo en los primeros capítulos), está admirablemente escrita, aunque se advierte abuso de lugares comunes y de citas de la Escritura, y el autor acaba por tornarse lánguido, difuso y palabrero, á fuerza de dar vueltas á una misma idea. Tiene, con todo eso, pasajes llenos de calor y brío; pero ganaria mucho el opúsculo con reducirse á la tercera parte de su extension. Now for a nimble diversion: Ni nos admiremos mucho de los primores de la lengua: ¿quien no escribia bien en aquel glorioso siglo? Follows an eulogy of Padre Rivadeneyra's Tratado de la tribulacion, as superior to the consolatory epistle of Perez.

There is, of course, a great resemblance between Perez's epistle of consolation to persecuted evangelicals, and the letter which had been written to the same purpose by Pierre Viret. Several passages of the work of Perez would lead to the supposition that he knew that of Viret, and this is so much the more probable as Viret's epistle had been reedited the year before the publication of that of Perez. *Deux epistres, l'une demonstre comment nostre Seigneur Iesus Christ est la fin de la Loy, & la somme de tout ce qu'il faut chercher en l'escriture. Composée par M. I. Calvin. L'autre pour consoler les fideles qui souffrent pour le Nom de Iesus: & pour les instruire à se gouverner en temps d'aduersite & de prosperite, & les confermer contre les tentations & assautz de la mort. says: Those who were imprisoned for Lutheranism at Valladolid, Seville and Toledo, were so numerous and of such social position, that it was believed, that in two or three months, had redress been postponed, all Spain would have been set on fire, and that the greatest disaster, ever yet seen in the country, would have become inevitable.

In that same year 1560 Perez had published another Spanish treatise, a revision of the Latin work of a German reformer, Urbanus Regius, of about twenty chapters, each so constructed as to contrast the old (biblical) doctrine of God, with the (comparatively) new doctrine of men;³⁸ the Spaniard has made additions.

In July 1561 Perez was by his own desire carried into the hospital, to be treated there, and it does not appear that he ever resumed his ministerial duties, nor is there evidence that the Spanish church continued to exist at Geneva. From 1563 the Italian church there again received Spaniards, which it had not done since 1558.³⁹

It was probably after the edict of January 1562 which gave to the French Protestants liberty of worship that Perez followed a call as minister of the gospel to Blois in France.³⁹ When after the death of Guise, Condé held a conference on 8 March 1563 with three Huguenot ministers about the peace to be concluded, Juan Perez of Blois was one of the three.⁴⁰ They declared that at all events the Wiff.* 1, p. 36) that the author of the Spanish Breve tratado de doctrina was Juan Perez. This is confirmed by the notice I extracted (note 44) from the Livre du Conseil at Geneva that in March 1560 the Spanish ministre got the license to print a certain book, if he corrected his additions according to the propositions made by Gallasius. The license for the epist. consol. was only given in May.

IX, p. 296, Pierius is mentioned as in Blois or Mers (Indre).

edict of January 1562 which gave much liberty to the Protestants must be restored. A synod of 72 ministers demanded the same. Nevertheless Condé signed on the 12th of March the edict of pacification which on the 19th was promulgated as the treaty of Amboise, which allowed much less liberty to the Protestants than the January edict had given them. In 1564 we find Perez at Montargis as evangelical minister of Renée the dowager duchess of Ferrara, Calvin's pupil and friend.

Perez died at Paris in 1567.

Beza styles him a man of learning and of signal probity.⁴¹

He left behind him money that he had collected for the purpose of printing books for the furtherance of the evangelical cause. The Spanish New Testament which was printing in Paris the year he died,⁴² is, in my opinion, his work, and the same, I think, is the Spanish New Testament with notes principally taken from the Genevese theologians, which was recommended by the Censor of the Theological Faculty of Paris in 1574 for suppression.⁴³ Not one copy of it is known to have been seen since, nor has even that which the censor used been found.

45) Evangelical Spaniards in Geneva.

My researches in Geneva were made in 1873. In addition I give some notices from Galiffe's two alphabetical lists of names of the Colonie espagnole and of Portugais drawn up in his book: Le refuge italien de Genève aux XVI^{me} et XVII^{me} siècles. Genève 1881. p. 167—169. Galiffe quotes his authorities in general, not for each name. Most names of the Colonie espagnole he evidently took from Burlamachi. Portugais he only has 5 names. As for the years in his notices, he says: La première date qui suit les noms d'individus se rapporte à la première mention de ceux-ci dans les sources locales.

Before there was a Spanish church established at Geneva, and after it ceased to exist, the evangelical Spaniards used to join the Italian congregation.

Ochino who arrived at Geneva in 1542, did not remain long enough to consolidate an Italian church. In July 1550 Pietro Paolo Vergerio writes from Geneva: In Geneva .. fino ad ora vi possono essere più di mille per Cristo e per lo evangelio forusciti, viz. from France and Flanders, amongst them Jaques de Falais [Falesius]. Vergerio encourages the evangelical Italians, to go likewise to Geneva, if they be not allowed, and do not wish, to confess their faith in their own country; he does not seem to know of any Italian Protestant being then at Geneva. Of Spaniards he says nothing. The Flemish and the French are the only fugitives at Geneva he mentions. (Epistola del Vergerio nella quale sono descritte molte cose della Città, & della Chiesa di Geneva. In Geneva M. D. L. Dated July 15, and in the postscript July 20. 1550. p. 19. ZURICH City). Half a year ago, in January, Vergerio intending to accept a place of evangelical minister in Val Bregaglia, had written to Calvin: Spero enim fore ut Itali eo confugiant, ut Genevam ad te Galli tui (Corp. Rf. 41, 513).

Whilst Vergerio stayed at Geneva, probably Calvin's catechism in Spanish, translated by a Spaniard living there, was still in the press. The translator's preface, dated April 1550, was printed earlier than the translation; the work appeared in the course of that year. (See above here p. 43 f.).

From the same year 1550 begin the notices of Vincenzo Burlamachi (born 1598, died 1682), in his Libro di memorie diverse della chiesa Italiana in Geneva (Ms in the City Archives there). Burlamachi says under 1550: È qui da notare che solo sono qui messi i nomi che sono scritti ne' libri; essendo certissimo che solo vna parte d'essi è qui registrata. The last inscription he gives is of 1654, his list of the governo della chiesa Ital. in Geneva is continued to 1669.

Calvin to Farel, 15 June 1551: Interea hospitibus, qui multi quotidie hac transeunt, vel qui ad nos habitandi causa demigrant, me impendo. Inter alios Marchio a Vico Neapolitanus nuper appulit. Subsequentur mox alter. Si nos proximo autumnio invisas, auctam aliquo numero urbem reperies. Spectaculum mihi iucundum, nisi quod obruor concursu. (Corp. Rf. 42, 134). The Strassburg editors note that the number of fugitives increased maxime post edictum in Chateaubriand promulgatum d. 27 Junii (Ruchat V. 447 ss. Hist. eccl. I. 84). — Roget, Histoire du peuple de Genève (t. 3. 1875. p. 221): La congrégation italienne fut régulièrement constituée le 31 mars 1552 par la nomination de son premier pasteur, Celse Martinengo, de Brescia, à laquelle procéda le Conseil, après que les ministres l'eurent déclaré „ydoinne et suffisant“. — Franciscus Gaius [a Bosco Normanno] in a letter addressed Francisco Beraldo, written at Geneva, 19 April 1554, mentions Gallorum magnam copiam, Italarum et Anglorum. (Printed in Colonies' Gallia orientalis; in Colomesii opera ed. Fabricio p. 18). In January 1555 Calvin inviting Juan Valdés' friend Peter Martyr Vermigli to comply with the wish of the Italian congregation and become their minister, says: Est quidem pusillus grex sed vere electus, ut florem Italiae in eo conspici posse arbitrer. (Corp. Rf. 43, 388. Vermigli was, however, retained at Strasburg, ib. 496. 44, 144. In the next year the same place was again offered to him after his removal to Zurich, but he was not allowed to leave his office there, ib. 44, 403 f. 587. 593 f. 600 f. 617 f. 668 f.; and a new request of the senate of Geneva to that of Zurich in August 1557 remained likewise without success, ib. 48, 454 f. Compare Simler de vita Petri Martyris, Tiguri 1563, fol. 19. 20). Roget (Hist. du peuple de Genève, t. 4. 1877, p. 328) under the year 1555: Le temple de Notre-Dame la Neuve (l'Auditoire) fut mis à la disposition des Italiens et des Anglais. La prédication pour les Italiens fut fixée au jeudi, vendredi et samedi à 9 heures, tandis que les Anglais célébraient leur culte le lundi, mardi et mercredi à la même heure. In 1559, April 25, Vergerio mentions to the duke of Wirtemberg Genevam ubi fere quingenti exules ex Italia degunt (Briefwechsel 1875, p. 207).

Galiffe registers also Serretus in the Colonie espagnole. But that unfortunate Aragonese stayed only a few weeks at Geneva in an inn on his way to Italy, and was forced to remain there, in the prison and at last in the flames 1553.

I have extracted from Burlamachi's memorie the names of Spaniards and Portuguese. The first person occurring from that peninsula is in 1554 Tomaso

Portuguese con sua moglie et cinque figliuoli. Galiffe has not this article, but no doubt the same family is meant by his notice: Coello, Coeglio, Quaglia . . ., appelés le plus souvent Portugheze, ou di Portugallo, Thomas et Jaques, 1554 (sont souvent confondus avec les Coella, Covoglio des Calabres). — Cipriano de Valera relates (Dos tratados, 1599, p. 247): En el año de 1555 salieron de Sevilla siete personas entre hombres y mugeres, y vinieron à Geneva donde residieron. Among them may have been Juan Perez; he is not found in Burlamachi's register. Nor is Julian Hernandez mentioned in the Geneva sources, except in the martyrology; see our next note. Burlamachi has in 1556 Francesco Vidine Spagnuolo, and after other names: Francesco Spagnuolo, with the reception-notice belonging only to this last one: Rec^{to} dec^{re} 1556. This second Francesco probably is Galiffe's Farcas ou Farias, de Séville, François, 1556. And these two Francisco's may be the heads of the two Spanish families of which Viret is speaking in the postscript of a letter from Geneva, Calen. Septemb. 1556, to Calvin who then was at Frankfurt o. M.: Ex quo hinc discessisti hoc accidit novi quod mihi exciderat. Advenerunt duæ ex intima Hispania familiæ quæ se huic ecclesiæ coniungerent. Laudandus Dominus qui odorem evangelicæ prædicationis ad illam quoque gentem diffudit quæ tam inaccessa videbatur. Ex his primordiis et primitiis maiores fructus expectamus. (Corp. Rf. 44, 278.)

A year later, on October 7. 1557 the ex peregrinis ecclesia at Geneva sent to Bullinger thanks for having dedicated to them his In apocalypsin conciones. The letter is signed: Ministri Genevensis ecclesiæ omnium exsulum Gallorum nomine. Seniores et diaconi ecclesiæ Italicæ totius ecclesiæ nomine. Ministri seniores et diaconi totius ecclesiæ Anglicanæ nomine. (Corp. Rf. 44, 657 f. cf. 654 f. As for the English, compare Heyer's Notice sur la colonie Anglaise établie à Genève de 1555 à 1560 in the Mémoires et documents publiés par la société d'hist. et d'archéologie de Genève t. 9. 1855.) No Spanish church.

1557 Burlamachi has Francesco di Cardines di Seniglia. The Fragmens biographiques et historiques, extraits des registres du Conseil d'État de la République de Genève dès 1535 à 1792 printed Genève 1815 have p. 24 the two following articles as taken from the extracts of the Counsellor J. Ant. Gautier who died in 1729: 1557. Juillet 12. On ouvre le temple de St. Germain, vu la multiplication prodigieuse du peuple qui augmente tous les jours. Octobre 14. On reçoit 300 habitans le même matin; savoir, 200 François, 50 Anglois, 25 Italiens, 4 Espagnols, etc.; tellement que l'antichambre du conseil ne les pouvoit tous contenir. (On the same reception, Mém. et docum. de la Soc. d'hist. et d'archéol. de Genève, t. 9. 1855. p. 348.) It was in 1557 that, according to Valera (l. c. p. 247. 248) a revival took place in the monastery of San Isidro at Seville; doze de los frayles en poco tiempo se salieron, unos por una parte, y otros por otra: los quales dentro del año se vieron en Geneva, à donde quando salieron tenian determinado de ir . . . Entre los que se salieron, y vinieron à Geneva fueron el Prior, Vicario y procurador de San Isidro, y con ellos salio el Prior del Valle de Ecija de la misma orden (from this passage one should conclude that the Prior of Ecija did not go to or did not arrive at Geneva). Galiffe has under 1557 Frc. Cardenès ou Cardines, and besides Hernando de Leon, Peregrino de Pas, Pierre Pablo, all four from Seville. On a Pierre Paulo 1558, Galiffe himself remarks: peut-être le même que le précédent. In 1558 Burlamachi has six Spaniards, inscribed without interruption by other names: Merchio Vias di Siniglia (Galiffe: Merchio Via, de Séville, with the year 1553 and the question: confusion avec Dias? Under the letter D he has: Dias ou Vias, de Séville, Melchior, 1558). Cipriano Valleria di Siniglia, with the addition Traductor della bibbia.

Giouanni di Mollina, di Varracina d'Arragona. Alonso Battista di Canaria (*Galiffe: Battista, de Séville (dit aussi de Canarie), Alonzo 1558, B. G. [viz. bourgeois genevois] 1569.) Lopes Cortis di Castiglia (Galiffe: Cortes, de Séville ou Castillan, Jope ou Lope, 1558. Perhaps a Castilian who was member of San Isidro.) Gio: di Viuares di Vagliadoli (Galiffe: Jean Vivarte ou Vivarès, de Valladolid, 1558.) Galiffe adds under 1558: Jean de Leon, de Seville (one of the S. Isidro monks, burnt in Seville in 1560, see Gonzalez, Llorente, Menendez), Jean Moreno, Etienne Ringon (avait suivi les unitaires et les anabaptistes en Moravie, et en était revenu en 1561), Jean-Antoine d'Acerbe (and, as it would seem, another person of the same patronymic, dits aussi Napolitains) and a Nararrese, Etienne. On the 10th of June 1558 Peter Martyr writes from Zurich to Utenhoven (Gerdsius Scrin. antiq. t. 4, p. 673): Quin et Hispani, ac ii docti et probi viri, turmatim Genevam confluunt. Neither Burlamachi nor Galiffe mention Cassiodoro de Reina and Antonio del Corro, it is, however, certain that both stayed at Genera and that Reina was a member of the Italian church (see below in their biographies). Reina arrived at Genera perhaps already in 1557: he left not later than summer of 1558.

The ms. Livre du Conseil des affaires de la ville contains, Lundi 10 de octobre 1558 (fol. 302): Eglise des Hespagnols. Le dit sr Calvin a aussi propose que les Hespagnols luy ont donne charge de requerir messieurs de leur donner place au temple S. Germain pour y ouir la parolle de dieu en leur langue veu qu'il y a ung homme ancien de bonne conversation qui leur preschera. Arresté qu'on accorde qu'ils preschent a S. Germain a l'heure qui leur sera la plus commode.

Galiffe has under 1559 Jean Ferrares, N[obl]e François de Lunes, both de Saragosse.) François Machuca d'Alcala d'Henares, Jean Tallaverano, Grégoire de Lard, armurier, et N[obl]e Calcao, Calcanio, Carcanio, de Cordoue, Ferdinand, 1559, avait été moine et était soupçonné d'être espion. This Calcao is no doubt the Calcas of the following extract from the Registre du Consistoire de Genève. Du jeudy 20 de juing 1560. A comparu le ministre espagnol de ceste cité, propousant qu'il a faict icy arrester ung espagnol, lequel a esté quelque temps en ceste cité, por l'évangile, comme il disoyt; mais il ne le voyoit bien peu souvent en leurs assemblees et aux lecons publiques: qui le rendoit fort suspect d'estre espie et papiste, et tenir et avoir du caffart, car il avoyt esté moyne. Ayant demouré deux moys en ceste cité, il s'en alla à Lyon; et incontinent qu'il y fut, deux fidèles espaignolz furent emprisonnez por l'évangile; et sont en grand danger de mort; et craint on que ce ne fust luy mesme qui en aye esté cause qu'ilz sont pris, et qu'il ne les aye accusez. De Lyon, il est retourné icy, là où l'ayant trouvé, l'a faict arrester por estre interrogué là dessus, et por scavoir que c'est. Appellé, le dict espagnol a dict qu'il est en bonne délibération de user chrestienne-

*) I do not know the Historia de la Inquisicion en las islas Canarias by A. Millares. Las Palmas de Gran-Canaria. 1874. Among the Spanish manuscripts in the British Museum (Gayangos' Catalogue vol. 2, p. 567) there is a letter written at Brussels in December 1527 by an advocate at the Court of Brabant to the Imperial Chancellor, about a friend of the writer, Jacobus of Grunnenberg, arrested in the Canary Islands on suspicion of Lutheranism and taken to Spain.

) The elector Palatine Frederik recommends to Calvin, in a letter dated 9 Febr. 1564 a Franciscus de Luna, of whom he writes: Dicit se Hispanum esse, nobili genere apud suos ortum, religionis ergo exsilium pati . . . Quum autem vestram ecclesiam invisere decreverit, ubi fortassis apud suae nationis homines pleniora adiumenta expectat . . . (Corp. Ref. 48, 255.) This Luna, according to this letter, seems not to have been at Geneva before 1564.

Interrogué qu'il scait faire, diet qu'il se mesle de faire du savon, et a loué une barque por aller quérir des pierres por faire la cendre. Advis de le renvoyer à Mess^{rs} por luy bailler bon courage, et fassent appeller Amyed Varod, por luy chanter sa leçon de ce qu'il avoyt respondu por luy, sans l'havoir congneu aultre part qu'icy; puis luy enjoignent qu'il tienne de près le dit espagnol, pour seavoir qu'il fera et dira: aultrement, qu'on se prendra à luy, et au dit M^e Sterpin ensemble. Le dit espagnol se nomme Ferdinandus Calcas. On the margin: Renvoyé à Messieurs à lundy. (This article has kindly been copied, on my demand, by Mr. Eugène Ritter, Professor at the University of Geneva. I knew of the affair from A. Cramer's autographed extracts.) Galiffe has Sterpon, Sterpin 1560. Baptiste is perhaps Alonso Bautista de Canaria.

Livre du Conseil des affaires de la ville. Lundi 14 Juillet 1561 (folio 215); a la requeste du ministre espagnol a este arreste de retirer le dit [ministre] espagnol [à l'hôpital] jusqu'à ce qu'il soit guéri.

Registre miscellané, bibliothèque mste, n^o 59, in-folio, written about the middle of the 18. century, and bought not long ago for the Archives of Geneva, p. 364—365; Es anneés 1555 et suivantes plusieurs familles s'étant retirées pour la religion demanderent une eglise pour faire le service en leur langue, et ils eurent pour ministre 1558 Jean Pereira qui se retire par congé en 1561. We know (see note 44) that the name of the ministre espagnol at Geneva who in 1560 got a license to print his Epistola consolatoria, is Juan Perez, otherwise called Pierius (see note 1), and no doubt he is meant by that name Jean Pereira, as also by the name Jean Pererius, the only one registered En L'Eglise Espagnole in a catalogue of Geneva Ministers and Professors written at the end of the 17. century, in a manuscript volume of the bibliothèque des manuscrits aux archives de l'état de Genève, n^o 7, fol. 193. Another person Jehan Pereri, ministre of the parishes of Neydan and Feigères, who in 1561 was discharged from his service, in order to go to Merindol, his successor being Jehan du Peril (see the manuscript Registres de la compagnie des pasteurs de Genève, in the archives of this Vénérable compagnie, and compare Corp. Ref. vol. 46, col. 606. 719). Archinard in his Genève ecclésiastique 1861 has left out this Jehan Pereri where he ought to have named him p. 36, and in the Supplément we find immediately after Pereira p. 5: 1561 Juan Perez (voy. dans la Revue germanique du 31 Octobre 1861, un article [which I do not know] de J. M. Guardia sur l'Espagne protestante p. 531 et 533); after Perez no successor is mentioned in that Supplément, whilst the list of the Italian Pastors runs there from 1542 to 1753. The fact is, that Juan Perez is the only Spanish minister who had a congregation at Geneva, and that he functioned 1558—61. Not even Galiffe is well informed about him; he has the article: Perera, Perez, Purius [read Pierius], de . . . ? Jean 1558, ministre de l'Eglise espagnole, 1559. Among the Portugais Galiffe has Fernand et G. Perez, à Lyon et à Genève, 1553. — In the ms. Livre du Conseil des affaires de la ville I did not find Juan Perez's name in any form.

The reason is clear why in the years 1559 and 1560 no Spaniards or Portuguese are inscribed in the Italian church. Burlamachi has 1561 Francesco d'Andrada Portugheze (Galiffe Franç. d'Andreada). Galiffe, in the Spanish colony: Etienne Ruds, avant 1563. 1563 Burl.: Gio: Luigi Dalzamera Spagnuolo, Galiffe Jean-Louis-Bon Dalzamara. 1564 Burl.: Antonio Archier Sardo, probably a relation of Sigismondo Archer or Arquer, burnt as a heretic at Toledo in 1571 . . . (I put some stops between inscriptions of the same year, when I leave out some name). Francesco Gottierrres Spagnuolo = Galiffe's Frç. Gutieres. Pietro Giugnes; Galiffe's Pierre Giugnès 1564 and Pierre Nunio ou Niuno 1567 are, I think, the same person: Pedro Nuñez de Avila, on whom see below here a special article . . . Francesco Massuello Spagnuolo; this family has continued to live at Geneva for two centuries, at present elle est éteinte there. Under 1564 Galiffe has also Emmanuel Amador. 1565 Burl.: Pietro Vrtaldo Spagnuolo.

A ms. of the 18. century in the Archives of Geneva: Mémoires concernant l'Eglise Italienne de Geneve, notes under the year 1566: On recevra les Espagnols Prosélites dans le Con^{re} [Consistoire] Italien, et deia auant ce temps la [on en a reçu] plusieurs.

1567 Burl. Pietro Dux d'Alba (wanting in Galiffe) . . . Bernardo Dalmaras Spagnuolo . . . Giouanni Tallauera di Barcellona. Galiffe has besides a certain Jaques. 1548 Burl.: Ruy Dies Spagnuolo, Galiffe: Ruy Dias ou Vias, de Séville . . . Onorio Vsas di Siuiglia, whom Galiffe has under 1569 as Onorio Usaz. 1569 Burl.: Pietro Paulo Spagnuolo, probably the same whom Galiffe has under 1558. 1570 Burl.: Tibaldo Dux d'Alba (wanting in Galiffe. Are there meant two Spanish dukes of Alba?). 1574 Galiffe has the Portugais: Salvador Mediena, de Vimiero. 1577 Burl.: Alfonso Martines Spagnuolo, Galiffe: Marchiolo, Marchivolo, Marciolo, Machiola, de Séville, François-Fernandès, 1577; son fils B. G. [bourgeois genevois] 1578. 1582 Burl.: Pietro Galasio Spagnuolo, read Galesio; on him I hope to give afterwards a fuller notice. Sebastianus Perés (= Perez) Spagnuolo. 1584 Burl.: Jacomo Farco dà Sondrio. Gio: Farcas Spagnuoli. Emanuel Farcas Spagnuoli. Galiffe has: Farcas ou Farias, de Séville, François, 1556; Jean et Emmanuel 1582 (not 1584); he does not mention Farco da Sondrio whom I have registered on account of the next plural Spagnuoli. 1587 Burl.: Gasparo Remires Spagnuolo; also in Galiffe Gsp. Ramirez with the same year; I do not know why I put an interrogation after the year in my extracts from Burl. Under the same year Galiffe has Pierre Galiffo. 1589 Burl.: Giouanni Cardenasso Spagnuolo . . . Giouanni Herrera Spagnuolo. The latter one in Galiffe with the year 1584. 1607 Ludouico d'Aquila Spagnuolo. This is the last Spaniard mentioned as such by Burlamachi. From Galiffe's lists are to be added the Portugais: Emmanuel Franzese 1613, and two Spaniards, Gaspard Maxica, de Valladolid, who in 1636 became bourgeois of Geneva, and Emmanuel Gonzales 1735.

I still give from Burlamachi the numbers of the votes in the elections of the heads of the Italian congregation. In the year 1556 voti 57. 1557: 77. 1558: 74. 1559: 98. 1560: 96. 1561: 115. 1562: 95. 1563: 117. 1564: 110. 1565: 101. 1566: 100. 1567: 96. 1568: 146 (the highest of all numbers registered). 1569: 137. 1570: 118. 1571: 69. 1577: 75. 1578: 104. 1591: 33 (the smallest number of all mentioned). 1669: 60. (I do not recollect whether Burlamachi does not register any more numbers of votes, or whether I abridged after 1571).

Eberhardt von Retzoldt tells in the preface, dated May 1601, to his edition and translation of the confession of the evangelical Spaniards at London (see below in the article Reina), that twenty years ago he had seen at Geneva a pretty considerable number of fugitive Spaniards and Italians who had their own church there: wie ich dann auch selbst Anno 1581 zu Genff einen zimlichen Anzahl Hispanier vnd Italianer gesehen, welche allda in exilio sich verhalten, vnnnd jhr eigne Kirch haben, deren Prediger dazumahl Signor Balbada [read Balbani] genennt worden.

46) Julian Hernandez, and smuggling of Protestant books into Spain.

An appendix to Skinners translation of the Inquisitionis artes, London 1569, gives the following on Julianillo, in a notice on the Serillian auto of 1560 (according to a copy of that appendix made for me in 1862 by Wiffen): Julian Hernandez, born at Valverde. This man was a corrector to the print of such books as were printed at Geneva in the Spanish tongue; and afterwards, for the zeal he had, to set forward the Gospel, returned into Spain, where after he had continued certain years distributing Testaments and other godly books, that were in the Spanish tongue, to divers men and in sundry places, he returned into Flanders, and by occasion of a certain book, which he had given to a smith who showed the same secretly to a priest who complained thereof further to the Inquisitors, this Julian was sought for and apprehended by certain Familiars who hunted after him in his way going to a city called Palma, and by them was cast into prison, afterwards condemned by the Inquisitors, and died most constantly for the profession of the Gospel of Christ; having great disputations during the time of his imprisonment with a learned Clerk and a famous Divine, one D. Hernando Rodriguez. According to a relacion manuscrita in possession of Menendez Pelayo (p. 444) the delator was a woman who by a mistake of persons commissioned with the distribution had received a copy of the Imagen del Antecristo. Olié el Julian lo que pasaba, y huyó [de Sevilla] .. vinieron á prenderle en la sierra de Córdoba junto á Adamúz. When he was burnt, 22 December 1560, he had been ultra triennium in prison, Gonz. 219.

*The Testaments which according to Skinner, Julianillo distributed in Spain during his stay there between his two journeys abroad, could only have been Perez's N. T. of 1556. As he cannot have left Spain later than 1557, where according to Skinner he had made a stay of certain years, it would follow that he returned there from Geneva in 1555 or 1554. We have, however, no trace of Spanish books printed at Geneva before 1555, except the catechism of 1550, the translator of which appears to have been without assistance of a countryman (see his preface above here n° 211). Nor do Gonz. and Crespin speak of more than one stay of Julianillo abroad. I therefore think, it was at the end of his only stay at Geneva that he carried to Spain the duo ingentia dolia librorum sacrorum, as Gonz. says, certainly meaning the N. T. and the Psalms, both translated by Perez. This travel is placed by Valera in 1557, Dos tratados 1599 p. 249. and Exhortacion prefixed to the bible of 1602, fol. 3.

Professor Wm J. Knapp, now of Yale College, New Haven, has found the official list of the books carried into Spain by Julianillo, which list was posted on the Iglesia mayor at Úbeda in 1558.

In the Histoire des vrayes Tesmoins de la verite de l'evangile. Iean Crespin. 1570. the article on Iulien Hernandez begins in this way (fol. 543): Ce Iulien qui pour sa petitesse s'appelloit le petit, seruoit a Geneue Iean Pieres Espagnol ministre de l'Euangile, lorsque par la frequentation de plusieurs doctes hommes, continuant la vraye religion, fut poussé d'un zeile d'esprit, plus que du conseil & aduis d'aucun, d'entreprendre vne chose d'aussi grande importance, comme elle estoit subiecte à danger euident. Car il mena & fit porter en Espagne grande quantité de liures de la saincte Escriture en langue Espagnole, de grand desir qu'il auoit de faire croistre la lumiere de l'Euangile en son Espagne ... This is reprinted in the later editions. On the whole the article is taken from Gonzalez, but the circumstance that Julian served at Geneva Juan Perez, minister of the Gospel, is an addition to a fact concerning Geneva on which one must believe Crespin well informed. As for chronology, it may be quite exact, that Julian felt himself inspired to that perilous transport, while he served Perez at Geneva. But as Perez left Geneva in 1556, where he only returned in 1558, Julian purposed in 1556 what he executed in 1557, or he got the idea of carrying himself the books to Spain, when he at Geneva served Perez who was at Frankfort. It is indeed very likely that Julian corrected Spanish proof-sheets printed at Geneva in the absence of Perez.

The smuggling of Protestant books into Spain was continued. Rahlenbeck, in the Bulletin du bibliophile belge, t. XII, Bruxelles 1856, p. 250 relates that Marco Perez, négociant plusieurs fois millionnaire and member of the consistory of the Calvinists of Antwerp, had evangelical books printed in Spanish and sent to his native country. La gouvernante, attentive à ses manoeuvres, le denonça à Philippe II. Elle conseilla au roi de faire visiter tous les navires qui viendraient en Espagne, afin de s'emparer de trente mille exemplaires d'une traduction de Calvin et de dix prédicateurs, qui devaient accompagner cet envoi. On fouilla beaucoup, mais on ne trouva rien. Les précautions des marchands missionnaires avaient été bien prises. Ils expédiaient par voie de terre ou par voie de mer, suivant les avis qu'ils recevaient de la Péninsule. Leur agent principal en Andalousie était un Anversois nommé Tilman qui tenait boutique à Séville et à Medina del Campo. Un autre correspondant dont il nous a été impossible de retrouver le nom, se tenait constamment à Léon de Francia [viz. Lyon]; il y attendait les ballots de contrebande et savait les faire passer inaperçus par les montagnes de la Navarre et les plaines de l'Aragon. Grâce à cette double voie d'expédition desservie avec autant de zèle que d'intelligence, Marc Perez et ses amis inondèrent l'Espagne de leurs livres, lesquels n'étaient pas seulement: L'institution de la religion chrétienne, par Calvin, dont nous avons parlé tout à l'heure [annotation of Rahlenbeck: Les 30,000 exemplaires en espagnol furent suivis d'une édition en basque également expédiée d'Anvers], mais une foule de petits traités d'un format très-portatif, de brochures et de pamphlets. On les rencontre pour la plupart dans l'index expurgatoire, publié en Madrid, en 1583, par le cardinal Quiroga, et Dieu sait si la liste en est longue!

A Spanish translation printed at Saragosse of Calvin's Christian Institutions is mentioned in an anonymous article on archbishop Carranza in the Documentos inéd. t. 5. 1844, p. 400: La cosa llegó á punto que por aquel tiempo se imprimió en Zaragoza en idioma español el famoso libro de Calvino de las Instituciones christianas.

An Italian translation of Calvin's Institution had been printed already in 1557 at Geneva.

46) Maximilian II.

Calvin writes to Nidbruck, Maximilian's Counsellor, 20 March 1556: Quodsi eius opera et autoritate Christi regnum propagari contingat, iusta omnibus Dei filiis erit gratulationis causa. Quum ante annos quindecim agerem in Germania, præclaram eius indolem omnes laudabant. Postea virtutum maturitas celebrata fuit, ac inprimis studium pietatis, cuius fructum brevi emergere cupio, et mihi, simulac data fuerit facultas, abs te promitti libenter ominor. (Corp. Ref. 48, 446.) Melancthon writes to Maximilian on the 5. July 1556, he prayed, and many pious persons prayed and sighed, that His Majesty might become an instrument of God for the welfare of the church. (Horawitz' Beiträge, Sitzungsberichte der Phil.-hist. Classe der Akad. Wien 1874. Bd. 76, S. 311.) In a letter to Calvin, Pollanus writes on February 8. 1556, that Zasius, a counsellor of king Ferdinand, lately reported that King Maximilian had publicly and aloud said to a Carmelite who had just descended from the pulpit: satis docte concionatus es, sed quod opera tantum extuleris, fidem vero parum, non probo. (Corp. Ref. 44, 20 sq.). In December 1557 Maximilian invited P. P. Vergerio, who stayed at Tübingen, to spend Christmas with him at Vienna, and from there Vergerio wrote in February 1558 to the duke of Wirtemberg, illum gubernari a Spiritu sancto. (Vergerio's Briefwechsel 1875, p. 156. 163). In 1558 Maximilian; in a letter to the same duke, expressed his joy on the Frankfort recess, in which the evangelical princes of Germany had declared their alliance in matters of religion; in this way, he says, one cuts the Pope's throat (sticht man dem Papst den Hals ab. Le Bret, Magazin, t. 9. Ulm 1785. p. 122). David Chytraeus, the author of the History of the Augsburg confession, wrote to the Emperor in 1569 (12 Jan.): Nec multis seculis in Romana monarchia ullum Imperatorem tali pietatis exemplo ad laudatissimorum regum Davidis, Josaphati, Ezechiae, Constantini Magni, Theodosii et paucorum aliorum imaginem propius accessisse et illustriorem in ecclesia sanctorum gloriam adeptum esse iudico; and a year later (20 Jan. 1570): Cæs. Maiestatis Vestrae sapientiam et moderationem heroicam qua in his religionum dissidiis, a crudelibus consiliis abhorrens, iustis ac veris rationibus restituere ecclesiae concordiam et simul gloriæ Christi et pulcherrimo ecclesiae ordini et tranquillitati reipublicæ consulere conatur; in this same letter he states concerning His Majesty: quam ecclesiae Romanæ ex professo coniunctam esse omnes cernunt, quamque Lutheranorum dissidiis plurimum offendi ex Cæs. M. V. sermone ipse cognovi. (Davidis Chytræi epistolæ. Hanoviae 1614, p. 41 sq. 643 sq.)

On Maximilian's religious position compare (besides my note in the Life of the brothers Valdés appended to the German translation of the Hundred and ten Considerations p. 363) Maurenbrecher in Sybel's Historische Zeitschrift 1874, Bd. 32, p. 221 f., also the periodical Theologische Studien und Kritiken 1873, p. 721 f., and Bindseil's collection: Melanthonis epistolæ 1874, p. 454. 489.

I do not know whether the editions Bruxelles 1823 and Bruxelles 1838, which I only found noticed in an antiquarian catalogue, are reprints of the above large work or an abridgment of it.

Many letters of Juan Perez are among Dr. Bergenroth's transcripts, now in the British Museum, and registered among other papers in the Catalogue of the manuscripts in the Spanish language in the British Museum by Don Pascual de Gayangos. Vol. II. London 1877. The Perez letters are registered on p. 559—570.

The following is a chronological list of all letters of Juan Perez registered by Gayangos, together with those known from the above mentioned volume of the Documentos inéditos and from Rodriguez Villa. Those, on which I have not noted: not BM, are in the British Museum. All those, which are found in the book of Rodriguez Villa, have in my list got the notice RV; likewise all those found in the Documentos inéditos, have the notice: Doc. Also the passages extracted by Llorente are referred to. All letters seem to be written in Spanish; the only Latin document seems to be the Instrumentum publicum of 12 Dec. 1526 found also among the London transcripts, but printed already in 1527. I also have inserted in the list the letters of the Emperor to Perez contained in the Bergenroth collection registered by Gayangos. By saying that certain letters are partly printed, I do not mean to say that the others are printed without omissions.

All letters are to the Emperor, except three, viz. two to Lope de Soria (March 2 and 18. 1527), one probably to Alonso Sanchez (3 May 1527).

New Testament.

The Valladolid catalogue of 1559 with mandate of August 17 prohibits: Testamento nuevo, en qlquier lengua vulgar: y especial los Testamentos impressos en Venecia, en casa de Ioan Philadelfo, año de 1556. sin nòbre del traductor. By los Testamentos are meant the copies of the N. T. Llorente seems to have thought that there were meant the Old Testament and the New Testament, for he reports in the Historia t. 4, p. 266, that the prohibitory edict of 17 August 1559 (compare ib. p. 263 f.) was registered la Biblia sagrada, traducida en lengua castellana by Juan Perez.

The above is given according to the copies of Vienna and of Reuss. They have beside the device: y es ancho, and so has the Stuttgart copy. Other copies have y ancho without es; so Riederer's copy (compare below n° 239), Betts' copy, the Catálogo de la bibliot. de Salvá. 1872. t. 2, p. 818, and a copy in Madrid Nacional libr. according to Menendez 459, and so, if I am not mistaken, has the Leipzig copy; I am still more uncertain about the others. Nor do I know whether all copies here mentioned have the index on the back of the title-page; the Stuttgart one and that of Betts have it.

De la Serna Santander says in the catalogue of his collection, Catalogue des livres de la bibliothéque de M. C. de la Serna Santander, t. 1, Bruxelles, an XI (1803), p. 20: Edition très-rare et la seule qui ait été faite de cette version.

A copy of this N. T., ancient calf, gilt edges, from the Bathurst library, was offered for £ 3. 3s. in Quaritch's Catalogue, London, February 1873, p. 968, n° 11700. In the same bookseller's catalogue n° 297, London, June 1875, p. 485, n° 6167: fine copy in blue morocco extra, gilt edges, £ 3. 10s.*

Lib. 5. S. Fac. fol. 183.

In the Index, in the second part of this second tome of Du Plessis d'Argentré's Collectio judiciorum, p. 377, this Censura Propositionum novi Testamenti Hispanici has the date 1574. 2 Augusti.

Nobody since is known to have seen a copy of this New Testament.

According to a letter of Casiodoro de Reina dated 27 Septembre 1567, at that time a Spanish New Testament was printing in France; and in April of the next year king Philip II of Spain ordered his representative in France to try to get the Spanish Bible manuscript and whatever was printed from it. When publishing that letter of Reina, I pointed out this passage of Philip's letter and the article of Du Plessis d'Argentré, and I expressed my opinion that the New Testament in question was a revision of the translation of Juan Perez, enriched by annotations (see my Romanische Studien. Heft XV. Bonn 1880. P. 483 f.).

Small octavo.

VIENNA Court. No other copy has been discovered.

The ornamented initials D and P p. 9 and 117 are identical with those which in Perez's New Testament begin the epistola dedicatoria and the epistola en que se declara &c. Both are printed by Crespin at Geneva.

The autoridades de la sancta escritura are taken from Perez's N. T., with unimportant changes.

This catechism is not independent from Calvin's, but is not a translation of it. The prayers p. 111 — 116 are essentially the same as some in Calvin's catechism (compare above here p. 43, note 2).

The inquisitorial indices prohibit this publication as well under the title Sumario as under that of Catechismo. The Valladolid index of 1559 prohibits among the books en Romance: Catechismo compuesto por el Doctor Juan Perez. Impreso en Venecia, en casa de Pedro Daniel, año de .1556. aunque dize falsamente, visto por los Inquisidores de España. and afterwards in the same section: Sumario de doctrina Christiana, compuesto por el doctor Jua Perez. Impreso en Venecia, por Pedro Daniel. Both notices are repeated in the Antwerp index of 1570; ed. of 108 pgs [VIENNA Court], p. 97 and 105. The Madrid index of 1583 has the Catechismo compuesto por el doctor Juan Perez, aunque falsamente dize que fué visto por los inquisidores de España, and Sumario de doctrina Christiana, compuesto por el doctor Juan Perez, and besides: Juan Perez, doctor, un su catechismo y psalms traducidos y sumarios de doctrina christiana; according to the reprint in de Castro's Hist. d. l. Prot. Esp. p. 436. 445. 441. Sandoval y Royas index 1612. Palermo reprint 1628. Prohib. p. 59: Doctor Juan Perez, Catechismo, que falsamente dize fue visto por los Inquisidores de España, Psalms, and Sumario de Doctrina Christiana.

Llorente, Historia t. 4, p. 266, registering four works of Perez prohibited in 1559, has under n° 2 the Catecismo, under n° 4 the Sumario de la doctrina cristiana; he evidently took them for two different works. In Llorente's Spanish text the Sumario is said impreso en la misma imprenta, which means at Pedro Daniel's in Venice, for he gives this printing-place as that of n° 2, saying also on n° 3, the Psalms: impresos allí. In the French translation of Llorente's History there is said: Ces deux derniers ouvrages (viz. n° 3 and 4) sortirent des mêmes presses que le premier, no press nor place, however, being mentioned under n° 1, which, besides, according to the Valladolid catalogue was printed by Joan Philadelpho at Venice, as really is read on the title; premier is therefore a mistake of the translator or of the printer for deuxième.

Menendez 463: El Sumario de doctrina christiana que allí [en los Índices] tambien se veda, no debe de ser obra distinta del Breve Tratado. Llorente cita una edicion de Venecia, por Pedro Daniel, 1556, y otra sin lugar, de 1559, que será, segun conjeturamos, la de 1560. But Llorente does not say anything about different editions of any of the works of Perez, nor does he give any year for the edition of the Sumario, prohibited, as he relates, in 1559; nor is the Sumario identical with the Breve Tratado.

Pellicer, Ensayo, p. 122: En la edicion que hemos visto [B^a R^l] no hay mas principios que la dedicatoria y la declaracion, en donde nada se dice. Acaso en el exemplar que tuvo a mano le Long, habia algun Prologo que falta en el nuestro. The typographical signatures prove, on the contrary, that the copies, which, between the title and the translation, only have the dedication and the declaration, are complete. In fact, there is nothing found there on Perez's translation of the N. T. Le Long made some confusion; see another one of his in our article on Reina.

The ornament at the end of the first informacion p. „113“ is identical with that in the same place in the French separate edition published by Jean Crespin of this work of Sleidan (see p. 283 of my publication registered here below n° 261) and with that at the head of the title of the Psalms of Perez 1557; and the initial A of the second informacion is that of p. 6 of the Oeuvres de I. Sleidan. Chez Jean Crespin. 1566.

Joannes Sleidanus is a first class prohibited author in the Roman Index of 1558, also under the name Baptista Lasdemius (sic, instead of Lasdenius), which figures together with the other name without a hint to the personal identity. I think, in this Index is found an article which I only copied from the Roman Index of January 1559 [FRANKFORT o. M. City], fol. D 3, among incertorum auctorum libri prohibiti: liber inscrip. Capo finto. This is an Italian translation of the first form of Sleidanus' oration to the German States. In the Valladolid Index of 1559: Joannis Sleidani orationes duæ: altera ad Carolu. V. Imp. altera ad principes Germaniæ. Antwerp Index 1570, p. 79: Iehan Caluin, Iehan Sleidan, & tous les auteurs condamnés & inutiles . . sont aussi defendus en toutes langues. — The Dos informaciones seem to have been expressly prohibited only in 1603. Wiffen noted that they are registered in the Roman Index of 1607; W. J. Knapp copied for me the passage, p. 732: Dos Informaciones muy vtils, la vna dirigida alla M. dell' Emperator Carlos Quinto, sine loco impressionis 1599. omnino prohibentur. This date 1599 recurs in the reprints. Dos informaciones muy vtils, la vna dirigida alla M. dell' Emperator Carlos V. sine loco impressionis 1599. omnino prohibentur. Recusus Pragæ .. 1726 p. 111. This date 1599 for the Dos informaciones is, in all probability, only a misprint faithfully reprinted for 1559.

Wiffen notes from Bentley and Walford's auction catalogue, London 1687, p. 60: Dos informaciones del Principe Christiano en la causa del Evangelio. 1552. Octavo. Probably the same work is meant and the same edition of 1559.

In the library of Professor Charles SCHMIDT of Strassburg University. (In 1879 the antiquarian bookseller Ludwig Rosenthal of Munich sold another complete copy of it in Paris, I could not learn to whom. It does not appear in his printed catalogues). In Usóz's copy, at present probably in MADRID National libr., the leaf A .ii. is wanting. Wiffen's copy in Wadham coll., OXFORD, wants the title-leaf and the first two leaves of the Prologo, which three leaves Wiffen replaced by reprinted ones.

Urbanus Regius is a first class prohibited writer in the Roman Index of 1558. The Doctrina vetus & nova is registered there amongst Incertorum auctorum libri prohibiti.

Italian from the Latin: Opera vtilissima | intitolata | Dottrina uecchia | & nuoua. S. l. e. a. Most probably Venice about 1540. (On 24 May 1548, Francesco Spiera, domandato se lui ha libri della Scrittura Santa, says: . . . credo haver visto el beneficio di Cristo, et la doctrina nova et vecchia. Comba: Fr. Spiera. 1872. p. 111). Small Quarto (compare this Bth. Wiff. I, p. XIV). Roman letters. After the title-leaf three unnumbered leaves with Regius' preface. Then text fol. I—LVI. On this last leaf Tavola, fol. LV. p. 2. Errori. WOLFENBÜTTEL Ducal (Theol. 1112, second piece of the vol. The first piece is Opera divina della christiana vita, printed with just the same letters in the same size, prohibited in Pius' IV. Index, Dilingæ 1564, fol. 35; compare the appendix of Valdés Betrachtungen 1869, p. 351. The third one: I principii de la theologia di Ippofilo da Terra negra. Con gratia, et privilegio. viz. Melancthon's Hypotypeses. Both s. l. e. a., most likely Venice).

It is a translation, not, as Perez's work, a remodeling, of Regius' tract. Also the succession of the chapters is the same as in Latin; the chapters de divorum cultu and de cœna domini are forgotten in the index, not left out in the work.

A copy of this work in the Bibliotheca Angelica di ROMA has been reprinted by Benrath in La Rivista Cristiana. Anno III. Firenze 1875. p. 139—158. 185—207. In the Tavola, which is found on fol. 56 as is the case in the Wolfenbüttel copy, the two chapters just mentioned are not left out. If they are not supplied by the editor, the copy at Rome perhaps belongs to a different edition. Benrath gives no title-copy.

I did not examine whether the Spaniard worked upon the Latin or upon the Italian.

There seems to have been made an Italian translation from the Spanish. See Rf. Esp. XVIII, p. 46.

French:

La Doctrine nouvelle & ancienne was already in 1542/3 qualified by the Sorbonne; which in 1551 condemned among writings ab incertis Authoribus: La doctrine nouvelle & ancienne, lesquelles arguent ensemble, pour donner à connoître par la verité evangelique, les abus qui sont amenez en l'Eglise de Dieu. (D'Argentré's Collectio t. II, p. 134. 135. 175). In 1561 La doctrine nouvelle et ancienne was sold in Guibray (Rf. 46, 669). The Antwerp Index of 1570 has the Doctrina vetus et nova and p. 77: La doctrine nouvelle & ancienne; which both appear also in Sandoval y Rojas Index 1612, Palermo reprint 1628, Prohib. p. 31. 32. I do not know whether those French publications contain the work of Regius. It certainly seems to have been translated into French, and even from the French again into Latin; I conclude this from an old notice by a librarian in my above mentioned copy of the Nova doctrina: R 656 (the book under this signature in the same library) est hujus libelli versio Latina e versione Gallica.

Title leaf. Preface á B. B. Wiffen by the unnamed editor, who is Usóz, dated 15. 11° m. 1852, p. I—XX. The work, including ancient title, p. 1—354.

Leaf A ii, the first leaf of the Prologo, was wanting in the copy, then the only one known, from which the reprint was made. Therefore p. 3 of the reprint is without text, only with the number of the page, and framed with lines showing the size of the printed column and of the leaf; p. 4 contains a notice on the defect. In 1860 the wanting leaf was reprinted by Wiffen from Prof. Schmidt's copy and was, together with a label containing a printed note of Wiffen, sent to some possessors of the volume of 1852. Afterwards Usóz printed the same wanting hoja, with the marginal note that Wiffen la ha reimpresso conforme al antiguo: i ahora se reimprime con ligeras variantes; the only change, on which a special notice is made, is that of nos, p. 4, l. 3. into no; the orthography is changed into that of Usóz.

Indices and Notes by editor 11 unnumbered leaves. Apéndize on Urbanus Regius p. 1—6. Errata and list of reprinted Reformistas, one leaf. This volume forms the seventh volume of that series, but no general title, stating this, was printed.

Printed at San Sebastian by Ignazio Ramon Baroja, 457 copies, according to Wiffen's papers.

VIENNA Court. B—r. My copy has the original leaf A ii of this edition with the first page blank, and Wiffen's reprint with his label (containing also autograph remarks by Wiffen), it has not Usóz's reprint. The Vienna copy has neither the original leaf with the blank page nor Wiffen's label, but both reprints, that of Wiffen and that of Usóz.

The article begins: Hay un libro muy precioso, y muy escaso, que tiene por título: Breve Tratado de Doctrina útil para todo cristiano. Dió á luz esta obra El Dr. Juan Perez en el año de 1560, y en su página 65, leemos como sigue, verbatim et literatim: De la satisfaccion. La doctrina nueva de los hombres enseña: Que and so on, not from the edition of 1560, where the chapter begins p. 72, but from the reprint of 1852, where it runs p. 65—81. This is reprinted in the Alba p. 181—193, verbatim, as far as I have compared, but with the common orthography, not with that of Usóz.

 the Epistola consolatoria which is in ZURICH City. The copy in VIENNA Court library has the Erratas, but not the series-title. In the same copies the Spanish preface with the corresponding title-leaf is placed before the English.*

*) Not all those corrections are necessary.

I have got from Wiffen himself a copy of the Noticia prévia (with the Spanish title-leaf), where on p. XXV (corresponding to p. 17 of the reprint of 1874 of the Epistola) he has struck out the sentence beginning Sobretudo and ending otros, and has in the next sentence changed 1556, el mismo año into 1555, el año antes; and has made some corrections and additions in the lista p. XXVIII f. In the copy of the Epistola consolatoria in Vienna Court library are likewise autograph notes by Wiffen in the Noticia previa: p. XXV the same corrections as in my copy; in the lista some of his manuscript notes are identical with those in my copy, some are not in mine, whilst others of my copy are wanting there. I made in my copy a conspectus of both.

The list of erratas of the edition of 1848 (see above n° 269) has not been carefully made use of; I noticed p. 145, l. 19 the tenemos of 1848 instead of the tenemos of 1560 as noted in those erratas. P. 1 in the inscription the S of 1560 and 1848 has been taken for Salvador, being no doubt Señor.

ALONSO DE PEÑAFUERTE.

AN Italian sermon of Bernardino Ochino on the image of the Antichrist was translated from a French translation into Spanish, and was printed in Geneva, with an appendix and a preface, both probably by the translator. The Spanish Imagen was published a short time after Durant's Antithesis Christi et Papae of 1557, with which it has some cuts in common. A copy of this Imagen gave occasion to Julianillo's imprisonment in the same year 1557.¹ In the Inquisitors' catalogue of Valladolid of 1559 this Spanish translation is prohibited together with the original.

We do not know whether Alonso de Peñafuente, as the translator is called on the title, is his real name or a fictitious one.²

1) see above p. 77.

Usóz thought it printed in 1558. Wiffen was not certain about this date, see my article on Perez, note 15.

2) Usóz took this name as a pseudonym of Juan Perez de Montilla, admitting, however, the possibility that Perez was only the revisor and Alonso de Peñafuente another person. Ref. Esp. III, preface. In the Index of the Reformistas prefixed to vol. 20 he says of the Imagen: al parecer, por Juan Perez, compare in the first vol. of this Bth. Wiff. p. 35 f. Peña fuerte i. e. hard rock, said Usóz, could hint at Perez i. e. son of Peter, this name taken in its well known biblical signification. But why Alonso instead of Juan? Besides, Perez treated, three years afterwards, in his Brere tratado, the same antithesis of Christ and Antichrist, in a different way, and with his own name. And in all his publications, as far as we can ascertain, he either presented himself with this his real name or had them published anonymously. Nor is it likely that Perez, who knew Italian, having lived at the Court of Rome, should have translated an Italian sermon from a French translation, whilst he certainly could get the original.

I should rather have thought Alonso de Peñafuente identical with Alonso Bautista de Canaria, if this fugitive did appear earlier at Geneva than 1558. — Nuñez de la Peña, natif of Teneriffa, edited in 1676: Conquista y antigüedades de las islas de la gran Canaria. From Pinna fortis comes also Pennaforte. Raimundus de Pennaforte is a theological writer, ord. Præd.

The two verses at the end from the Gospel of S. John do not agree verbatim with Perez's N. T. Perez has 8, 12: lumbre de vida, not la lumbre de la vida, and 3, 19 los hombres han mas amado a las tinieblas, not han amado mas los h. las t.

Text of the Imagen A II to A VI verso. On the same p. begins the Generation of Antichrist, which ends A VII verso. On the same page a verse beginning Recuerda, ending callando, and two verses from the gospel of John, one from ch. 8, the second from ch. 3. A VIII two cuts, above Christ's ascension, below Antichrist hurled down to hell. A VIII verso blank. No paging. In the later lists of the series Reformistas Españoles numbered as t. 3.*

ZURICH City. In Usó's copy, now probably in MADRID National, from which the reprint of 1849 was made, the order of the printed columns is disturbed, see the notice on it in the reprint. The copy is part of a volume containing, besides the Imagen, the Carta embiada a Don Phelippe (here n^o 249) and Juan Valdés' Commentaries Venecia 1556. 1557 (here n^{os} 84. 85), all del mismo tipo i tamaño de letra, according to Usóz, Imajen p. I, therefore printed by Crespín at Geneva.

On the copy which first got into the hands of the Inquisitors at Serille, a relacion manuscrita in possession of Menendez Pelayo (p. 444) says: Al principio traia estampado al Papa arrodillado á los piés del demonio: y decia ser impreso con licencia de los Sres. Inquisidores. This notice on the Inquisitors license may have been added at Geneva to a certain number of copies, especially of those destined for Spain. Other copies of heretical books seem to have been sent to Spain without title (Menendez 366).

Prohibited in the Valladolid Index of 1559: Imagé del Aantecristo [sic], cōpuesta primeramete en Italiano, y despues traduzida en romãce. por Alũso de Pena fuerte. [not Peña]. The same in the Antwerp Index 1570, p. 102, but Peña fuerte. In the Madrid Index 1583 (according to de Castro Hist. d. l. Prot. VIENNA Court. B—r.

Usóz, the editor, says in the preface to the reprint p. V f.: puede tambien ser, en vez de traduccion de una obra sola del toscano; una recopilacion, de lo que, sobre el asunto, se halla en los sermones i demas escritos del célebre Senés fr. B. Ochini, religioso i docto capuchino. — Si es traduccion de obra determinada, es probable que esta sea tambien traduccion, o deba su orijen a un libro en latin, impreso en Jinebra el año de 1557 en un vol. en 8vo. de 88 pájinas, cuyo titulo es: „Antithesis . . ., reprinted in 1558 and in 1578, in each edition with 36 cuts, of which three are stated by Usóz to be identical with those of the Imagen. Wiffen notes to his title-copy of the Imagen: It is a translation of the 65th predica of Ochino.

We separately treat the different parts of that Spanish composition, which are the Imagen, the cuts, the Generation and the Aviso.

I. The Imagen is indeed a sermon of Ochino.

Bernardinus Ochinus Senen is a first class prohibited author in the Roman Index of 1558; also the Valladolid Index of 1559 prohibits his opera omnia, and again his sermons en qualquier lengua. Antwerp Index 1570, p. 104: Predicas de Bernardino Ochino, en qualquier lengua. Among the Libros en castellano prohibidos in the Madrid Index of 1583, are found (de Castro p. 444); Predicas de fray Bernardino Ochino ó Onichino.

I know two editions of Ochino's Imagine d'Antechristo, in two editions of his sermons. La seconda | parte delle Prediche, di Mess. | Bernardino Ochino Senese, | accuratamente castigate. | Con la sua Tauola | in fine. | S. l. e. a. Octavo. The last piece before the Tavola and also registered in this same tavola, is Ochino's letter doue rende la ragione della partita sua d'Italia, dated Geneua, al septimo d'Aprile, M. D. XLIII. The last sermon of this seconda parte is: L'IMAGINE | D'ANTECHRISTO. | Predica LXV. In the same place it occurs in: La | seconda par- | te delle predi- | che, di M. Bernardino | Ochino Senese, diligente- | mente corrette. | Con la sua tauola in fine. | Octavo, s. l. e. a. On the table of the second part follows the table della terza parte. Ebert in his Bibliogr. Lex., thinks this edition anterior to the other one of the second part. I have examined both of them in FLORENCE in the collection of count Guicciardini, who possessed two copies of the Prediche castigate. The castigate are also in VIENNA Court. Ebert says that the 64th sermon of both these editions of the seconda parte delle prediche was the last one of the fifth volume, dated 15 March 1544, of the first collection, and that the sixth and last volume of that first collection, likewise printed in 1544, only contains sermons of the third volume of the later edition. At all events in 1544 must have existed an edition of Ochino's Image of Antichrist in Italian.

For in this year appeared a French translation: L'image | de l'Antechrist, | compose [without accent] en langve | Italiene par Bernardin Ochin | de Siene, translaté en francoys. | [A hand holding a sword] | L'Agneau qui a esté occiz | vainera. | 1544 [without stop]. One sheet octavo. P. 3—16 numbered, the title-leaf would be 1 and 2. Ends: qu'vn chascun le congnoisse. Ainsi soit il. Fin. ZURICH City. This description is applicable to a reprint, except these changes: Italiene and uainera. | 1545. The sword has in this reprint on three sides (not below) the words: Non veni pa- | cem mittere, | sed gladium. The reprint of 1545 coincides page for page with that of 1544. The differences, as far as I compared, are only typographical. VIENNA Court. Guicciardini's copy at FLORENCE, which I only could look at for a few moments, has the words Non veni &c., divided as I have just related, and most likely belongs to this later edition.

Evidently (I had the copies of Zurich and Vienna at the same time under my eye) both editions came from the same printing office. And the emblem proves that it was that of Jean Girard at Geneva. The sword of the Image with the words Non veni &c. is found on the title of three other publications without the printer's name, in the same volume with the Zurich copy of the Image, viz.: Viret's traicte de l'usage de la salutation angelique &c.; Excuse de I. Calvin, a messieurs les Nicodemites; Advertissement svr la censvre qv'ont faicte les Bestes de Sorbonne, touchant les liures qu'ilz appellent heretiques; all three titles dated 1544: the Advertissement has the same capital I as the Image. Two other works in the same volume have that sword with that inscription, only with other types, and below: A Geneve, par Iehan Girard. 1543. viz.: Vne Epistre de Maistre Pierre Caroly . . à Maistre Guillaume Farel (the first cipher of the year is wanting), and La seconde Epistre enuoyée au Docteur Caroly par Guill. Farel. Also on the title of Pierre Viret's: De la source & de la difference & conuenance de la vieille & nouvelle idolatrie is the sword of the Image with the inscription: Non veni &c. Luc. XII. and below: A Geneve par Iean Girard. 1551. [VIENNA Court]. On this mark of Girard compare Gaullieur Typogr. Genevoise, 1855, p. 132. and: Le catéchisme français de Calvin publié en 1537. Avec deux notices par Albert Rilliet & Théophile Dufour. Genève, Paris 1878. Besides this sword presented by a hand, with or without inscription, Girard used also other marks.

In the catalogue of books censured by the theological Faculty of Paris in 1551 occur (d'Argentré t. 2, p. 178): L'Image de l'Antechrist, composée en langue Italienne, par Bernardin Ochino de Sienne, translätée en François. and Ochino's Sermons, three parts.

The Imagen is translated from the Image, not from the Imagine. — It. has 1. Joan. 4. Fr. I Jeh. 2. 4. Span. 1. Joh. 2. 4. Which of course means chapters 2 and 4 of the first epistle of S. John, and not, as Usóz p. 4. took it, verses 2 and 4 of the first chapter of the gospel. — It.: vorrà che infino l'Imperatore gli baci el pie. Fr.: cotraindra chascun à luy baiser les piedz, voire l'Empereur mesme. Sp.: constriñirá, a cada uno, a que le bese los pies; hasta [a] el Emperador mesmo, Usóz p. 9: A cada uno, es probablemente un italianismo: a ciascuno, q. d. en italiano, lo que en español, a cualesquiera; o mejor, a todos. — It.: dicendo che le riccheze & non l'anime, sonno il patrimonio di Christo. Et doue l'auritia fu in Simon Mago publicamente condannata, in Giuda sospesa, & in Anania occisa, in lui regnarà gloriosa. Fr.: disant, que les richesses temporelles sont le patrimoine de Christ, & non les ames: en sorte que cöbien que Simon magus par son auarice ait esté publiquement condamné, Judas par icelle se soit pendu, & Ananie par la mesme auarice ait esté frappé demort, toutesfois elle regnera glorieusement en l'Antechrist. Sp., Usóz p. 10 f.: diziendo: que las riquezas temporales, son patrimonio de Cristo, i no las animas: de suerte, que aunque Simon Mago fué condenado por su avaricia publicamente; i Judas, por ella, fué ahorcado; i Ananias, por la mesma avarizia, fué herido de muerte. No obstante esto, ella reinará gloriosamente en el Antecristo. — It.: con le insopportabili estorsioni, imposte, decime & graueze. Fr.: par ses extorsions intolerables, impositiös, decimes & faix insupportables. Sp., Usóz p. 11: con sus robos intolerables, imposiciones, diezmos, i leyes insoportables. — It.: se quelli giorni non fusseno abreuati, non si saluarebbe alcuno, in the margin: Mat. 24. Fr.: si ces iours là n'eussent esté abregez, nul ne seroit sauué, in the margin: Luc. 18. Sp.: si estos dias no fuesen (como dize S. Lucas cap. 18) abreviados i acelerados, ni aun queduria hombre que seria salvo, Usóz p. 16 added the words aun quedaria, and noted: la cita de Luc. cap. 18, está, sin duda, trocada por: Mateo cap. 24. v. 22. — It.: quello che è scritto (in the margin: Apoc. 14.), E cascata, è cascata la gran Babilonia. & quello che scrisse Paulo. Fr.: ce, que a esté predit en l'Apocalypse (in the margin: Apoc. 17.). Elle est tombée, elle est tombée, celle grande Babilon. Afín aussi que ce, que Paul a predit. Sp., Usóz p. 19: lo que está profetizado en el Apocali. Cap. 17.^o „Caido ha, caído ha la grande Babilonia, madre de las fornicaciones i abominaciones de la tierra:“ i a fin, ansimesmo, que lo que S. Pablo profetizó. Usóz says on the quotation, in the Imagen, from the Apocalypse: las cuatro primeras voces, son del Cap. 18. v. 2: i las otras, del 17. v. 5. From the above extracts, however, it is clear, that the Italian quotes ch. 14, v. 8, that the French has the erratum ch. 17, and that the Spaniard added some words from ch. 17. — The Imagen, from Frequentemente hazen mençion to paraque cada vno le conozca [A VI verso] fully agrees with the French Image, with rare and unimportant variations.

The edition of 1558 has only got a new title-leaf, in which the year has been changed and the words after the three stars run thus: Cum decalogis vtriusque oppositis, cumque | amborum morum descriptione: quemad- | modum sancta Scriptura tradit. All other parts of the title agree with the edition of 1557 as described above. The book is not a reprint. The copy in VIENNA Court has p. 21 Squammigeri, whilst the copy of 1557 in the same library has Squamigeri, but on the same page verò has a fuding ò in both editions; the double mm had not been corrected in all copies. — Kuczyński Thesaurus libellorum, Lpzg, Weigel 1870, n° 90 offered a copy of 48 leaves of the edition of 1558 for five thalers, although it was nicht ganz sauber; Albert Cohn, CVIII Catalog, containing part of AFH Schneider's library, Berlin 1875, p. 55 n° 837, offered a copy for marks 45.

Usóz says in the Preface to the Imagen of 1849, p. VI f.: La edicion del a. 1578 [of the Antithesis] tiene, como las anteriores [the two of 1557 and 1558], 36 láminas, o grabados en madera, i tres de estos grabados, son idénticos, a los que puso aquí Peñafuerte en su obra, en la cual son laminas, 1.ª 2.ª i 3.ª las que son 36.ª 34.ª i 33.ª en la edic. de Vignon. Como esta reimpression nuestra [of 1849], es copia fiel de la obra de Peñafuerte, en cuanto al testo; así lo es, en cuanto a los grabados. Moreover Usóz points to Lucas Cranach's figures in the Passional Christi vnd Antichristi with text by Martin Luther, and even to earlier producciones del Arte, alusivas al Antecristo. In fact, the representations of the two cuts at the end of the Imagen are most likely varied from the two last of Cranach's 26 drawings in that Passional. It is, however, certainly very much less probable that the three cuts of the Imagen were anterior to, than that they were borrowed from Durant's series. I, therefore, abstain from tracing the history of those representations before the Antithesis of 1557. I only state that the cuts of the Imagen are not found in two undated editions I know of Les faitz de Jesus Christ et du Pape. The initial cut of the Imagen is wanting entirely in those Faitz, and the two cuts, corresponding there to the other two of the Imagen, keep closer to Cranach than these. I know two editions of the Faitz. Les faitz de Jesus Christ et du Pape, par lesquelz chascun pourra facilement congnoistre la grande differēce detre eulx: nouvellement reneuz, corrigez, & augmētez . . . p le lecteur du saint Palais. Title-cut. Cum priuilegio Apostolico. Folio verso: Eusebius ad Lectorem in Antithesin Christi & Antichristi. Quam male convenient cum Christi pectore Jesu . . . Colophon [M 4] Imprime a Rome, au chasteau saint Ange. Cum priuilegio Apostolico. Fin. Gothic. Quarto. [COLMAR, Consistorial library]. Text in prose with 32 cuts. The first of the series is repeated on the title-page, and also another cut is used twice, F 2 and [G 4]. In the cut H 1 is read on a sac the German inscription vmb gelt ein sack vol ablasz, with French translation. From the circumstance that Clement VII is the last Pope against whom there is said something in the prefatory Epistre, one must conclude with probability that this was written during his reign. A reprint [St. GALL City libr.] in Roman letters with the same title (also nouvellement reneuz corrigez & augmentés) and with the same colophon has the identical 32 cuts, also the repetition of the one of them; the title-cut, however, is not the same with the first of the series, but has been imitated from it in a smaller form. The passage on pope Clement is found also here, without additions on later popes. Both editions are without the Genealogie and without Ochino's sermon. The theological Faculty of Paris censured in the catalogue of 1551 (d'Argentré t. 2, p. 176): Les faits de Jesus-Christ & du Pape, par les quels chacun pourra facilement connoitre la grande difference d'entre eux. The Supplément to the Manuel of Brunet, par Deschamps et G. Brunet, t. 1. 1878, col. 46. 47 has: Antithesis Christi et Papæ. Les Faictz de Jésus-Christ et du Pape, par lesquels chascun pourra facilement congnoistre la grāde diffērence de entre eulx: nouvellement reneuz, corrigez et augmentez selon la vérité de la sainete Escripiture et des droiets canons par le lecteur du Sainct Palais. (A la fin:) Imprimé à Rome par Clément de Medicis, au Chasteau Sainct Ange. Cum priuilegio Apostolico, s. d. (Genève, 1530?), pet. in-fol., goth., avec 32 grandes grav. en bois. Ce vol. infiniment rare (nous n'en connaissons qu'un seul exempl.) est tout autre chose que l'Antithesis Christi et Antichristi (Voy. Brunet, vol. 1, col. 324). C'est une traduction non citée jusqu'ici d'une violente diatribe dont l'original latin est attribué à Martin Luther. This edition may be earlier than the two first described. The mention of Clément de Medicis in the colophon confirms my conclusion concerning the time.

III. The Generacion appended to the Spanish Imagen is not contained in any of the works of which we have treated except the Antithese, Rome 1600 (see above p. 108). Le livre de la generation du désolateur Antechrist fils du diable, p. 96 f. of that Antithese, is on the whole identical with the Spanish Generacion, which, however, at the end has some lines more than the French, and differs from this in some particulars. Perhaps both are derived from a Latin original. Where the French has amour de soy-mesme, the Spaniard has philaphthia viz. φιλαψτία. John T. Betts reminds me of some likeness between the Generacion and Francesco Negro's Libero arbitrio, 2^d ed. 1550.

IV. The Aviso I have not met with elsewhere. It refers to the cuts at the end.

REGINALDUS GONSALVIUS, MONTANUS.

IN the year 1567 a Latin work upon the Spanish Inquisition appeared at Heidelberg. The preface treats of the origin of that so called Holy Office. Discussing the principle upon which that tribunal was founded, the writer says: true and saving faith will never be brought forth by violence, neither will heresies be extirpated by the death of heretics; the most appropriate means for both effects is the word of God.¹ The history of the Spanish Inquisition is, to the author's mind, a convincing proof of the baneful nature of such an institution. Possibly in former times the Aragonese might, he says, have been blamed for not receiving without tumult and bloodshed the Inquisition disguised with that beautiful and recent mask of sanctity, when it did not rave and rage against all, but only against Jews and Moors, and from plausible motives; at present, however, as during all these seventyfive years it never ceased to bring such fruits as we are describing here, it does indeed appear that they are not to be held to be wholly fools who strive, as they best may, to eject it out of their country. On the contrary, insanity it must be thought, if they would admit knowingly and willingly the wildest enemies of religion.² In the work itself the author relates the proceedings of the Inquisitors in detecting and arresting delinquents, in examining them and in extorting confessions, he exposes some other Inquisitorial practices, and at last describes the autos-de-fe. The instances produced in this treatise as also in an additional collection are taken from the period between 1557 or 58 and 1564,³ and especially from what took place in the jurisdiction of Seville, where the authors had, as they say, experienced in their own persons the greater deal of the mysteries of the Holy Office.⁴ From this passage it is evident that more than one person worked at this treatise and the examples, interwoven and additional, and that at least one of them had not left Spain before 1564. An appendix gives some lives of Sevillian evangelical martyrs of 1559 and 1560. Here the writer shows himself as a very near friend of Juan Ponce de Leon⁵ who was burnt in 1559; he has seen Dr. Gil in the prison, he listened there to the history of his life, and he has read his apology;⁶ he is occupied with preparing for print some commentaries of Dr. Constantino,⁷ whose death was told him by the young monk who closed the eyes of that sufferer.⁸ One should suppose the writer to have been a witness of both those autos, and there is no reason to think him a different person from those who composed the preceding treatise and examples. The title of the book names as author: Reginaldus Gonsalvius Montanus, in which name the patronymic is Gonsalvius, in Spanish Gonzalez, the word Montanus referring to his native place.⁹ The notice on the authorship is in most copies

1) Fol. I.

2) Last page of Preface. — Even Sleidanus in his Information to the Emperor, which was translated into Spanish by Juan Perez (see above here p. 67), had approved of the Inquisition proceeding against Christians who fell into Judaism (p. 162 of my edition, Spanish in Rf. Esp. t. 12, p. 74).

3) p. 175. According to Idor. c. XXVIII. art. I. § 7 (French 3, 29), also on p. 184 of the Artes the right date would be 1564 instead of 1563.

4) P. 174: unius modo ex Inquisitoriis tribunalibus, nempe Hispalensis, sunt, cuius solius mysteria cognoscere, et maiori ex parte in se ipsis experiri traductoribus est datum. The traductores are those by whom the Inquisitionis artes are, as the title-page says, palam traductæ, exposed to ignominy. Compare traducere p. 173. 205. The passage has not been understood by the French translator in the Hist. des martyrs 1582, fol. 494: celuy de Seville, duquel les secrets mysteres ne sont bien cogneus que de ceux qui l'experimentent en leurs propres personnes, nor by the Spanish: del de Sevilla, del cual, unicamente fué dado al que esto escribe, conozer los misterios, i aun esperimentarlos, en su mayor parte, en si mismo, with the note: El orij. está oscuro, i aun quizá haya errata, nor is the correction dado á los .. escriben and mismos, Rf. Esp. XIII, appdx p. 31, sufficient; traducere is not simply escribir, it means: to hold up to contempt.

6) p. 272. 256 f. The words p. 272 haud aliunde quam ex ipsius [Ægidii] ore, atque etiam in ipso carcere didicimus do not necessarily imply that Gons. himself was incarcerated, as Llorente has interpreted them c. XVIII. art. I. § 8 and 16 (French 17).

7) p. 284.

8) p. 291.

9) The words REGINALDO GONSALVIO are thus printed in capitals, whilst of Montano only the initial letter is a capital. The prohibitory indices only speak of Reginaldus Gonsalvius, not adding Montanus. — Valera says in the exhortacion of his Bible fol. *3: Benito Arias natural de Frexenal de la Sierra (y por esso se llama Montano, al qual yo conoci . .). Valera's explication of the name Montano has been contradicted by José Rodríguez de Castro, Biblioteca Española, t. 1, Madrid 1781, placed so closely ¹⁰ together with the lines concerning the appendix, that it seems to refer exclusively to this, not to the preceding two articles of the title; one copy, however, is known in which it is separated from all three paragraphs by a verse of the psalms, so that one must think Gonzalez the author of the whole book. Such a general meaning is not contradicted by the fact that several hands contributed to the work. For doubtless the redaction has been performed by one person. The whole book from beginning to end is written in the same Latin style. Most likely the editor, who certainly was a Spaniard, has translated from Spanish ¹¹ the materials

p. 660: Fue hijo de Benito Arias Montano, Notario ó Escribano. No se llamaba Montano con alusion á las sierras ó montes en que está situado Frexenal, como dice Valera; and also by the biographer of Benito Arias the theologian, in t. 7 of the Memorias de la acad. de la hist. Nevertheless one should think that Valera must have known it better; he may have meant: B. A. M. called himself Montano on account of those Estrenadura mountains, as his father had already done. At all events, Valera took the name Montano as indicative of place, and so he furnishes a parallel for Regin. Gonsalvius, Montanus. Of course, the mountains might be others than in the case of Arias. Montano might also mean montañés, such as was Antonio del Corro by origin.

10) closer still than in the reproduction added to the reprint of 1857.

11) Joachim Ursinus or Beringer says in the preface to his edition of this book in German, that it was written in the Spanish language by a pious and distinguished man, Reginaldus Gonsalvius who had observed with his own eyes and had been informed by trustworthy witnesses. Quoted by Usóz Rf. Esp. XIII, appd. p. 13, Wiffen p. XI in the Preface to Betts' translation of Constantino's Confession. It must be this passage, of which Rahlenbeck, Bulletin du bibliophile belge, 1865, t. XXI, p. 159 has made la déclaration de Joachim Beringer dit Ursinus, qui dit avoir vu le manuscrit espagnol; Ursinus does not say any such a thing. The combination of Usóz, Rf. Esp. V, appdx. p. 14, according to which Ursinus was at Heidelberg when the Artes were printing, is erroneous, this Joachim Ursinus not being a son of Zacharia Ursinus, but of Salmuth, a Protestant Superintendent at Leipzig, who died in 1576, see Adelung's continuation of Jæcher's Gelehrten-Lexicon, vol. 1. 1784, col. 1725, cf. Jæcher vol. 4. 1751, col. 69f. As Ursinus gives extracts of letters from Spain on the first Valladolid auto, Usóz thought it most natural to suppose that he was a personal friend of Gonzalez; but those extracts and the whole article on that auto are simply translated from the German Martyrbuch of Crocius 1606, who translated it from the Geneva martyrology, which French text is founded on a German separate publication of 1559. The above passage of this Ursinus, written more than forty years after the publication of the Artes, has no authority. The bookseller's dedication, dated March 28. 1569, of the German translation published by him in this year in Heidelberg, where the Latin Artes had appeared two years before, only says that a faithful servant of God had been moved to write that book in the Latin language. — Nor is it probable that he who wrote the book in Latin had first furnished him by a friend or some friends, and has made additions from his own knowledge and experience.

We cannot connect the name Reginaldus Gonsalvius Montanus, with any facts upon record, except what is concluded, concerning his person, from his book. In the Antwerp Index 1570 he is placed among the uncertain authors. Only Llorente, who calls him Reinaldo (and by inadvertence: Raimundo and Ramon) Gonzalez de Montes, says, that he escaped from the prisons of the Holy Office of Seville in 1558 and was burnt in effigy as a Lutheran, but he does not say when;¹² and Adolfo de Castro calls Reinaldo Gonzalez de Montes a Sevillian, and mentions that he fled from the prison in 1558, and went to London and from there to Germany.¹³ Neither of these authors gives an authority for his statements. I cannot help thinking Llorente's and de Castro's statements mere suppositions without any other foundation than the book in question.

Nor do I doubt that that name on the title is a pseudonym. Perhaps it alludes to several persons.

The hope to solve the riddle of the authorship of this important work, and so to discover, in the cooperators, evangelical Spaniards hitherto unknown, or to enliven some traditional bare name with the merit of contribution to the Artes, or to recognize good old friends disguised, is not yet to be given up.

The secretary and historian of the Inquisition declares this book trustworthy where party-spirit did not blind the author.¹⁴ On the evangelical movement in Seville at that time, this series of biographies is an unexceptionable witness, and of unique instructiveness for many details.

written it in Spanish. The supposition, however, of Spanish materials seems to be highly commendable in order to explain the sameness of the Latin style of a book composed materially by several persons. For it seems he got written contributions and not oral ones only. — Did Cipriano de Valera take from a Spanish paper, not exhausted by Gonsalvius, what we have (above p. 7) seen him adding to Gonsalvius in Dr. Gil's life?

12) Llorente c. XIV. art. II. § 21, c. XVIII. art. I. § 8 Raimundo, (French 2, 23. 4, 321. 475 Raymond, 2, 139 Raynald); c. XLVII under the year 1567: Ramon; c. XXI. art. I. § 4 Reynaldo (Fr. Reynald), c. XXVIII. art. I. § 7 Reinaldo.

13) Hist. p. 307 f.

14) Llorente c. XXI. art. I. § 4; French 2, 256 f. — De Thou mentions Gonsalvus Montanus among the auctores he used for book 23 of his Historiæ; in the relation of the Seville auto of 1559 he evidently follows the Artes. — Limborch Historia Inquisitionis. Amstelodami 1692. In the Praefatio: Credidi hac ratione me maxime inservire publico, si ostendam, quale, testibus ipsis Pontificiis ac Inquisitoribus, tribunal Inquisitionis sit. Unicus inter omnes autores est Reginaldus Gonsalvius Montanus, quem Reformatum fuisse liquet, et, quantum ex libelli ipsius lectione colligere licet, ex illorum numero unum, qui circa obitum Caesaris Caroli V. Hispali detectis in Ecclesiâ Romanâ gravibus erroribus ac superstitionibus, Ecclesiam Deum purius colentium instituerunt: Quae sævissimâ illâ Inquisitione, cujus Actus Fidei anno quinquagesimo nono superioris sæculi Hispali et Pinciae habiti sunt, dissipata est. Verum ex illo autore rix quicquam habeo, quin idem ab aliis autoribus affirmetur: solummodo varia suppeditat exempla, quibus quæ alii de Inquisitione, illius legibus, et procedendi ratione scribunt, egregie illustrantur. According to Usó, Artes 1857, appd. p. 31, Limborch would have said that Gonsalvius had been a Dominican friar; I cannot find such a statement.

15) Usó, who in 1851 in the Tabla of the Spanish translation of the Artes, only said that the author might be a monk of S. Isidro, thinks in the appendix to his edition of the Latin 1857, p. 10. 31, that possibly two monks of that monastery composed the book, one writing it in Spanish, another translating it, the former perhaps being Zafra, the latter perhaps Reina.

Charles Rahlenbeck in the Bulletin du bibliophile belge, Bruxelles 1865, t. XXI, p. 157 f.: il est probable que l'auteur lui-même était luthérien et habitait Francfort, où l'on comptait un certain nombre d'Espagnols qui y étaient venus de Paris, de Londres et de Genève. Si Montanus n'avait pas été le pseudonyme de l'un d'eux, nous aurions rencontré ce nom là. Mais nous n'avons pas été plus heureux que tant d'autres, et nous nous garderons bien de trancher la question aussi cavalièrement que l'a fait tout récemment M. Guardia dans la Revue germanique (vol. XVII, p. 543). Cet écrivain, qui prépare en ce moment une histoire de la réforme en Espagne, nous dit que l'on s'accorde généralement pour prendre pour un pseudonyme le nom de Réginald Gonsalve de Montès, et que le véritable auteur de l'histoire de l'inquisition imprimée à Heidelberg en 1567 était sans doute Francisco de Zafara, ancien curé à Séville, qui est bien connu pour s'être échappé à l'étranger après avoir été dans les cachots de l'inquisition le compagnon de captivité de Juan (Gil.). C'est possible, mais nous dirons à M. Guardia, comme à Llorente et à Adolfo de Castro: donnez-nous des preuves à l'appui de votre assertion. Nous connaissons aussi cet ancien curé de Séville, que Crespin d'Arras appelle Cafra,) cependant nous aurions peine à croire qu'après avoir pris à l'étranger le nom de guerre que lui accorde M. Guardia, il se soit mis à écrire son propre éloge pour mieux dérouter les soupçons. Les bannis espagnols étaient généralement plus courageux et plus dignes que cela. Nous avons demandé à nos amis de l'étranger des renseignements, nous avons cherché nous-mêmes avec patience dans la poussière des bibliothèques et des archives un Montanus et un Zafara et nous n'avons rien rencontré. Deux bannis espagnols, dont on sait trop peu de chose, méritent peut-être d'être considérés comme des candidats sérieux au pseudonyme de Montanus. L'un d'eux, Jean Morell ou Murellius, avait obtenu à Francfort le droit de bourgeoisie et y remplissait depuis 1562 les fonctions de ministre de la colonie franco-belge:) l'autre, Pierre Ximenès, y vient aussi; il avait été longtemps l'agent de Marco Perez, un banquier espagnol établi à Anvers, et nous trouvons sur son compte la note suivante dans la correspondance du magistrat d'Anvers avec Marguerite de Parme: „Quant à maistre Pierre Ximenès, espagnol, logié icy chez Marco Perez, il est après pour faire imprimer un livre contre les trop rigoureuses peines à l'endroit des sectaires.“ (Lettre du 2 décembre 1566. Arch. du Roy^{me}. Conseil des Troubles v. XI.) On ne saurait dire plus clairement, ce nous semble, qu'il s'agit là d'un traité contre l'inquisition. Fut-il mis en vente? Nous croyons pouvoir affirmer le contraire par la bonne raison que, peu de semaines après le susdit avis, l'autorité du roi Philippe d'Espagne fut rétablie à Anvers et les protestants chassés. Il se pourrait que Pedro Ximenès, de même que Jean Morell, fût originaire de quelque bourgade espagnole perdue dans ces montagnes dont leur belle patrie est hérissée, et qu'aussi bien qu'à Benito Arias, cité par Cyprien de Valéra, le droit leur appartint de prendre le pseudonyme latin de Montanus. . . . M. Usoz y Rio, de Madrid, dit dans les notes qu'il a ajoutées à sa réimpression toute récente de l'édition latine de 1567, que Montanus pourrait se rapporter à Cassiodore de Reyna réfugié alors à Francfort sur le Mein, et qui était originaire de Reyna, dans les Sierras de l'Estremadure; mais nous savons que Cassiodore n'avait aucun droit à la qualification de montagnard, étant né à Séville, comme il nous l'apprend lui-même.

) See Histoire des martyrs 1582, fol. 484 verso. This is taken from Artes p. 49 f., where the person is called Zafra. Compare Skinner's appendix to his translation, and Llorente c. XXI. art. I. § 4. Cafra was burned in effigy in Sept. 1559.

Reina mentions the questionable book in a letter, discovered in 1879, written from Strassburg 27 September 1567 to a Spanish friend at Paris; he says: „The mysteries of the Inquisition are printed in Latin, I think they will see them there“ [viz. at Paris]. It is clear that from this mention of a new publication follows as little that he had had anything to do with that work as that he had not had. — On 10 June 1567 Oporinus writes to Hubert at Strassburg (I shall print the unedited passage among the Documents in the article on Reina), he wished to know whether the little work of Reina (whom he supposes to be at Strassburg) on the Spanish Inquisition in Belgium, was burnt, or, if not, whether Reina did not intend to get it printed, perhaps with an additional report on the horrible things which had occurred since. In the Artes d.c. Belgium is touched upon only incidentally (p. 225. 226). — It is possible that Reina when writing in 1573 (in the dedication of his work on St. John's Gospel): Hinc (from the necessity of gaining his livelihood) factum est ut nonnulla scripta quæ usui ecclesiæ esse possent, tum mea, tum etiam aliena, cæterum fidei meæ commissa, apud me diutius delitescant, is meaning some works of Dr. Gil of which the Appendix of the Artes says (p. 273): ut singulares quædam ecclesiæ delitiæ in ipsius usum a fidis viris asservantur, or certain explications of Holy Scripture by Constantino, quas cum vulgaverimus, de summa viri eruditione certius indicari poterit, as is said in the same appendix (p. 284). But Reina might have got such writings after the publication of the Artes. It is perhaps more probable that he does not at all hint at Gil and Constantino, but that these writings entrusted to his care were some for the printing of which Juan Perez had left money (see above p. 70).

Wiffen, Preface to Betts' translation of Constantino's Confession of a sinner, 1869, p. v f., supposed that Regin. Gonsalvius Montanus was the Inquisitor of whom Corranus speaks in a letter published in 1567. But that Inquisitor is certainly the Inquisitor Corranus of whom we read in the Artes p. 268, and this Corranus of the Artes is, as Usóz observed Rf. Esp. t. 13, appd. p. 35, Antonio del Corro. He died, aged 84 year, in 1556 at Seville, remaining Inquisitor to his end, and was eulogized by an epitaph still extant (see Menendez 482); he could not mention the Sevillian auto of 1559 (Artes p. 82). One rather could ask whether his relation, the fugitive Ant. del Corro, did not contribute to the Heidelberg publication, as he says in his letter of 1567 to the king of Spain, that he read the apology of Dr. Gil, written for the Inquisitors and of course accessible only to few persons, which the author of the appendix of the Artes likewise says he read. At all events, Corro, who already in 1558 was a fugitive from Spain, is not to be identified with that contributor to the Artes who appears to have remained there some years longer.

That the author was a professor at Heidelberg, is an untenable statement of the Ticknor Catalogue, Boston 1879, p. 184. He who started this opinion, probably thought of Zacharia Ursinus who in fact was at that time professor at Heidelberg, and whom Usóz erroneously (see our note 11) thought the father of that Ursinus-Beringer who reedited the Latin Artes and a German translation of them.

In the Antwerp Index 1570, p. 61 among Primæ Classis auctores: Gonsalinus Regnaldus (which means our Reginaldus Gonsalvius). Sanctæ Inquisitionis Hispanicæ artes are prohibited there p. 70 in the Tertia Classis, the class of uncertain authors. The Index Sandoval y Rojas, Madrid 1612, reprint Palermo 1628, has Gonsalvus Reginaldus in the Index auctorum damnatorum primæ classis a cognominibus incipiens.

On the title-copies compare: Zur Bibliographie des Buches: „Sanctæ Inquisitionis Hispanicæ Artes aliquot detectæ ac palam traductæ.“ Von Dr. F. L. Hoffmann in Hamburg. in the Serapeum. hrsg. v. Rob. Hoffmann says in general that he used the copies of the City library at Hamburg and of the Ducal library at Wolfenbüttel. My notices below on the respective possessions of both or either are taken from letters of the two librarians. Hoffmann's descriptions are in some particulars more minute than mine.

In a copy of this edition which from J. Mendham's collection went in possession of Wiffen, the quotation on the title: Exurge Deus; indica causam tuam Psal. 74. is not placed under the three stars, but immediately above the name Reginaldo Gonsalvio; the word supplicium is written out with m; and Heidelbergæ has æ, not æ. Compare the statement Ref. Esp. vol. V, p. VIII. IX.

As well vol. V. as vol. XIII. of the Reformistas antiguos españoles (our nos 321 and 280) gives two typographical facsimiles, each on a whole page, one facsimile of the title of the Mendham copy, the second facsimile representing the different title of other copies. But neither the two Mendham copy facsimiles agree with each other, nor is the one facsimile of the other copies congruent to the other facsimile of the same. Vol. V. in both facsimiles l. 6 queq3, vol. XIII in both queque. The words from piorum unto infamarint (both these words included) in both facsimiles of vol. V. in four lines, of vol. XIII. in five. And in these same four or five lines each of the four similes, or rather dissimiles, has its own way of misprinting. L. 6 all four have quæ, which is an error, perhaps also as for the Mendham copy, certainly for the others.

Hoffmann places a comma in the colophon before excudebat, and writes ferrvm in the device with u.

In the paging in my complete copy, for 32 is misprinted 23; for 49 is misprinted 50, and this fault has had the consequence that the following numbers are wrong, so that instead of 64 is printed 65, but, this number being repeated in its proper place, the following are in order; 90 and 94 are at the right hand of the column-title; for 96 is read 16; 110. 138. 158 are right hand of the column-title; numbers 167 and 203 on the left side of the column-title; instead of 175 is printed 185, but 176 f. are in order; instead of 233: 823. All these mistakes likewise in an incomplete copy I possess (wanting title, index and p. 289—90. 293—96). The same in the Vienna Court copy; except that 233 is right, not inverted.

My complete copy has p. 54 (properly 53), line 4. 5: agen | tis, my incomplete copy and the Vienna copy have agen | ti is, and so (only agen- | ti is) has the reprint of Usqz who has put a hand at the margin. The preface to the Spanish translation p. IX says that one copy has agentis and another agenti is. In Hoffmann's description of the book, we read that the copy in the Hamburg city library has agen | tiis. Besides, in the Vienna copy and in my incomplete one, on the same page 54, line 14, the r of the word reus is lost. Nevertheless the page with this variety is evidently of one identical composition.

Charles Rahlenbeck, in the Bulletin du bibliophile belge, Bruxelles 1865, t. XXI, p. 157, finding it extraordinary that the Dutch translation of the Artes Inquisitionis, which has a preface of Petrus Dathenus, who according to Rahlenbeck was living at that time at Heidelberg, has not been made from the original published a year ago in this town, but from the French translation, says: Ce qui servirait peut-être à expliquer ce fait, c'est que Michel Schirat, l'imprimeur de l'édition latine de 1567, n'aura sans doute jamais fait rouler ses presses ailleurs qu'à Francfort sur le Mein, où il avait droit de bourgeoisie, mais qu'il avait été conduit à indiquer un faux lieu d'impression par suite des précautions que le sénat de la ville libre de Francfort jugeait à propos de prendre. En outre il est probable que l'auteur lui-même était luthérien et habitait Francfort, où l'on comptait un certain nombre d'Espagnols. Hoffmann observes that in Schwetschke's Codex nundinarius Schirat is not once named at Frankfurt, once 1575 at Heidelberg. I must leave the Schirat question unsettled.

Hoffmann's description of the WOLFENBÜTTEL copy has line 5 deniers. Is derniers a mistake of mine?

A copy belonging to the antiquarian Butsch at Augsburg which I examined in 1875 (afterwards bought by the STRASSBURG University library?) had iugement and qui s'est, 5th and 3^d line from the end. In a copy in possession of Professor Charles Schmidt at Strassburg, likewise iugement, but in the last mentioned place only est, not s'est. The title-leaf is in both these copies an integral part of the first sheet, and the rest of my above description is valid for both.

In Bachelin-Deflorenne's Catalogue de livres rares, Paris 1872, p. 78, n° 1032: Très-bel exemplaire de ce livre rarissime qui paraît avoir été imprimé à Genève, offered for 85 francs. This certainly was the copy of the marquis Morante, registered, with this same notice Très-b. ex. &c., under n° 1516 of the auction catalogue of part of his books, Paris, Bachelin-Deflorenne 1872. In Quaritch's catalogue, London 1874, n° 38, p. 57: fine copy, dark morocco, gilt edges, by Duru, very rare, £2. 2s. It is probably the same copy which with this description (to which is added: from the library of the Ven. Archdeacon Robinson, Master of the Temple) and for the same price, appears in Quaritch's new catalogue n° 295, march 1875, p. 266, n° 3183.

BODLEIAN. J. Mendham's, afterwards Wiffen's copy is now in Wadham college, OXFORD.

The above is Wiffen's title copy, revised by me.

Dibdin's enlargement of Ames' Antiquities augmented by Herbert, vol. IV, p. 111: Contains Aa 7, in eights, half sheets. Herbert has some remarks on the emblematical device. — In the title-copy, which does not divide the lines of the original, are some differences from ours: en exercitie der selen . . cyndelijck, no cleyen; these and eersterlijck I should think mistakes in the Antiquities, whilst I feel less safe as for verlooehene and Taphæa, which readings both recur in Hoffmann.

Hoffmann's title-copy from the HAMBURG copy has many differences. There is probably some inaccuracy on both sides. Hoffmann writes Spannsche; line 4 vntdeekt; Voorts is according to him the only word in a line; he has Bv where we have By; he puts a comma after personen; he writes ver moetheyt instead of versmaetheyt; verlooehene; trouveloose; verdaemt; gha- | schreuen; Taphæa; heer achter. — Hoffmann remarks: on fol. 175^b a woodcut with the inscription: Desen Egidius beenderen werden ontgrauen, ende verbrant; fol. 199^b colophon; fol. 200 blank; his numeration includes the title. He copies two passages from the text.

Tross in Paris, Catalogue de livres anciens, année 1868, n° 1, p. 44, n° 406 offered a copy of this translation at two hundred francs (the title is given abbreviated, but in seven lines), London, Day 1569, sm. S., Goth, 208 ff., avec une grande grav. en bois.

This is the title given by Charles Rahlenbeck in the Bulletin du bibliophile belge, Bruxelles 1865, t. XXI, p. 156. The same says there: „C'est un in-16 de 143 feuillets, sans compter 8 pages de préface et une postface d'une page en vers flamands intitulée: De Drucker aen den goetwilligen Leser. Le lieu d'impression n'est point indiqué, mais la préface nous a fait reconnaître que la traduction était due à un chaud partisan du prince d'Orange et que ce partisan était un luthérien. En un mot, le style de la préface est bien celui de Jacques van Wesembeke, l'ancien pensionnaire de la ville d'Anvers. Quant à savoir où le livre a été imprimé, c'est plus difficile. Dillenbourg, Idstein, Francfort sur le Mein, Wesel et peut-être même Solingen, sont les lieux où Wesembeke a séjourné en 1569. Nous avons comparé notre exemplaire avec d'autres impressions clandestines attribuées à Wesembeke sans arriver à un résultat satisfaisant.“

Wissen in the Preface to Betts' translation of Dr. Constantino's Confession p. XII says of this edition: „12 mo., Amsterdam.“ And in his ms. notes: „Small octavo. 4 preliminary leaves and 143 leaves or 286 pages and one at the end. On a comparison of the text this is evidently a different translation from the London edition printed by John Day of the same year. This edition has 4 leaves of translator's preface, but not the author's preface of 21 leaves.“

Another copy in the same library at WERNIGERODE varies in the first sheet. Title:

A woodcut representing tortures and executions. Below: Anno M. D. LXIX. | Black and red; red l. 2. 3 and last one as in n° 293^a, but, instead of the other lines in the above described copy, here 8 and 10. Here wie, there Wie. On the back Inhalt dieses buchs; the first s of dieses is inverted. Custos at the end of the first sheet (under Kauffman's signature): Es wird, in the other copy by mistake: Es war. The leaves are evidently printed in the same printing office as the other copy. Probably for some copies of the same edition those changes on leaves 1 and 8 were introduced, the woodcut was added, line 2 of the title and the custos corrected, and a new mistake (in dieses) happened.

Other copies with the wood-cut title black and red:

GETTINGEN Univ. HAMBURG City (according to Hoffmann: with autograph dedication of Bened. Thaurer 1574). I sent Wissen a copy in which the two wanting last leaves were replaced by manuscript; it probably now is in Wadham college, OXFORD. I did not notice which lines are red in the titles of these copies.

Histoire des vrayes Tesmoins de la verite de l'evangile. Iean Crespin. M. D. LXX.

The Septieme liure begins fol. 540 recto with an article De l'Acte Inquisitorial executé à Seuille. After an introduction, most of which is taken from the Artes, follows fol. 541 recto — 544 verso the history of the Sevillian martyrs related in the Latin p. 206—236. Without notice about the source. The translation of 1568 is somewhat remodelled. The articles on Iean Ponce de Leon, Iean Gonzalve, the women and Ferdinand de Saintivan are each dated M. D. LIX, Ivlien Hernandes and the following are without date.

Book 8, fol. 500 verso — 503 recto reprinted from 1570 fol. 541 recto — 544 verso, to which is added in the edition of 1582 fol. 503 verso — 597 verso the history of Garsias Arias, of Jean Egidius, of Constantin Ponce, from the French Gonzalez, corresponding to the Latin p. 200 — end. The above mentioned personnage is not named nor is any notice given on his work; the compiler does not even say that the discours in book 7 and the history of the Sevillian martyrs in book 8 are taken from the same work. The column-date M. D. LIX is continued to the article on Garsias Arias;

German translation of the Geneva martyrology.

In the German translation of the Geneva martyrology (see above n° 126) the Inquisitionis artes are given according to the Heidelberg translation of 1569 (above n° 291), scarcely remodelled. The preface is translated from the French abridgment, and also in some other places Crocius follows the French. I noticed that the beginning of the article on Juan Ponce de Leon and of that on Julianillo is retouched according to the Geneva martyrology. Julianillo's Spanish copla related Artes p. 219 is not reprinted from the Heidelberg translation and not with the translation given there, but from the French and with the German translation given in the Herborn Märtyrbuch 1590 f. (above n° 299 f.). No sources are named.

Juan Ponce de Leon, Dr. Constantino, Juan Gonzalez, Julianillo, Fray Juan de Leon, Juan Fernandez (Msh.: Johanne Fernaidelio), Losada, Arellano (Msh.: Aurelius), Garcia Arias, Fern. de San Juan, Maria Bohorques. Nothing at all, except a confused and defigured reminiscence or rather echo of the name of the heroine, is derived from Gons. in the novel called Cornelia Bororquia, which fully deserves the criticism of Llorente Hist. de la Inq. c. XXI. art. 1. § 14. 15; compare Rf. Esp. V, Apénd. p. 20. It is a fiction from the beginning to the end. I possess two copies: Cornelia Bororquia. Tercera edicion, revista, corregida y aumentada. Paris. Año XII — 1804. and: Cornelia, ó la víctima de la Inquisicion. Nueva edicion. Valencia: imprenta de Domingo y Mompie. Año 1821. The first edition seems to have been published in 1803 at Bayonne.

SUPPLICACION A LA REYNA DE FRANCIA.

IN 1567 a Spanish translation was published of a French work of Jean Dumont, D. D.: „A petition and information presented in 1561 to the Queen of France by persecuted Christians of her Kingdom, in which is treated of the Mess, of the Lord's Supper, of Purgatory, of the invocation of Saints, of images.“ The translator added his own exhortation to the reader, and a sermon on the cross, translated by him from the language in which it was delivered many years ago (he does not say what language this was). In opposition to those, who treated external things as indifferent, he not only requires faith, but also confession of faith. Nothing is known of the translator. His publication seems to have been printed at Basle, in the same office where, two years later, the Bible of Reina was finished. Reina himself certainly is not the translator, otherwise there would not be found here such differences from his translation, as well in the Old Testament as in the New Testament. Nor are the quotations (those which I compared) in the Exhortation taken from Perez's N. T. of 1556.

Quarto, size of Reina's Bible of 1569. The only copy known to exist is in VIENNA Court, bound together with a copy of that Bible which has on the title the year 1569; the Suplicacion is appended there to the Bible. It was mentioned by Denis in his Cod. ms. theol. vl. 1. prs 2. col. 1993. From the signature written by the hand of the librarian Blotius and from the old catalogue it is certain that the volume, containing those two publications, belonged to the Vienna Court library already in 1576. The volume is richly bound, and throughout, in both pieces, framed with red ink lines; it was probably a dedication copy to the Emperor Maximilian II. — Another copy of the Suplicacion is registered in Bibliotheca Hulsiana, Hagæ-Comitum 1730, t. IV. p. 318. n° 1335, among quarto-volumes.

The paper on which the whole is printed is the same as that of the Bible, and the types of the Informacion are the same as those of Reina's Amonestacion prefixed to the Bible. I therefore think this work printed at Basle.

PEDRO NUÑEZ VELA.

PEDRO Nuñez Vela¹ of Ávila, a compatriot and contemporary of St. Theresa, travelled in a wholly different groove from that feminine leader of Roman mysticism.² He incidentally mentions, that, when still in Spain, he was interested in logical investigations;³ that he subsequently at Padua attended lectures of the Aristotelians;⁴ and that in Rome he was present at conferences where dialectics were discussed.⁵ He was upon intimate terms with the Canon Basilio Zanchi of Bergamo, the librarian of the Vatican, who died in 1560 (a cousin of Girolamo Zanchi who passed over into the Reformed Church), and with Lorenzo Gambara of Brescia, who, born in 1506, died a nonagenarian; these two friends of Nuñez were also mutually warm friends. Zanchi and Gambara were held by that great Italian Latinist Paulus Manutius as the men who wrote the best Latin verse of his time;⁶ Nuñez too praises them both for their verses,⁷ and doubtless he improved his own versification by studying their's.

Vale. Venetiis.* (This is not yet in his Epistolæ et Præfationes of 1558.)

7) Below p. 157.

This Pedro Nuñez must be that Spaniard who is inscribed as Pietro Giugnes in the year 1564 in a list composed in the 17th century of the members of the Italian Church at Geneva.⁸

When the Bernese statesman Hieronymus Manuel⁹ visited Geneva, Beza availed himself of the opportunity to commend Nuñez to him. The result was that the government of Berne towards the close of the year 1565 granted him a pension at Lausanne and the prospect of a professorship at the Academy there.¹⁰ This High school was founded as soon as the Pays de Vaud was incorporated into the dominion of Berne, and its interests were so carefully developed that there were for several decades professors there who still rank among the most learned men of that age. Nuñez was proposed by Johann Haller, the Dean of the Diocese of Berne, to fill the chair of the Greek professorship at Lausanne.¹¹ This nomination was zealously supported by Benedict Aretius,¹² a professor at Berne, at first in 1553 of philosophy, and then in the same year of Greek, from 1563 until his death 1574 of theology; he had recently distinguished himself in a disputation held with Valentino Gentile, who was in 1566 condemned as a blasphemer and perjurer and beheaded at Berne; Aretius was also held in consideration as being well versed in the works of Pindar. The Greek professorship at Lausanne was at first held by Conrad Gesner who occupied it from 1537 to 1540; Theodore Beza held it from November 1549 until the autumn 1558, when he migrated to Geneva; in October 1567 Nuñez succeeded to Knechten-

8) See above p. 76, where I have also remarked that Pierre Nunio or Niuno, whom Galiffe has found in Genevese sources in the year 1567, must be the same. Nuñez may have been in Geneva in 1567 as a visitor from Lausanne. — Calvin, who died in 1564, is nowhere mentioned by Nuñez; in a poem Nuñez calls Beza, Enoch, Portus tria lumina of Geneva, below p. 159.

9) Hieron. Manuelli Lausane Præfector Rosarius dedicated in 1557 the Antithesis Christi et Antichristi, see above p. 107. Hieron. Manuel, son of the Bernese painter, poet and statesman Niclaus M., was born in 1520, he became in 1553 Prefect (Landrogt) at Lausanne, in 1558 again member of the Counsel at Berne, 1559 Venner, 1565 Welsch-Seckelmeister = Quæstor (as Nuñez calls him) for the Pays de Vaud; he died 4 Febr. 1579. See on him Leu's Helvetisches Lexicon (1747—1795), vol. XII, p. 493, and Bächtold's Niklaus Manuel, 1878, p. LVI. According to Leu he became Seckelmeister in 1563.

hofer,¹³ and filled that chair thirteen years; 1572 his stipend was increased, and raised to equality with that of the professor of Hebrew.¹⁴

In 1570 Nuñez published at Basle his Dialectics in Latin which he had previously written when in Italy, now however he had revised them; he annexed a Latin treatise of his own upon the modes of interpretation of an author. This work is dedicated to the Senate of Berne. Subjoined are a number of the author's Latin and Greek poems. They are dedicated to Nicholas Zer Kinden, a Bernese General-Commissary;¹⁵ Petermann von Wattenwyl, Governor of Lausanne;¹⁶ Louis Enoch, an author writing both on Greek and Latin classics, who succeeded Beza as Rector of the Academy at Geneva in 1563;¹⁷ Bartholomew Bubert, a medical man, to whom Nuñez owed, under God, his recovery from a disease that threatened his life; to an unknown friend; to David Delbene; to Hieronymus Manuel; to the Bernese Senate;¹⁸ to Johann Haller, — in this poem he also praises his colleague Marquard; to Benedict Aretius; and to Antoine La Faye,

14) Rathsmanual n° 388, p. 33. 1572, Juli 23. Petro Nonnio dem Griechischen Professor zu Losannu sin Besoldung gebessert in aller Form und Gestalt wie der Hebräisch hatt. Ime alhie X/1. Communicated to me by Mr. M. von Stürler, State's Archiviste of Berne, who had kindly continued my researches.

15) General-Commissari since 1565; in 1570 he was deputed to conclude a league with the duke of Savoy. Leu XI, 108.

16) born 1531; Landvogt of Lausanne since 1564; in 1574 he reentered the Small Counsel, and became Venner, which place he got again in 1577; he died 1581. Leu XIX, 202 f.; Supplement VI, 311.

17) He had left Geneva in June 1566 in order to see his home in France, and did not return to Geneva. Leu, Supplem. II, 136. Dictionn. biogr. des Genevois & des Vaudois par A. de Montel, Lausanne, t. 1. 1877.

18) Gottl. Em. v. Haller's Bibliothek der Schweizer-Geschichte, 4^{ter} Theil, Bern 1786, p. 323 registers from Nuñez's Dialectics p. 190—201 (the latter number is not quite exact, see extracts below) Ein griech. Gedicht neben der lat. Uebers. auch in Versen (it is however in prose), with the remark: beydes hat nicht viel zu bedeuten.

who had emigrated from France to Geneva, had laboured there as Regent of the College and had in 1567 acquired his freedom of the City.¹⁹ Nuñez greets in these poems Consul Steiger;²⁰ Abraham Musculus, a preacher at Berne and afterwards the continuator of Johann Haller's Bernese chronicle; Abraham's brother Henry who also became a preacher;²¹ Hadrian Blauner, a member of a Bernese patrician family, a doctor of medicine;²² and the theologian Fetminger.

Nuñez quotes in this volume his Commentaries upon Lucretius²³ and upon Virgil,²⁴ and besides them his Latin poem upon the care that scholars should take of their health,²⁵ and his Latin dissertation upon logical sequence;²⁶ none of all these writings, it would seem, have ever been printed, and they are in all probability lost.

In his Dialectics he speaks out against those who believe in Aristotle as in a gospel, and states that only in theology and in grammar is authority decisive; that the word of God is a demonstration and is to be regarded as axiomatic.²⁷ He says of the Bible, in his dissertation on the art of interpretation, that we are to maintain it as a divine oracle; and that, when needed, it will be our duty to defend it, even should that defence involve our death. All other books are to be read as emanating from men, and we must never do as do they who almost regard Aristotle as a God.²⁸

Shortly after the publication of this volume, in the summer of that same year 1570, the celebrated Petrus Ramus paid a visit to Lausanne. He was entertained as a guest by an Englishman of the name of James, and was received by the professors of the Academy in the most friendly manner. We learn on this occasion, that at that time Samuel professed theology, Marquard²⁹ philosophy, Nuñez Greek,

29) Blasius Marquard, of a Bernese family, became, according to Leu XII, 520, in 1569 professor of Greek and of morals at Lausanne, 1572 of theology at the same

Hortin³⁰ Hebrew, Dives and Bos³¹ the liberal arts. It is presumable that those six professors only constituted the teaching body of the Academy.³² Ramus willingly sustained amicable relations with them all, and readily instructed them in his views of Logic, but what he most liked was to converse with Nuñez who thought very highly of the much combated doctrine of the French philosopher.³³ Some years later, Claude Aubery of Triaucourt (near Chalons sur Marne), who had succeeded Marquard in the professor's chair of philosophy, and Academy, 1576 of theology at Berne, and died in 1577. Also XI, 481. 482 he is enlisted as professor at Lausanne of Greek and morals 1569, of theology 1572. It is however beyond doubt that from 1569—72 and earlier and later the Greek professorship was held by Nuñez.

30) Michael Hortin, of a family of the Bernese aristocracy. Leu says X, 299 that he became in 1574 Greek professor at Lausanne, but he does not name him XI, 481. 482 among the professors of Greek and morals. In this last quoted volume he only mentions him as professor of Hebrew at Lausanne 1576. From Freigius (see our note 33) we know that he held the Hebrew professorship already in 1570. He certainly had not to teach Greek, while it was taught by Nuñez.

31) Bos seems to be Jean Bœuf, who is mentioned in 1591, January 23, in the Welsch Missivenbuch, H 310, State's Archives of Berne, together with Jean le Merle, ministres et professeurs de la parole de Dieu en l'esglise et eschole, and Claude Aubery, docteur en médecine et professerr en philosophie en la dite eschole de Lausanne; the government expresses its satisfaction on the settlement of a dogmatical difference between the said three persons and some others at Lausanne. The notice from the Archives was given me by Mr. von Stürler.

32) It seems that the statements of Vulliemin on the number of professors and on their functions, Der Kanton Waat, 2^{ter} Bd, St. Gallen und Bern 1849, p. 111 f., must refer to an earlier period of the Academy. According to him, it had four chairs, and the ordinary or regular disciplines were Greek, Hebrew, arts, and theology. The Greek professor taught also politics and morals and explained some of Plato's dialogues; the prof. artium had the extensive task of rhetoric, Aristotle's Organon, arithmetic, geography, astronomy, physic.

33) Petri Rami rita per Joannem Thomam Freiginum (with Rami Praelectiones in Cicer., Basilee 1580, p. 40): Lausanna . . . Hic ab eruditissimis professoribus, Samuele Theologiæ, Marcoardo Philosophiæ, Nunio Græcæ linguæ, Hortino Hebraicæ, Divite et Bove liberalis doctrinæ, amantissime acceptus est [Ramus], exoratusque odiosa istius invidiæque Logicæ ἐξοχίστην dies aliquot maximo civitatis et avidissimo concursu habuit: deque ipsa cum omnibus illis et libere et liberaliter communicavit: sed præcipue cum Nunio judicii liberioris, et odiosum istum invidisumque artis usum longissime præceptis omnibus anteponeute. Jacobi vero Angli hospitis sui hospitium cum eruditis sermonibus, et quotidianis integræ ritæ exemplis hospitalissimum illi fuit. (Menendez 247 f. has this passage, unto anteponeute, from an edition of 1575.) This was in summer 1570. We have three letters of Ramus from Lausanne, dated 12 Cal. Aug. and 5 Cal. Sept. of that year (Waddington's Ramus 1855 p. 428 f.). In the first he tells his friend Theodore Zwinger, to whom who was engaged in preparing his edition of the Organon, calls the medical men there (he being himself an M. D.) and professor Nuñez his opponents.³⁴

In 1578 a revised edition of Nuñez's Dialectics appeared at Geneva, together with his logical disputations, then for the first time published. Towards the close of this latter work, he extols that love to God which never contemplates recompense, as the true impulse to all that is good.³⁵ He gratefully dedicates this volume, like the former one, to the Senate of Berne, upon whom he in a poem invokes God's blessing. The Disputations are specially dedicated to Hieronymus Manuel. Amongst the verses addressed to the author and printed in this volume, there are Greek ones by Francis Portus, the celebrated Candiot, who at that time was professor of Greek in the Geneva Academy,³⁶ and Latin distichs by Antoine La Faye and by Beatus Comte. La Faye had become Dr. med. in 1574, in 1575 Head of the College at Geneva, in 1577 professor of Philosophy; in 1580 he became Rector of the Academy at Geneva, where in 1582 he published a French translation of Livy; he has also written on various theological subjects.³⁷ Beatus Comte, who had relinquished his post as a preacher at Lausanne and had become a medical practitioner there, greatly distinguished himself as such during the plague of 1547, and finally became Head of the College there in 1559.³⁸ In his verses addressed to Nuñez, which he signs as Doctor of divinity and of medicine, he manifests his admiration of Nuñez to have been so great, that he says, that Dialectic was so much indebted to him as to any one of the ancients.³⁹

he had written from Geneva on 4 Non. Jul., that he has gone to Lausanne, ubi erudita Marcuardi, Samuelis, Divitis et reliquorum professorum consuetudine otium oblectamus; Nuñez is not named, Ramus probably naming only those whom Zwinger knew. In one of the letters of 5 Cal. Sept. he says: Statuo hebdomade ista Lugdunum, deinde Lutetiam proficisci; in beginning of September he was back in France.

34) See note 45.

35) Below p. 162.

36) He went to Geneva in 1561, and became Greek professor there in the next year; he died there in June 1581. See Didot's Biogr. gén.

37) La Faye died in 1615. Montel t. 2. 1878. Leu VII, 54.

38) Leu V, 398. 39) Below p. 154.

Nuñez purposed when he published this Geneva edition, to issue shortly after a work upon music;⁴⁰ which, however, it would seem, never was published, neither is it known that the ms. now exists.⁴¹

He died of the plague at Lausanne in October 1580.⁴² Æmilius Francis Portus, the son of the above mentioned Candiot, was appointed Nuñez's successor the year afterwards,⁴³ the father having died but some weeks previous to his son's appointment.

Nuñez in his poems and prefaces overflows in grateful acknowledgments to his Evangelical friends and patrons in Berne. He arrived there penniless; he says that the Harpies, — he does not tell us who they were, — had stripped him of everything. He frequently, whilst engaged upon scientific investigations, takes occasion to express his religious views, shewing that they were based upon the Bible.

40) Below p. 162.

41) George Becker, La musique en Suisse depuis les temps les plus reculés jusqu'à la fin du dix-huitième siècle. Genève. Paris. 1874. does not mention Pedro Nuñez.

42) Abraham Musculus whom we have mentioned among Nuñez's friends, entered in his continuation of Johann Haller's Bernese Chronicle the following paragraph under the year 1580: Im October regiert die pestis zu Lausanna treffenlich. Da starb D. Ludovicus, ein alter Predicant zu Lausanna, und Petrus Nunnus der griechisch Professor, und Sant Paulinus zu Viris, und viel ander. I owe this extract from the unprinted manuscript to Mr. von Stürler. Haller had written the Chronicle untill 1574, he died 1575 Sept. 1; Musculus continued it to the year 1587 or longer; compare Gottl. Em. v. Haller's Bibliothek der Schweizer-Geschichte, 4^{ter} Theil, Bern 1786, S. 319f.

43) The Rathsmanual, in the State's Archives of Berne, has under 8 August 1581 the confirmation of the appointment of Æmilius Portus as professor of the Greek language at Lausanne. On the same day he has inscribed himself in the Roll of oaths: Æmilius Franc. Portus f., Bernæ die Martis 6 Id. Sext. 1581.

44) Whatever has been written on the history of the evangelical academy at Lausanne in the 16th century, is insufficient and full of errors. This is to be seen, for instance, in the statements concerning Nuñez. Ruchat says, Hist. de la Réf. de la Suisse, t. 6, Genève 1728, p. 452: Après Gessner, on eut à Lausanne, pour Professeur en Grec, un Espagnol natif d'Avila, nommé Pierre Nunnez. [Note: Ex Act.]. Il eut pour Successeur, au mois de Novembre de l'an 1549. Théodore de Beze [Note: E Libro Subscription. Item. Vita Beze apud Melch. Adam]. This passage of Ruchat was the only source for M'Crie, when mentioning Nuñez by way of addition to his History of the ref. in Spain, a new edition 1856, p. 209.

(In Melchior Adam's life of Beza there is no mention of Nuñez). Ruchat, who had already said in his Abrégé de l'hist. eccl. du pays de Vaud. Berne 1707. p. 109: L'An 1579 Jean Scapula fut fait Professeur en Langue Grèque à Lausanne, observes, speaking of this Academy, in the Hist. de la Réf. de la Suisse, t. 6, p. 455: Jean l'Epaule, ou Scapula l'Abbreviateur du Trésor de la Langue Grecque d'Henri Etienne, fut Professeur en cette Langue l'an 1579; he is right in noticing ib.: Aemilius, fils de François Portus, . . fut Professeur en Grec l'an 1581. Leu in the Helvetisches Lexicon, Theil XI. 1756, p. 482 has the following series of professors of Greek and morals at the Academy of Lausanne: 1537 Conr. Gesner, 154. Petrus Nunius, 1549 Beza, 1569 Blas. Marquard, 1579 Scapula, 1581 Aem. Portus, and he says also XVI, 140 that Scapula was Greek professor at that Academy 1579—81. Better informed was Gottl. Em. v. Haller who in the Bibliothek der Schweizer-Geschichte, Theil 4, Bern 1786, p. 323 touches upon the Dialectics of 1570 and the appended verses to the Senate of Berne (see here above, note 18), and remarks: Der Vf. ward nach 1564 Prof. in der griech. Sprache zu Lausanne, a date which Haller might derive from this volume of Nuñez. Still more exact is what is said in the second edition of Nic. Antonio's Bth. Hisp. nova, t. 2, Madrid 1788, p. 223, where Nuñez's two books of 1570 and 1578 are registered, with the notice, certainly derived from themselves, that he wrote them when professor of Greek at Lausanne, being an apostate from the Church of Rome: Apostata hic verè religionis professor erat, cum hæc edidit, linguae Græcæ in urbe Lausanensi Helvetiorum. Menendez, p. 246 f., saw no book of Nuñez, and did not get other information, in addition to the Bth. of Nic. Antonio and to the Life of Ramus, but the erroneous one, according to a compilation of the year 1679, that Nuñez was mentioned as Greek professor under Prefect Frisching who went to Lausanne in 1548, previous to Beza's appointment for the same professorship there in 1549.

45) Claudius Alberius Theodoro Zuingero.

Lausannæ 7 Julii. Organum Aristotelis explicare cœpi frequenti auditorio. Sunt enim hic doctissimi quidam viri Galli (inter quos est dominus Chandæus, vir nobilissimus et doctissimus) qui Aristotelis doctrina mirum in modum delectantur. Medici et Hispanus Græcarum literarum professor cœperant mihi negotium facessere, et clamare nullam demonstrationem esse: quibus ego coactus sum os obstruere adductis quamplurimis exemplis. Mirati sunt amici me alioqui natura timidum tam animose istorum ἀπαρδεύειν publice coarguisse. D. Beza cæterique boni et docti viri addunt animum mihi non usque adeo animoso.

Lausannæ X Augusti. Certum est mihi et institutum mittere ad te commentarios et paraphrases in Categorías, librum de interpretatione mentis: Analytica priora atque posteriora, statim atque descripti erunt εἰς ἄλλος commentarii in Categorías; in quibus adeo multa mutavi ut propemodum novos fecerim. Deinde mittam quoque commentarios in Topica et Elenchos σὺν τῷ 9ῷ. Atque hic erit primus tomus operum Aristotelis, adeoque clavis, ut ita dicam, Aristoteleæ philosophiæ. Tibi omnia permittam et committam, nam de tua amicitia tuaque fide dubitare nefas.

The copies of the two letters in Basle University library [G II 37], from which I publish these extracts, are without year. Zwinger died in 1588. Leu says I, 371 that Alberius (Aubery) became in 1576 professor of philosophy at Lausanne, but XI, 482 he leaves the year of the decade open, giving the following series for that chair: Tagaut 1557, Claudius Aubrit 157., Tremblet 1594. As for Chandæus, i. e. Antoine Chandieu, whom Aubery names as sitting with him, according to Montel t. 1 he had in 1570 got a theological chair at Lausanne, according to Leu V, 211 f.

he went there about 1572 and functioned for a while as an extraordinary teacher of theology, but in a later volume XI, 481 Leu says on the contrary, that Chandieu was already in 1569 professor of theology there and that this professorship was in 1572 given to Blasius Marquard. If really Marquard, who in 1570 was professor of philosophy (see above p. 148), became in 1572 professor of theology, Aubery cannot have got the philosophical professorship earlier than 1572. In 1576 his Posteriorum notionum explicatio appeared at Lausanne (see Bassai collectio 1592), in the same place the following year his περὶ ἐκφυγέας [BERNE City]; his next publication seems to be Theophrasti characteres interprete Ci. Aubério, together with Theod. Zwinger's Nicomachean Ethics, Basle, Episcopus 1582 (according to S. F. W. Hoffmann's Bibliogr. Lex. vol. 1. 1838, p. 291); in 1584 his Organon appeared at Morges [BERNE City]. The above two letters seem to have been written within the last four years before Núñez's death. — Aubery's views of justification and regeneration were thought to be in better harmony with Aristotle than with St. Paul; see papers of the year 1593 in the volume Canton Waadt II, in the State's Archives of Berne, and Hottinger's Helvet. Kirchengesch., Thl 3. 1707, p. 944 f.

Dedication:

Illustrissimo et fortissimo senatui Bernensi Petrus Nunius Velius. Olim, cum in Italia commorarer. clarissimi et præstantissimi principes, tres Dialecticæ libros conscripsi: a quibus edendis tunc, mihi diffidens, abstinui: fieri enim posse putabam, ut quæ illo tempore mihi placebant, eadem tempore maxime progressio, et aucto iudicio, displicerent. Nuper vero post tot annos elapsos, illam ipsam lucubrationem inspexi, eamque non improbandam duxi et nonnullis minimo negotio adiectis. nonnullisque detractis quæ abundare videbantur, ... imprimendam tradidi, cum libro uno qui de ratione aliorum scripta interpretandi inscribitur, quem ego nuper confeci dum in interpretandis Græcis auctoribus in academia Lausannensi assidue versor: quo beneficio et honore me pro vestra singulari atque divina humanitate liberalitateque, principes fortissimi, affectis. Adjeci etiam duos libellos, quorum alter poematia Latina continet, alter Græca, quos ex pluribus aliis versibus a me confectis delegi ut ederentur, quia de vestra singulari virtute (quamvis non quomodo deceret) præcipue disserunt ... Illud enim verissimum: δεῖν ἐπὶ σωτηρίᾳ τῆς ἀληθείας καὶ τὰ οὐκ εἶναι ἀναγκάζειν, ut inquit Aristoteles [translated p. 224: oportere pro conservatione veritatis etiam propria evertere. 2^d ed. p. 2: . . enim Aristotelis verissimum: δεῖν &c., id est: oportere . . veritatis vel p. e.]. P. 16 (cf. 222): τὸ πῶς, quod lumen est humano multis partibus excelsius sublimiusque et naturam superans atque transcendens, quidquid de Deo et nostra salute sciendum, id ex sacris literis cognoscimus, quibus firmissime assentimur et multo firmitus quam sensui et omni humanae rationi perfectissimæque conclusioni: ad eas literas intelligendas mirum quantum Dialectica fructus adferre possit. Nam quamvis verba Dei sint ἀξιόμαστα [225: dignitates, id est communes animi rationes] quibus fidem habere sine ulla argumentatione debemus, nihilominus ex verbi Dei sententiis alie necessaria argumentatione nascuntur, quæ in numero sententiarum divinarum sunt habenda, quamobrem hic naturæ ingenique conclusio locum habebit, quam ars mirum in modum adjuvabit. Item vanas hæreticorum interpretationes refutare argumentando possumus, videlicet ex consequentibus et præcedentibus et utrisque, ex quarum rerum ignoratione omnes hæreses ortas puto. Eas etiam confutamus ex remotis aliis ejusdem verbi Dei locis; ut illud: Non facies tibi sculptile, non simpliciter intelligendum, patet ex eo quod in Deuteronomio clare profertur. Quamobrem adolescentes admonitos velim ut in hanc artem omnibus viribus incumbant. Nam quamvis alias doctrinas non penitus introspexerint, ejus tamen et grammaticæ adjumento mirabilia præstare in theologia poterunt: et cum dico grammaticam, linguæ Græcæ et Hebrææ cognitionem intelligo; nam si illas linguas teneamus, nos ipsi judices erimus nec aliis fidem habere necesse habebimus. [2^d ed. p. 5 sq.: τῆς πίστεως, id est fidei lumine, quod est humana ratione multis et infinitis partibus excelsius, quidquid de Deo et futura post mortem nostrorum animorum corporumque salute sciendum, id ex divinis literis, firmissime assentientes, intelligimus; ad eas literas intelligendas mirum quantum hæc ars fructus . . . sint dignissima quibus fides adhibeatur sine u. arg. principia, nih. ex illis aliæ necessaria ratione nascuntur sententiæ quæ in divinarum numero sunt habenda, . . . hæc rationes et int. . . præc. et consequ. et utr., ex quorum ign. ortæ videntur omnes perversæ de religione sententiæ. P. 22 sq.: ille quidem bene divisisse nihilque prætermisisse videri volebat qui pro concione in Hispania, quemadmodum ibi accepimus, dixit, monachorum alios pessimos esse, alios optimos, alios nec bonos nec malos. Pessimos et pestiferos eos esse dicebat qui in terra viverent, optimos D. Franciscum et Dominicum et reliquos in cælo constitutos, nec bonos nec malos esse pictos. Hic certe omnia videri voluit per jocum complexus, nam si quis dixisset, monachorum alios malos, alios pessimos esse, ideoque non omnia comprehensa in divisione fuisse, ille respondisset, omnes qui hodie vivunt monachos pessimis moribus contaminatos esse, nullos autem esse tantummodo malos ut non sint pessimi nominandi. Quod quidem exaggerandi et jocandi gratia dici potuit, non vere. Illud etiam de pictis jocosum est, non serio dictum, nam monachi picti non sunt monachi, sed verorum imagines et picturæ. De ratione interpretandi:

P. 139: utilissimam esse hanc puto [artem doctrinamque] quam ego tractandam sumpsi nec ab aliis disputatam vidi, id est: rationem interpretandi intelligendique libros.

P. 142: hac de re fusius in libro nostro de tuenda studiosorum valetudine versibus latinis conscripto tractavimus . . . præcipue sacris literis operam dandam, quandoquidem ex illarum cognitione salus animorum nostrorum pendet.

P. 146 sq.: illi enim qui divino numine afflati literis voluntatem Dei mandarunt, errare nulla ratione potuerunt, non secus atque ille Deus, qui hujus scriptionis auctor fuit, ab omni errore est alienissimus atque remotissimus: hi libri appellantur Biblia, qui non hominis libri dicendi sunt nec ab homine confecti, sed a Deo: non enim erat

Moses et David et alii qui loquebantur, sed Deus loquebatur illorum ore. hæc igitur Biblia tanquam scripta divina non solum sunt nobis explicanda et intelligenda, sed quicquid illic scriptum est, debemus omnibus modis tanquam divinum oraculum defendere: et si res portulabit, mortem occumbere pro ejus veritatis defensione. Hoc ergo libro divino excepto, libri reliqui tanquam ab hominibus conscripti legendi sunt. Nec vero illos imitari debemus qui Aristotelem deum fere putant . . .

P. 150 sq.: si locum aliquem ejus quem legimus auctoris mediocri temporis jactura facta non intelligemus, debemus quiescere et illam speculationem differre in tempus aliud, quo nobis aliud cogitantibus se sponte fortassis offerret recta loci illius interpretatio . . . contra faciunt multi homines . . . et quidem ego fateor, me valde olim hoc morbo laborasse: intemperanti enim quadam sciendi cupiditate tenebar et me ipsum frustra maximeque cruciabam: quo quidem nihil potest esse stultius, nihil infelicius.

P. 152: Quomodo autem in variis artibus exerceri possimus, pete ex epistola latinis versibus conscripta quam ad Davidem Dolbenium scribimus. [It seems from this passage that he had not yet finished it. It is certainly the same epistola, from which see extracts below p. 159.]

P. 157: si vacat, lege nostros in Lucretium commentarios.

P. 159: præcedentia et consequentia sunt considerata, ut videamus quid quisque loquatur: ex cujus rei ignorance omnes hæreses profectæ sunt dum homines temerarii et inscii voluerunt violentiam sacris literis afferre, non cogitantes nec animadvertentes qua de re sermo haberetur in eo quem interpretabantur loco.

P. 169: veram utriusque loci interpretationem vide in nostris in Virgilium commentariis.

P. 174: ego quidem aliquando hoc errore et morbo laboravi: et ita factum est ut vix intra spatium mensis unius potuerim progressum in legendo facere, sed semper in quibusdam difficillimis immorabar, nec in memoriam sic revocabam illa loquendi genera illustriora, et pulcherrima ornamenta, quibus uti in scribendo debemus, et similiter totam ideam et imaginem operis minime complectebam . . . P. 175: artes quæ traduntur intelligendæ sunt potius et historiæ et cetera, non in verbulis immorandum: quo vitio laborantes multos vidi Patavii, qui Aristotelis singula verba, etiam difficillimos locos, ex quibus nihil fructus percipi posset, conabantur enodare, relicta interim illa scientia et cognitione quæ a viro sapientissimo traditur. Quod si dices, locos difficillimos esse omnino intelligendos ut illis uti in componendo possimus, huic rei rectissime respondebat Basilius Zanchus bonus nostri temporis versificator, id non esse necessarium, cum eandem rem aliis phrasibus et loquendi formis possimus exprimere . . . P. 175—6: hæc tanti momenti est ut homines aliqui in difficilibus locis eruendis minus | versati et imperiti, quales fuere Laurentius Gambara et Basilius Zanchusi [sic, write Zanchius or as before Zanchus]: quorum ego virorum consuetudine sum usus, rerum faciliorem diuturna tractatione exercitationeque conficere versus possint laudabilis. [End of the book de interpret. rat.]

Poem. Lat.:

P. 177: Ad Nicolaum Zerchintium Oratorem et Philosophum eximium.

Beza pio tecum magnus conjunctus amore me commendasset toto tibi corde benignus, si non se Manuel Genevam forte tulisset, Quæstoris munus summa qui laude tætur, cui me Beza meus commisit: proinde ego magnis

- principibusque viris immunis nutrior, altus Arola quis bibitur, cœlo gratissimus annis:
 nutrior immunis Lausannæ expersque laborum donec se locus ostendat mihi Graja docendi scripta juventutem et veterum monumenta virorum . . .
- 178 Ornatique alta virtutis laude senatus
 urbem præclaram Aretopolim cum paco colentis, in quorum es numero, Zerchinti magne, virorum:
 hic hic præclarus cætus caput exerit alnum ad cœlum, lætas cupiens ibi ponere sedes ardenti et veræ pietatis captus amore, atque Dei verbum constanti mente secutus invigilat magna cura ac virtute, rapaces debilitare lupos, siccis qui faucibus acres usque vorare gregem Christi properantque ruuntque.
 Et quia scit Christo servos ex partibus orbis electos variis, sacro ut sermone docemur, omnes in quibus est pietas vera atque fidelis et figmentorum nullo circumlita fuco dulciter amplectens peregrinos excipit ulnis, excipit et fessos opibus solatur amicis.
 Salve, magne parens eunctorum et sancte senatus,
- 179 pulsi Antichristi sævi quem gloria tollit sublinem ætherias pulcherrima semper in auras.
- 181 Salve, optime quæstor
 tu Manuel, quo rite fui fautore relatus servorum in numerum florentis laude senatus.
 et vive, optime consul
 Steiger, qui placidos vertis mihi luminis orbes.

P. 182: Ad Petrum Vattevillum senatorem Bernatem et Lausanæ pro senatu illustrissimo Bernati præfectum.

- 184 Te rogo, si ad Bernæ pulchram perveneris urbem, tunc augere velis magni Manuelis amorem . . .

P. 184: Ad Lodoicum Enochum.

Ferre tibi cupio donum quod reddere apertam hanc in te possit pietatem tempore natam illo quo tecum sum primum Enoche locutus.
 Nam tunc audiavi pauca ex te, at . . .
 Nil habeo, quoniam Harpyiæ bona cuncta rapaces eripuerunt mihi, et vitam duco indigus omni humano auxilio: tantum tibi carmina possum donare . . .

P. 185: Ad Bartholomæum Bubertum.

Cum mea morbus atrox premeret languentia membra meque rapax lethum quæreret ante fores, tu, Buberte, illum potuisti expellere morbum, at petiit Stygios mors pudefacta lacus . . .

P. 185: Ad amicum.

P. 186: Ad Davidem Delbenium.

Ad me pervenit tua dulcis epistola . .

187 idque facis juvenis, senibus quod maxima laus est . . .

Olim te meminì non æquo ferre patique

pectore, cum sacris te a scriptis velleret acris

plurima discendi tibi corde innata cupido.

Quod tunc consilium merito mihi jure probatum est.

suspirare animique siti contendere anhela, versarique in eo toti noctesque diesque,

Davidis ut sancti ponit sententia vatis.

Sed quia multa opus est ad eum ducentia nosse, multa ideo recte didicisti multaque discis . . .

188 Te discessurum Geneva fama ferebat.

189 Bezan atque Enochum complectere nomine nostro

nec non et Portum, tria lumina.

P. 189: Ad clariss. virum Hieronymum Manuelem senatorem Bernatem.

nec pulchrum conamen deseris unquam

Lausannæ ut doceant homines doctique piique . . .

Et quamvis homo sum peregrinus, dulce tamen me

atque libens fecit tua virtus alma, potentis esse in amicorum numero sanctique senatus . . .

Istorum in laudem versus componere Grajos

nuper sum, tanti meriti non immemor, ausus.

In the dedication to the Senate of Berne, Nuñez says: cum dialecticorum opus superioribus annis vobis a me dicatum intellexissem in aliquibus regionibus aliquam legentibus utilitatem afferre, id iterum in lucem emitte politius volui . . . Hoc igitur munusculum novum, id est renovatum ut hilari animo accipiat is vos Principes magnanimi demississime rogo: nec dubito quin id sitis facturi: nam cum a peregrino minus cultum donum libentissimis olim animis acceperitis, profecto multo libentioribus cultius nunc accipietis ab eodem qui longi temporis intervallo ex peregrino vester est factus. . . . neque nostrum carmen legere vobis displiceat, quod subjunximus . . . In this poem he prays v. 9 f.:

atque lumen defende ipsis. malaque omnia pelle:
quippe pios omnes dulci amplexantur amore, quæ laus magna quidem, et laudes superemicat omnes:
nanque bonis cunctis pulsos miserantur, et omni arte juvant, veluti mater juvat optima natum qui patriis laribus longo abfuit intervallo, et multos volvit casus, variosque labores inter Barbaricas turmas, populosque feroces pertulit, et se ipsum mittens in aperta pericla ponendi lucem, et terram prono ore petendi, omnibus amissis corpus vix morte reduxit.
Aspice justitiam placido sanctissime vultu, quæ inter Bernates viget, et pietatis amorem, justitiam quam fecisti ne desere Christe, justitiam sancta cum religione nitentem, et fera quæ ardescunt totum prope bella per orbem proh dolor et laxis impune feruntur habenis viribus immensi pacato numinis. Ah jam non homines hominum dicendi nomine: nanque deseruere omnem rationem: dæmonis illos vis agitat rabidi, furiisque ferociter instat.

Fac Deus omnipotens, minime ut discordia demens omnia pro libito vertens sursum atque deorsum in vivis maneat, trepidumque recedat in imum ac tetrum barathrum, redeat neque tempore in ullo.
Perveniatque tuas infantum fletus ad aures, sanctorumque simul gemitus, clamorque piorum.
Diligitur quando tibi pax inimicaque rixa est, puniat ira malos homines accincta flagello:
sic se mortales videant, et casibus esse subjectos, quoscunque velis inducere mundo.

This is the end of the prayer.

In the preface to the reader: conati etiam sumus barbariem, quoad ejus fieri poterat, vitare et Latine loqui, et vocabulum Prædicabilium et similia tanquam barbara respuimus.

The preface of the disputations is addressed Ad Illustrissimum virum atque magnanimum Hieronymum Manuelem arario inclytæ dominorum Bernensium reip. præfectum et Lausanensis Academiæ protectorem omni laude dignissimum. He says in it: Hos ergo logicarum disputationum libros tibi vir præstantissime dicamus, et offerimus, ut aliquam nostræ erga te pietatis significationem exhibeamus . . . præsertim cum privatas etiam causas habeam ad te colendum et honorandum: nam optime animatus et affectus in me semper fuisti: ejusque dilectionis apertissima mihi signa dedisti. nam cum Bernam Illustrissimo fo[r]tissimoque senatui meam operam exhibiturus accessi, is tuo, quem pro me habuisti, sermone commotus me in perpetuum defendendum tuendumque suscepit, idque quamvis homo sim peregrinus et in regionibus natus multo remotissimis. Præterea quam erga me benevolentiam reipsa exhibuisti, in ea diuturno tempore permansisti, permanesque constantissime . . . In a poem Nuñez describes the joy of Lausanne when Manuel comes there. And when he returns to Berne or is called elsewhere, sanctorum cœtus noster te mente requirit. As the mother longs for her son,

haud aliter servatoris respublica Christi
te desiderio quærit percussa fidei, cum gravibus rebus pressus loca nostra relinquis:
sed tamen haud animo nos deseris alme senator nam tua pro nobis mens excubat usque laborans Lausanæque tuis Academia mentibus hæret:
ex animo hanc semper defendis, protegis, auges.
Salve magne pater . . .

From the disp. log.:

P. 102: quæ Apostoli Jesu Christi dei et servatoris nostri, atque ejusdem Prophætæ literis mandarunt, ea non illi quidem humano ingenio scripserunt: sed spiritus dei opt. max. eorum ore loquebatur: quocirca debemus illis fidem habere, quamvis nullam rationem afferrent. Qui vero Aristoteli, Pythagoræ, Platoni, et similibus hominibus, quoniam ipsi sic dixerunt, credit, eos videtur divinis literis æquare, quod absit.

P. 127: Omnino comprehendere quomodo res aliæ cognoscuntur, non potest [Deus]: at vero potest aliquo modo, et quod ratio non assequitur, id indita divinitus persuasio supplet, quam πίστις id est, fidem vocamus: omnia enim quæ ad salutem necessaria sunt Deus nobis libro suo divino veteris et novi testamenti monstravit. nam tanta fuit benignitas Dei, ut nobis tradiderit legem suis manibus conscriptam, quæ homines palantes et erroribus implicitos ad viam veritatis revocaret, atque animos a prava natura et consuetudine ad honestas vitæ actiones converteret: per legem suam maximus ille cælitum atque hominum pater testificatus est quid exigeret a nobis, quidve faciendum fugiendumve foret, ut ad vitam beatam et immortalem pervenire possemus: per legem suam cognitionem rerum altissimarum credit hominibus qui simplici et puro animo, atque demisso justitiam et pietatem colunt. P. 129: non dubitandum quin [Deus] sui similes, liberales, clementes et justos amet, et præmiis post mortem æternis afficiat. P. 130: justitiam, non solum virtutem interpretor quæ jus suum unicuique homini tribuit, et neminem lædit, sed eam quæ Deo opt. max. cultum debitum præstat, quæ fides appellatur: neque sine hac reliquæ virtutes quidquam valent: si vero cum hac præstantissima atque divina, et divinitus, non aliunde indita virtute conjungantur, a Deo optimo, et omnium creatore pro ejus infinita bonitate admittuntur tanquam perfectæ, quamvis multis sordibus et maculis inquinatæ sint.

P. 177: idque facite amore erga Deum omnium creatorem impuls: non enim ad præmia respicere debetis, neque ad pœnas, ne amor vester mercenarius, aut servilis jure dicatur . . . Discite theologiam voluntate divina innitentes, quam nobis divinæ literæ patefaciunt, non ad insulas et alienas a verbo Dei sententias adhærentes. Discite rhetoricam, ut homines possitis ad virtutem et veram pietatem, quam Jesus Christus Dominus noster verus Deus, et verus homo tradidit, incitare. Discite rem militarem, ut pro patria et religione vera pugnetis, pacem amantes, et bellum tanquam rem nefandam et belluarum propriam, ab humanaque natura alienissimam detestantes.

In the course of these disputationes logicæ between Petrus and his Auditor, this one says p. 153: Cupio scire cur in dialecticis nuper editis prætermiseris aliqua exempla a musicorum scientia sumpta, et a geometria: quæ exempla in priore dialectica posuisti. Petrus answers: Id factum est: quoniam nonnulli conquerebantur et ægre ferebant illorum exemplorum obscuritatem. [154] quocirca viam facillimam adolescentibus ostendere volui, nec illos difficultate rerum a dialectica detertere, tibi autem, si placet, illa declarabo: quamvis quæ ad musicam pertinent, proprio libro tractavi, et edere in lucem cito constitui.

CASSIODORO DE REINA AND HIS SONS MARCOS AND AUGUSTINO.

CASSIODORO de Reina¹ was a Sevillian,² born about the year 1520.³ He became a friar,⁴ and probably was in St. Isidro. He was one of those who escaped about the time of the detection of Julianillo's propaganda work.⁵

Reina had from his youth studied the Holy Scripture,⁶ and as soon as he found himself in a free country, he began to translate the Bible into Spanish.⁷ At Geneva he was a member of the Italian church, the Spanish one not having yet been established there. In 1558 he proceeded to Frankfort on the Main, whence Juan Perez had not then been recalled to Geneva to be the minister of the Spanish church there. In Frankfort Reina was a member of the French church. From there he went to England, after the accession

1) He never writes Reynius, but Reinius, in his letters, in the manuscript dedications of his Bible, in the titles of his works on St. John and St. Matthew; once Rheinius, in a letter written on 12 April 1574. In some French papers he writes Cassiodore de Reyne (see below, Documents 8. 14. 15), in one of the same (Doc. 15) also Cassiodore de Reyna.

2) In two autograph dedications of his Bible to the public libraries at Basle and Frankfort (see below) he calls himself Hispalensis. Pellicer (see ib.) translates this: natural de Sevilla. Lehnemann says of him in 1725: bürtig aus Sevilien (see ib.).

3) In 1573, in the dedication to Sturm of his book on the gospel of St. John he speaks of himself as senectutem jam dudum ingressus. See our Doc. 16.

4) See note 21. — La Serna Santander, who certainly had no information on Reina which we have not got, says in the catalogue of his own library, t. 1. 1803, p. 17, that R. was Prêtre, natif de Seville.

5) M'Crie, p. 222, 2^d ed. p. 106, has no doubt that Reina was that Cassiodoro who, according to Llorente cap. XXI, art. I, § 9 (cf. § 15), succeeded in converting almost all the monks of San Isidro to Lutheranism. Llorente, however, says that that Cassiodoro was burnt; also Ad. de Castro 290 and Menendez Pelayo 447 have Fray Cassiodoro among the monks of S. Isidro burnt in 1559.

6) sacris oraculis quorum studiis ab ineunte aetate addictus fui. In the same dedication to Sturm.

7) In the Admonition prefixed to his Bible in autumn 1569, he says that he had begun this work twelve years previously.

of Elizabeth.⁸ In England likewise he first became a member of the French church.⁹

John Strype relates in his Annals of the church of England during the first twelve years of Queen Elizabeth:¹⁰ „There had been many Spaniards in England since Henry VIII. time, whose first wife was a Spaniard, and whose daughter Mary, that king's only issue by her, had favoured and entertained them about her. But especially their numbers increased here upon the persecution in Spain, which was about the reign of king Edward, many whereof being Protestants, remained still in this realm.¹¹ For I find now a congregation of Spaniards in London; and one Cassiodorus was their preacher. Which congregation began about the last year [1559], when they met in a private house for their devotion.“

It was Reina who wrote the confession of faith in the name of some Spaniards at London who wished to be admitted to membership of the evangelical church.¹² In order to live in communion with His name does not occur among those catalogued in Burlamachi's Memorie, but Burl. himself says that all the members were not registered, see above p. 72, and the fact of Reina's membership is established beyond all doubt by his letter to Beza, Doc. 9. coreligionists, they had left their homes and whatever comfort they might have had there, nor had any temporal motive driven them to expatriation. This they declare in the preface, dated January 4. 1559 [new style 1560]. The confession had the result intended.¹³

Strype relates in the History of Grindal: „Divers of other nations had now removed themselves into England, under the Queen's favour and protection, for the sake of true religion, and the free exercise of it. Some of these were Spaniards; many whereof traded as merchants into Spain, and other the King of Spain's dominions. The preacher to these was named Cassiodorus. Upon their first coming, they were advised by the Bishop, and the Secretary of State, for some prudential reasons, to exercise their religious worship privately in an house, rather than in a church. But having done this litherto, it being now the year 1560, they were induced, for certain causes, to meet together rather in a church for the future; and many ministers in the city of London had voluntarily offered them the use of theirs: there-

According to the title of the edition the confession is simply directed to the ecclesia de los fieles, i. e. the evangelical church in general; the prefatory letter of the confession is addressed a la iglesia del señor Jesus el Cristo congregada en Londres, i. e. to the evangelical church at London. fore they put up a supplication to the Bishop and the said Secretary, for their leave more publicly to serve God, together with their reasons for this their request.¹⁴ As first, because while they met in a private house, they found by experience it was an hindrance to the kingdom of Christ; while many withdrew themselves from the assembly, and others were afraid to meet there, lest they might create a danger to themselves and their affairs in Spain, where they held a commerce; for that they who joined themselves with this congregation were easily observed by their adversaries, men very sharp-sighted in this behalf: whereas no such notice would be taken of them, when they should assemble in some public place, where any might come. Again, that by their meeting so long together in a private house, especially in a city that, by the grace of God, was free for all Christian assemblies, they gave occasion to the adversaries more foully to traduce them and their doctrine, than before; for indeed they openly said, that these Spaniards did cherish among them monstrous doctrines, hated even by Lutherans themselves; since in a city so much Lutheran, they thought it not safe to appear publicly: and Cassiodorus made no doubt, that as they did so calumniate them here, they did the like in Spain by their letters; and by these specious pretences procured them great hatred, not only from their adversaries, but even their friends and brethren. He desired therefore of the Bishop and Secretary, that regard might be had to the Gospel of Christ by them sincerely preached; which undoubtedly suffered this scandal, by occasion of these private meetings of theirs. Nor, if this liberty of a church were granted them, would there be any reason to fear giving greater occasion of enmity with the King of Spain; for as soon as ever they should perceive any such thing, they would be willing to depart out of England, rather than disturbances should arise among princes for their cause, what danger soever followed thereby to themselves. And where it was feared the Spanish Ambassador might interpose himself,

14) In the Annals l. c. Strype says: „in this year 1560 the preacher did earnestly request of the Secretary and Bishop of London some church to have their religious assemblies in, for the avoiding of scandal, lest it might be surmised they taught such doctrine and used such worship as they were loth should be publicly known.“

if this were granted, Cassiodorus thought not, because this congregation had been now here above a year; and that he knew they had assemblies under the title of the Spanish church, and had forbid any of his to be present there, and had not since any way further concerned himself; and that it was not twelve days ago, that the said Ambassador ingenuously confessed, that he never to that time had been an enemy to them, nor, if they were minded to constitute a church, would he be their hindrance, having nothing of that nature in his instructions, and that he never had any envy at all against them; besides other good words. This is the sum of the adress the Spanish preacher made to our Bishop; what issue it had I cannot tell, any further than that a Spanish church remained some years after in London, and one Antonius Corranus was their preacher; under whom it received some eclipse.“¹⁵ The petition, of which Strype gives this extract, is called by the writer a summary of a paper previously directed to the Bishop and to the Secretary of State. This summary, according to Strype, was written in 1560; more than a year after that the Spanish Protestant congregation had begun in London; therefore in the first quarter of 1561 new style.

In 1562 the Spanish ambassador in London, bishop Alvaro de la Quadra, resumes what he had written to his Sovereign thus: „To the Spanish heretics who stay here, there has been given a very large house, the Bishop of London's, in which they preach three days a week. They are favoured by the Queen. Cassiodoro, who was at the conference of Poissy [September 1561] received a considerable sum for the journey, and when he got ill at Poissy, the ambassador Throgmorton gave him money, and so too the Earl of Bedford has given money to him and to his father and mother who stay here, and all the others receive support.“¹⁶ In the same year 1562 he reported August 15. 1563. It is sure, that Philip would have best liked to get hold of them in the Netherlands. On the fifth of October Diego Perez, secretary to that Spanish ambassador, who had died about end of August, reports to the king from Monzon: „From Cassiodoro, a moor of Granada, who has been a friar and who preached to the few Spanish heretics residing in London, the Queen [of England] has taken away the church which she had given him, and his pension of sixty pounds; shortly before, he had married.“²¹ Reina had left England already in the spring of the year 1563.²² The reason of his departure was that he was accused of being a follower of Servetus and a Sodomite, and, although the accusation was unfounded, which subsequently, after due examination was judicially declared so, he still may have had reason to fear, that influential persons might at that conjuncture prevent a fair trial.²³ Nor did he wish to lose his time by debating, having better things to do,²⁴ and first of all his Bible-

About the beginning of 1565 Reina returned to Germany. In Frankfort, he got, on Beza's recommendation, a call as preacher to the church of French foreigners at Strassburg.²⁹ On his way to Strassburg in March 1565 he saw at Heidelberg Olevianus, whom he had known before,³⁰ and other theologians. He did not succeed in removing their distrust of him, and they warned the French at Strassburg; nevertheless these declared themselves satisfied by Reina's explanations of his doctrine, and stated that it was only according to his own wish that they gave him leave of absence until he should have got his justification from London.³¹

In April Reina was back at Frankfort. In a letter to Marbach, the President of the Evangelical church of Strassburg, dated April 22, he declares his aversion to those who, on both sides, in the perpetual controversy on the Lords Supper, which ought to be a bond of Christian unity, did not wish to be taught and to teach, but strove only to gain the victory, either by argument or by abuse. He did not see, he said, that anything had been proposed by either party, which was not of far less importance than Bucer's Concordia (established at Wittenberg in 1536) and its explanations. To those articles he would keep, if the Lord should call him to preach at Strassburg. He did not know why they did not break the bread, since this was the practice of the apostolic church and conformable to Scripture. However, to omit even this, might be advised by Christian love, to which everything must subserve in the church of Christ. On the same day Reina wrote to Beza in the same sense. But to the Genevese reformer he appeared to be too much of a Lutheran. He never entered the ministry at Strassburg, but he returned there several times and saw his friends, especially the rector John Sturm, of scholastic celebrity down to our time, and the Rev^d Conrad Hubert.

Reina set up in business at Frankfort, and worked at the same time at his translation of the Bible. When he had finished the Old Testament, he removed to Basle,³² where the printing began in

32) Reina went by way of Strassburg, where he stayed in June 1567 and was still there at the end of September; he was at Basle in October and November, at the latter part of 1568 and the whole Bible was finished in September 1569.³³ As for the New Testament, he had expected to get a translation which was in the press at Paris, but as it did not come forth, he found himself obliged to translate the N. T. also; in May 1569 the printer had overtaken him at the end of the first epistle to the Corinthians, and had to wait a while for manuscript.³⁴ When Reina at last wrote the Admonition prefixed to his work, twelve years had elapsed since he began what he was now publishing, and he might say, that, deducting the time taken by illness and travel and other necessary occupations incident to exile and poverty, he had for nine long years not laid aside the pen.³⁵ In order to keep as near as possible to the Hebrew, he had generally followed the Latin translation of Sanctes Pagninus, and had largely used the Spanish version published by the Spanish Jews at Ferrara, comparing, however, other versions and commentaries, and replacing by a more exact translation whatever appeared to be insufficient. In the book on St. John's gospel, edited by him a few years later, the Hebrew and the Syriac words printed with Hebrew types, and his remarks on such words³⁶ show that he had studied those languages. At the end of that Admonition Reina starts the scheme, that a commission of ten or twelve members, chosen as the most learned and pious men in all the Universities and churches of the realm, should achieve a Spanish version of the Bible, and that this version should be authorized as well by a synod, which ought to be at least a national one, as also by the government, under severe Strassburg at Christmas 1567 and in January 1568, at Basle on the 15. of Jan., at Strassburg in the first part of February and was so still at Easter [which fell on March 28]. Probably he went on to Frankfort to fetch his family. With them he arrived in June at Basle, where he was dangerously ill for five weeks. In the beginning of August he was recovering. All these dates are derived from his letters, and from those of Oporinus and Zanchi (see Documents n° 10).

penalties for those who should make alterations in it, such revision being reserved to the synod. Reina's Spanish Bible was of higher and more lasting importance for Spain than king Philip's polyglot Bible in Hebrew, Chaldean, Greek and Latin, in eight folio volumes, edited at Antwerp by the Spaniard Benito Arias Montano and his collaborators, the printing of which was likewise begun in 1568, in July, and was finished in March 1572. Reina's is the Spanish Protestant Bible now circulated in many editions throughout Spain and America. Valera, whose name it bears, is but the earliest of several revisors; he called his Bible a second edition of that of Reina, in whose text he now and then introduced some alterations, as he himself describes his work.³⁷

T., says: Più universalmente lodata è stata la versione di tutta la bibbia di Cassiodoro Reina, una delle più esatte e fedeli di quante si sono publicate nelle lingue volgari; molto più la riveduta e corretta da Cipriano Valera, che la confrontò co'testi originali e con diverse traduzioni, e vi fece i convenienti miglioramenti. — Scio, in the disertacion preliminar of his N. In Reina's Bible, the books, which are not in the Hebrew Bible, are placed where they are found in the Latin Vulgate. And even those, which in the Vulgate are appended at the end of the whole Bible, are inserted in the Old Testament: the prayer of Manasses after the 2. of Chronicles, and book 3 and 4 of Ezra after Nehemiah; upon that prayer he remarks: por no hallarse en el texto Hebreo, se suele contar con los libros apochryphos, and each of those two books of Ezra he notes as

In Reina's Admonition occurs the following passage: As to what concerns the author of the translation, if he be a Catholic, who faithfully and simply believes and professes what the Holy Christian Catholic Mother Church believes, holds and maintains, determined by the Holy Spirit, by the canons of Holy Scripture, in the holy councils, and in the symbols and common summaries of the faith which are usually called the Apostles' Creed, that of the Nicene Council and that of Athanasius, the author of this translation is a Catholic, and any one who should not hold him to be such would do him a manifest injury.³⁸ In the dedicatory letter to all magistrates he speaks³⁹ of the glorious confession of Augsburg.

This dedication contains an explanation and application of Ezekiel's vision of the Cherubim carriage. The explanation is founded on an article of John Sturm of Strassburg, placed by the author at Reina's disposition; Reina enlarged it and adapted it to his purpose, blending with it a preface which he had written before,⁴⁰ so that he could call the whole the translator's preface and sign it: C. R.

Sturm also wrote a letter to the Queen of England, to accompany the presentation copy of Reina's Bible. He says, Reina had conquered the power of the devil, by whom he formerly had been forced to leave England, and had now finished this work which he would have liked to publish under Her Majesty's auspices. At the same time Sturm wrote to Cecil, the English Secretary of State: Of Reina's faith and innocence I would not hesitate to take an oath.⁴¹ apochrypho. The other books of the O. T. which are not found in the Hebrew, are not marked by Reina as apocryphal. For the additions in Daniel he reproduces Jerome's notice that they are not in the Hebrew. Valera has placed all the apocryphal books together, between the Old and the New Testament.

Reina dedicated a copy of his Bible to the University of Basle (where it still is in the Public library) with an autograph in which he calls himself a pupil of this renowned academy.⁴² His undertaking to print the Spanish Bible was there especially promoted by the two Lutheran theologians, Simon Sulzer and Huldric Coetius, who held the office of preventive censure of publications.⁴³ They, together with Marcos Perez, also took care of him when he became dangerously ill, and they procured for his wife, who was very skilful in female work, opportunity to gain a living for her family. Reina acknowledges it with warm thankfulness in the dedicatory epistle, in which in 1573 he offered to these two friends the exposition of the fourth chapter of St. Matthew's Gospel, where he principally treats of the dangers to be avoided by ministers of the gospel. In the same year, his commentary on select passages of St. John's Gospel, proving the eternal sonship of Christ, was dedicated by him to Sturm, to whom he says he owed, under God, whatever he was and ever should be.⁴⁴

In summer 1570 he returned to Frankfort where he soon got the freedom of the city.⁴⁵ He was a member of the French church

It was Antistes Simon Sulzer who preached the sermon on the gospel of the good shepherd, when, in presence of the synod and of the congregation in the minster, sixteen members of the family of David Joris had to abjure in order to be reconciled, whilst Joris' body which had been three years in the grave, had been exhumed and burned as that of a heretic, in consequence of a judgment passed by the University. This pyre was burnt at Basle in the same year and month in which Cazalla and others were burnt at Valladolid.

In 1578, when the peace of Antwerp, concluded on July 22, 1578, had brought religious liberty to the Protestants,⁴⁸ the post of a French pastor to the Evangelicals of the Augsburg Confession there was offered to Reina.⁴⁹ The thirst for the gospel at Antwerp was extraordinary and promised a rich harvest.⁵⁰ Reina left for Antwerp in the autumn of the same year.

But before Reina entered upon that office, he went to England in order to efface old calumnies by personally meeting them.⁵¹ The heads of the French church in London tried to maintain them, but a Royal judicial commission, presided over by the archbishop of Canterbury, by Grindal (whom Macaulay styles „the best archbishop of Canterbury since the Reformation, except Tillotson“), pronounced him

In June 1579 we meet Reina, with other Antwerp Lutherans, at Cologne, where the Emperor had assembled a peace conference on the Netherland question.⁵⁴ Only reluctantly did he accompany his friends back to Antwerp, where he now foresaw troubles which he might not be able to surmount.⁵⁵

In the meanwhile the Calvinists at Antwerp contrived to get from London certain articles on the Lord's Supper subscribed to by Reina in the preceding year before the archbishop of Canterbury. These articles did not sound well in Lutheran ears, and when they were published in three languages by the Calvinistic party, apparently with Reina's sanction, the consternation was great among those of the Augsburg Confession. But when Reina declared, that the opposite party had printed them without his knowledge, and that he wished them to be understood conformably to the Wittenberg Concord of 1536 (the great work of Bucer, penned by Melancthon, subscribed by Luther, and praised by Guy de Brès, the author of the Calvinistic Belgian Confession, as a bond of union with Germany and of safety to the Netherlands), and after his rehearsal of the confession of faith required for admission into the ministry, the church acquiesced, and Reina's practical zeal, far removed from dry theological controversy, soon succeeded in gaining the hearty sympathy and full confidence of the entire body.⁵⁶ He knew, that his behaviour in England, as well before the judges as everywhere else, had been such that nobody had held him to be a Calvinist.⁵⁷ In December 1579 he began to preach at Antwerp in the Cloître des Carmes, one of the places of worship of the so called Martinists, that is Lutherans.⁵⁸ A catechism, which Reina composed, following especially that of Luther and that of Strassburg⁵⁹ was authorized and published by his Antwerp church in 1580,⁶⁰ in French, Dutch and Latin, and in the next years the Dutch copy was twice reprinted, and a second edition of the Latin was enlarged by an apologetical appendix.

In May 1580 the deputies of the church wrote to Dr. Martin Chemnitz, Superintendent at Brunswick, asking him to send them some peaceable men of learning and experience, as they were constantly in want of good preachers, not having more than four for their five Dutch churches, whilst their French church was well provided for by Reina and his colleague. They call Reina their dear father, and praise his learning and piety and zeal.⁶¹ Reina himself expressed the same desire in a letter to Chemnitz.⁶²

In the summer of the same year 1580 he sent for his wife and his numerous children, all of whom he had left at Frankfort under the special care of his intimate friend, Matthias Ritter, the Senior of the ministry of the City.⁶³ He did not, however, resign his Frankfort citizenship.⁶⁴

Reina thought it of vital necessity for the Lutheran church at Antwerp, to get a man of prudence and authority as their Superintendent, and since Chemnitz was said to be on very bad terms with his Duke, Reina asked Ritter to try to prevail upon the celebrated divine to accept that place among the Antwerp Lutherans.⁶⁵ This hope however was not realized. In summer 1581 David Chytræus at Rostock, author of the History of the Augsburg Confession, says in a letter to Conrad Schlüsselburg, who lately had been appointed as minister to the Lutherans of Antwerp: „I have exhorted the deputies to place a Superintendent over the ministry, and I have named for this post Cassiodorus, whose doctrine and peacefulness thou hast praised to me.“⁶⁶ Reina, however, declined.⁶⁷

George Mylius, preacher at Augsburg (some years later he became Prof. theol. at Wittenberg), writes to Schlüsselburg in 1581 June 29: *Preces nostras cum vestris inde ex eo usque tempore conjunximus (imo vota ardentia semper pro vobis fundimus) quo mihi per literas innotescere superiori anno Collega tuus venerandus cepit, D. About the same time Tilemann Hesshus exercised his polemical gift against the Antwerp catechism. Already in the beginning of 1580 the Antwerp church was so afraid of Hesshus that they shrunk from appointing his son-in-law, Olearius, who was well recommended to them, as one of their preachers. „We have to fear,“ the deputies wrote to Chemnitz,⁶⁸ „that he, on account of his father-in-law, might be disposed to quarrel about original sin.“ They had had at Antwerp superabundant experience of that controversy. Now Hesshusius rashly condemned Reina's catechism.⁶⁹ Favourable judgments were, however, given on the catechism by Chemnitz, Chytræus, Selnecker, by the ministers of Worms and by the ministers and the University of Strassburg.⁷⁰

In 1581, one of the Lutheran ministers who had been sent from Rostock to Antwerp, succeeded in renewing debates on Reina's London articles concerning the Lord's Supper, which the accuser called upon the author to recant. Reina was even suspended from office during the trial which lasted some weeks, but at last the ministers, deputies and deacons subscribed a decision declaring that the question had been settled long ago and rebuking him who renewed it.⁷¹

Also Polycarp Leyser, Schlüsselb. stud. posth. p. 283, thought that that catechism had become suspected without sufficient reason.

71) Reina in Lehnemann p. 168. He says that the renewer was a conterranean of Isensee, Latomus, Happel, who first had all three been on his side against Reina, but at last subscribed that decision against Reina's accuser. They had, according to Schütz, p. 27 f., been sent from Rostock together with three others: Schlüsselburg, Theod. Meier, Burchard Jochow. One of these three seems to be the person in question. Schlüsselburg appears to have been the most aggressive of them. He left Antwerp in 1582 cum reliquis Augustanæ Confessionis concionatoribus, as he wrote to Polycarp Leyser, who disapproves of their departure, Schlüss. Epist. p. 288. Nor had indeed all the ministers of the Augsburg Confession left at that time.

In January 1582 Reina asked Ritter to tell him what was the usage at Frankfort and in the neighbouring churches at Strassburg, at Heidelberg and at Nuremberg with respect to what remained of the bread and of the wine at the Lord's Supper, a question about which a controversy was growing up at Antwerp. They will be more easily convinced by good examples than by reasoning, says Reina.⁷²

In August 1585 Antwerp surrendered to the prince of Parma who had besieged it. The prince made the concession, that for the next four years no person, living quietly without scandal, should be importuned on account of religion, and that at the end of that period those, who did not turn Roman Catholics, should be allowed to emigrate with all their property. Many people, however, who had no confidence in such promises, left the country at once.⁷³ Many others had already left before the inevitable surrender. Among the latter were the families who went with Reina to Frankfort o. M.

On the last day of May 1585 the Lutheran Netherlanders at Frankfort, after a sermon by Reina, founded a fund for the poor; the document founding it is written in French by Reina's hand.⁷⁴ On September 22 ten representatives of the Netherland Augsburg Confession, some of them citizens of Frankfort, signed a petition to the magistrate to be permitted to have preaching in the French language. „There is living here,“ they say, „the worthy and highly learned Cassiodoro de Reina, who has been at the head of the church at Antwerp with pure doctrine and good Christian zeal, and who is in concord with the Predicants here in all doctrinal articles; and if he were called to the ministry, we hope he would be willing to undertake this Christian work.“ They, therefore, asked that it might please the Magistrate to nominate Reina to the post of French preacher for them, just as the German preachers of the city were nominated, or otherwise to provide for them. They were ready to furnish the funds for his living.⁷⁵ The German ministers supported the petition and recommended Reina. The Netherlanders, their number being increased, petitioned again on 8 March 1586, and a third and a fourth time on 21 June and 30 August.⁷⁶ But the magistrate temporized. In 1592 when a minister of the French Calvinists there had died, the magistrate did not allow them to elect a successor, but took care himself to appoint and pay a French Lutheran preacher, reserving, however, according to the general usage of the city, baptisms and solemnization of matrimony to the ministry of the parish-church. Antoine Serray from Montbéliard was thought preferable to Reina, because French was his native language and because he also understood German,⁷⁷ which language Reina seems never to have learned well, as appears also from the desire expressed in his letters from Antwerp to Matthias Ritter,⁷⁸ to get a Latin translation of the Frankfort Agenda, which translation was to be translated at Antwerp into French. Serray was installed in the beginning of 1593. It was he who then made the French translation of the Frankfort Agenda. The Netherlanders availed themselves with thankfulness of the opportunity to listen to Lutheran sermons in French, and to celebrate the Lord's Supper in the same language, but their main sympathy remained unshaken with their own old Antwerp preacher, who, living among them in Frankfort exercising his silktrade, had continued to be the evangelical support of many, who, because they did not understand German, could not derive the benefit they needed from the German Lutheran Scharff reports p. 261 f. that on 5 Nov. 1572 a deliberation was held in the Council of Frankfort concerning the Netherlanders and other foreigners who had fled there lately; that Matthias Ritter offered to preach to them in French, which was declined by the authorities and by the foreigners themselves, as he was not fluent enough in their language and had too much to do in his German office; and then the predicants of the city proposed that Cassiodoro de Reina, who had taught the word of God purely at Antwerp and now had returned to Frankfort (der ein Zeit zu Antorff das Wort Gottes lauter und rein gelehret, und wieder anhero kommen), should be appointed as French preacher, but that no decision was taken. It would seem from Scharff's report that this proposition of the ministers was made about 1573, but there remain several reasons to doubt this date.

ministers and their service.⁷⁹ At the request of many citizens, the college of Frankfort ministers applied to the magistrate, asking that Reina, an intelligent, reverend, pacific, learned, experienced and eloquent man, who had served the church at Antwerp effectively and praiseworthily, should be appointed as Serray's colleague.⁸⁰ Reina, upon requisition, sent in his confession of faith, May 8. 1593. He declared his adherence to the Augsburg Confession, to the Wittenberg Concordia of 1536, to the Book of Concord of 1580, condemning all opinions refuted there, including the Calvinistic ones. As for the functions in his future office he only asked, not as a prerogative, but from necessity, to be freed from afternoon sermons.⁸¹ On July 20 Reina was received as minister;⁸² the Netherlands paid for his living, but through the hands of the city authorities.⁸³

He had not been eight months in office, when he died, on march 15. 1594.⁸⁴

of one of the masters of it, Samuel Hubert,⁸⁷ he was afterwards sent to Wittenberg to study theology; he matriculated there, together with his brother Augustino, on November 8. 1593.⁸⁸ After Reina's death, Serray, whose health was delicate, felt too much burdened by the care of the French Lutheran church which now weighed exclusively upon himself, wherefore the Frankfort ministry proposed to the magistrate to appoint the young Reina in his father's stead.⁸⁹ Professor Ægidius Hunnius of Wittenberg, in a letter dated July 25. 1595 gave from daily intercourse with him a good testimony as well to his sincerity in religious confession as to his life, and at the same time did not doubt but that his work would be profitable to the church of God.⁹⁰ Marcos although expressing the wish to continue for a while his studies at Wittenberg, where he enjoyed a stipend given him by the city of Frankfort, still readily placed himself at the disposition of the authorities, hoping that God would give him together with the office the necessary wisdom. In 1596 on July 8 he was received as German and French preacher, to be paid by the city, and he filled this office almost 29 years.⁹¹ On July 8. 1597 his name occurs under the document of renewal for the alms-institution of the Netherlanders at Frankfort.⁹² Serray died in January 1616.⁹³ Marcos Cassiodoro de Reina died in May 1625.⁹⁴ On the first of that month

The establishment of French Lutheran preachers at Frankfort lasted two hundred years. In 1787 the French Calvinists at last got the permission to hold divine service within the walls of the city in German and in French; in the next year the consistory reported, that there was no more need of French sermons for the Lutherans, whereupon the magistrate otherwise disposed of the church which had been used for that purpose.⁹⁵

Frankfort o. M.⁹⁷ In 1597 appeared his German translation of an Italian description of the kingdom of Congo, in the next year the same book translated by him into Latin; each of these translations had a second edition. The eighth volume of de Bry's America in German, published in 1599, republished 1624, contains travels of Thomas Candish, of Francis Drake and John Hawke, of Walter Raleigh and Laurence Keymis, made in the years 1586—1596, first described in English, and then from a Dutch translation translated into German by Augustino Cassiodoro de Reina.

In 1603 we find Augustino as preceptor of foreign languages to the duke John of East-Gothland, son of king John of Sweden.⁹⁸

97) The de Brys were Calvinists, compare Scharff p. 294.

Nos 12. 16. 17 and part of 11 are extracts from printed books. The other documents are printed here for the first time.

1 from the autograph in the British Museum, Lansdowne Ms. 4. N° 46. f. 149, copied for me by Mr. Warner. See above p. 169.

2—9 and 13—15 from the manuscripts in the public library at Geneva. By means of tracings of parts of nos 6. 9. 14. 15 I stated that these are Reina's autographs, and so likewise the inscription of n. 3. In consequence of these my statements, the documents 4 A. 5 A and 8 were also recognized as autographs of Reina, the inscription of 4 B not with certainty, 2. 3. 4 B. 5 B. 13 as not his. The Geneva papers have been copied for me, partly by Don Manuel Carrasco, but the most of them by Mr. Louis Dufour, Archiviste of Geneva, who also revised Carrasco's copies.

N° 10 gives extracts from original letters preserved in the Thomas Archives at Strassburg.

The University library at Basle is in possession of the tenth letter to Zwinger, which was copied for me by the librarian, Professor Sieber, who, at my request, searched for letters of Reina, and who likewise indicated the volume which contains some more. These other eleven letters to Zwinger and the extracts of letters in n° 11 are copied from copies in that library (G II 33); the originals are in the Frey-Grynæus Institution in the same town.

It would have been useless to print these papers literally. In regulating somewhat the wavering French orthography, I followed the occasional tendency, perceptible in the manuscripts, to the modern practice which generally is a more simplified one, and I have, therefore, suppressed many letters which were not pronounced, for instance in doibt, dict fait pointet, escript escripre, aultro ceulx cieulx; tiltre, scavoir resceu; also the g in words like ung. I left oe, changing with oi, and many etymological s which never were dropped in the mss. (except one ajouter and one temoigne, where, however, the original has perhaps s). It may be mentioned that Reina often writes eglise`raison Strazbourg. I have put the aigu on final e only and in the plural of such words (writing -és, not -ez, p. c. not signez, and reserving -ez for the second person which in the mss. has perchance -es beside -ez: entenderes), the grave in à là où après. I have often added the cedille. But no more of such minutiae uninteresting even to linguists in French texts written by a Spaniard and a German.

Londini 1560.]*

Summa prioris cujusdam scripti illustrissimis Dominis Episcopo Lond. et Secretario primario Regiæ Majestatis exhibiti, quo ostendimus, quibus jam rationibus cogamur ad petendam facultatem ad sacras preces et contiones publice conveniendi: eosque per Christum obsecramus, ut nostris hisce rationibus animadversis hujus rei curam ex animo suscipiant.

Hactenus prudenti atque pio vestro consilio usi, Domini Amplissimi, intra privatas ædes ad preces et contiones convenimus. Jam necessitate urgemur ad petendam facultatem publice conveniendi in templo aliquo ex multis quæ a piis Ministris hujus urbis ad id nobis offeruntur. Qualis vero nos urgeat necessitas, ex subsequentibus rationibus apparebit.

1. Primo. Dum in privatis ædibus convenimus, retardari experimur Regnum Christi, dum multi a nostro Cœtu se subducunt, alii nobiscum convenire omnino non audent, quod periculum sibi et rebus suis creent in Hispania, ubi commercia sua habent. Notantur quippe facile, qui sese adjungunt nobis, ab adversariis hac in parte oculatissimis: id quod non fieret in publico aliquo loco, ubi cuivis ingredi est impune.

2. Secundo. Intra privatas ædes tam diu convenientes, præsertim in civitate Dei beneficio Christianis conventibus libera, ansam præbemus adversariis et nos et doctrinam nostram fœdius quam antea traducendi. Aperte enim dicunt, nos portenta quædam intra nos alere ipsis quoque Lutheranis (ut vocant) invisæ, quando in civitate maxime Lutherana in publicum prodire haud ducamus nobis tutum. Neque dubito quin, ut hac calamitate impudenter nos istic impetunt, literis quoque in Hispania traducant, hac utumque apparenti ratione conflaturi nobis ingens odii pondus non solum apud adversarios, verum etiam apud amicos et fratres. Rationem haberi velim hac in parte Evangelii Christi sincere a nobis annuntiati, quod hanc contumeliam haud dubie subire cogitur nostra hac ratione conveniendi.

3. Neque si, quod petimus, nobis concedatur, verendum erit ne majorem inimicitiarum cum Rege Hisp. occasionem demus: nam simul atque id noverimus, libentius cedemus tota Anglia, quam Reges patiemur nostra causa tumultuari. Neque pudet nos tanto nostro periculo hanc quam petimus emere facultatem: caritas enim Christi urget nos, cujus hoc periculo injuriam propulsamus. Quod vero Legatus Hisp. huic actioni sit intercessurus, vix in animum induco. Primum, quod ultra annum hîc jam egerimus, habuerimus cœtus titulo Ecclesiæ Hisp., Legatus resciverit, prohibuerit etiam suis ne nostris cœtibus interessent, neque ullo modo hactenus intercesserit. Certe id aut quia non possit, aut quia nolit. Si primum, non est

rem mentem. Addo etiam quod post duodecim dies idem ipse ingenue fassus est, se nobis hactenus nunquam fuisse adversatum neque si ecclesiam velimus constituere, adversatum iri, quod neque tale quippiam habeat in mandatis, neque nobis prorsus male velit. Omitto alia quæ si e sincero pectore prodierunt, spem etiam faciunt amplio-rem; sui minus, necessitas demum cogit ut periculum faciamus. Tantum obsecro, viri Amplissimi, ut in mentem veniat quantula vestra opera insigniter promoturi sitis negotium Christi, si pro fide vestra officium præstetis.

Annotationes Cassiodori.)

In Isaiam.

Cap. 7. 14: Ecce virgo concipiet, et pariet filium, et vocabit nomen ejus Immanuel. Intelligit uxorem suam, ut videtur in principio capitis sequentis, quam sic vocat, innuens hanc totam historiam esse symbolum libertatis spiritualis quæ per Christum futura erat, cujus mater futura esset virgo, cujus uxor erat figura, quemadmodum ejus filius futurus esset Christi. Immanuel. Non necesse erat filium Isaïæ Deum, ut nominaretur Deus-nobiscum, re esse, quemadmodum nec ut alter filius vocaretur. Reliquiæ convertentur. Necesse erat ut idem eas converteret, non enim ita denominabantur tanquam horum factorum auctores, sed tanquam signa et symbola ejus quod Deus esset facturus, dataque ad confirmandum populum in fide et spe promissionis. Hac ratione vocamus baptismum lavacrum regenerationis et renovationis spiritus, sepulturam peccatorum, et sacramentum panis et vini cœnam Domini, corpus et sanguinem ejus, non quod revera sint, quum sint panis et aqua communia, sed quod illud repræsentent. Vocabunt nomen ejus Immanuel. Ut in eo viderent pii testimonium præsentis Dei apud illos. Vers. 16.
Antequam puer sciat. Eum qui dictus fuit in versu 14 nasciturum. Cap. 8. 3: Accelera ad prædam, festina ad direptionem. Exponit Cassiodorus de eodem filio Isaïæ. Cap. 9. 6: Vocabitur nomen ejus admirabilis. Dabitur illi nomen, dignitas et essentia Dei, quo tanquam Deus admiranda faciat. Philip. 2.
Sic etiam explanat epitheta sequentia Cassiodorus. Cap. 28. 6: Et erit idem Dominus spiritus judicii illi qui sedebit super sedem judicii. Spiritus judicii, quasi dicat: erit illi impulsus ad judicandum, erit is qui eum movebit in omnibus quæ dixerit. Hoc significat spiritus sæpe in scriptura. [1 Jo. 4. 1:]
Probate spiritu[s], an ex Deo sint; probate, an Deus sit qui eos movet; probate impulsus eorum qui doctrinis veniunt, an sint Dei. Aperte ait eundem sit spiritus sanctus, scilicet an sit persona per se subsistens a patre et a Christo distincta, alterum si sit vis illa quæ movet et agitat suos interne, et tertio an proprie dici possit spiritum sanctum extra hominem esse. Cap. 48. 16: Nunc Dominus misit me et ejus spiritus. Nihil dicit hic Cassiodorus, quum sit proprius locus. Cap. 52. 13: Ecce servus meus prosperabitur. Exponit de Cyro et tanquam a figura transit Cassiodorus ad Christum qui est figuratus. Est proluxa annotatio. Cap. 66. 9: Num ego qui parere facio, non pariam ego ipse etiam, ait Jehova, qui facio gignere, detinebor. Ex præcedentibus et consequentibus videtur clare, quam inepte trahant quidam hunc locum ad probandam æternam generationem, qua pater gignit filium, quum appareat eum loqui de generatione et nativitate ecclesiæ. Quin magis ad rem hinc eliciemus genitam esse universam ecclesiam et unumquemque fidelium ex eodem Deo. Unde concluditur eos habere divinam naturam Joa. 3. 1 Pet. 1, Jacobi genitos ex semine immortali. Hinc sequitur eos esse filios naturales, quamvis admissos ad hoc summum beneficium Christi merito et efficacia ejus spiritus qui facit eos unum corpus cum eo et idem cum Deo.

In Ezechielem.

Cap. 20. 43: Et recordabimini ibi viarum vestrarum. Vera pœnitentia nunquam potuit haberi sub lege. Cap. 36. 35: Terra ista desolata fuit sicut hortus Eden, quasi dicat: amœnissimus, qualis fuit paradysus terrestris. Ac sic est qui credat, et non sine gravibus conjecturis, terram promissionis fuisse antea paradysum terrestrem. Cap. 12. 19: Gallica translatio lapsa est turpiter (utitur autem Cassiodorus Hispane scribens hac sibi suavissima voce: lourdement) cum annotatione. Cap. 16. 30: Sic transtulit Gallica, sed ignorans locutionem. Cap. 20. 31: Gallica transtulit per futurum et per interrogationem, sed non intellexit propositum. Cap. 23. 10: Gallicæ hic variant, Rebutti male, Nicolai Barbierii non tam male. Cap. 27. 15: Reprehendit Cassiodorus versionem Gallicam, et multis aliis in locis adeo ut ex professo eam videatur impugnare, homo ignarus Hebrææ, Græcæ, et non admodum doctus Gallicæ linguæ.

La lettre d'Olevianus à l'Eglise des Estrangers de Strasbourg, par laquelle s'est opposé au ministere de Cassiodore.*) [Heidelberg 19 Mars 1565].

Salut en nostre Seigneur Jesu Christ. Tres chers freres, la cause qui nous esmeut, qui sommes ici soubsignés, à vous escrire, est que nous vous voulons advertir du domaigne qui vous est devant la porte, et sommes contraints de ce faire simplement et rondement à cause de nostre conscience. Et pour le tout faire brief et clair, la somme est que Cassiodore l'Espagnol, qui s'en va devers nous et nous a dit estre appelé de l'eglise françoise de Strasbourg, s'est decouvert manifestement à nous qu'il tient une doctrine de certains articles de la foi, comme de l'ascension de Jesu Christ au ciel, et du ciel mesme, secondement de ce que Jesu Christ est assis à la dextre de Dieu le Pere etc., et pour le troisieme de la sainte Cene, qui tient, disons nous, une doctrine aus dits points que nous savons de sa bouche estre repugnante à la verité de l'Ecriture sainte, aux articles de foi, et à la confession qu'ont les eglises de France et celle qui a esté à Strasbourg, comme nous sommes prests à prouver s'il est besoin, car nous avons entendu les erreurs de sa bouche qu'il les a maintenus et les maintient encores. Secondement, touchant sa vie, combien que nous n'en puissions rien assurer d'un cousté ne d'autre, toutesfoes, à cause de la communion qu'est entre vous et nous comme membres d'un mesme corps, nous vous escrirons seulement ce que nous avons oui de sa bouche. À savoir qu'il a esté accusé en Angleterre de six crimes dont le moindre valoit le pendre,*) comm'il disoit, s'il feust esté vrai. Toutesfois il confesse que six tesmoins ont depesé contre lui sous serment qu'il estoit vrai, et confesse aussi qu'il n'a pas voulu attendre le jugement, mais qu'il s'est enfoui. Entre les autres crimes, il dit que l'heresie de Servet estoit un. Mais il adjouste qu'il estoit innocent. Laquelle chose il nous a confessé à cause que le bruit estoit desja auparavant venu à nous. Pourtant l'avons interrogué, mais nous laissons le jugement de cela à Dieu, et vous prions d'y proceder sagement. Voici le second, les doutes que nous avons de sa vie. Quant est du premier, à savoir la doctrine, nous ne disons rien par conjecture, mais ce que nous avons oui de sa bouche, et ce qu'il a soustenu et soustient encores contre la doctrine et confession de l'eglise de Geneve et celles de France, et contre la doctrine que maistre Guillaume Helbrag vous a annoncé; et si maistre Guillaume Helbrag eut voulu consentir à moins de fausses opinions que cestui ci defend, il feut encores à Strasbourg. Or puisque Jesu Christ nous admoneste qu'il nous faut garder du levain de fausse doctrine, nous vous exhortons au nom de nostre souverain pasteur Jesu Christ que vous soyez sus vos gardes, et que vous n'acceptiez nul ministre qui ne soit pur en la doctrine de l'evangile, ce que cestui ci n'est point, ce que nous disons devant Dieu et ses anges, et sommes prests à le prouver par ses paroles evidentes, qu'il ne peut nier. Sachez aussi, tres chers freres, qu'il fera bien semblant d'estre d'accord avec la confession des eglises de France, mais que tel fard ne vous deçoive, car nous savons le contraire de sa bouche. Que plaist à Dieu qu'il n'y eut encores d'autres erreurs couverts sous les premiers. Car nous lui avons proposé d'aucuns articles Chrestiens sur lesquels il a donné de responses merveilleuses. Nous lui avons aussi rondement dit ici que nous advertirons l'eglise de Strasbourg. Et sommes aussi content s'il vous trouvez bon de communiquer ceste presente à monsr de Bese) et autres freres. Ici nous ferons fin, priant nostre bon Dieu de pourvoir son eglise de bons et fideles pasteurs par son fils Jesu Christ. Amen. Le Seigneur vous gouverne par son saint Esprit. Amen.

Il nous a fallu escrire ceci en haste par mon serviteur, d'autant que Cassiodore est parti aujourd'hui, autrement nous vous eussions envoyé la dispute et ses erreurs par espace et au loing. Toutesfois le ferons se vous le jugez estre besoin. Touchant le tesmoignage qu'il allegue de monsr de Bese, il en abuse fausement, comment on lui peut prouver aisement. Donné a Heydelberg ce 19 de mars 1565.

Par vos freres humbles et amis, ministres de la parole au Palatinat soubssignés, en la presence desquels Cassiodore a declairé ses erreurs, et toutesfois demeure en iceux.

Gaspar Olevianus. Johannes Sylvanus. Franciscus Mosellanus.

[Strasbourg 24 mars 1565.]

Aux freres estrangers qui sont à Strasburg professant l'evangile de nostre Seigneur Jesus Christ, grace et paix au mesme Seigneur.^c) Freres en Christ, afin d'obvier selon mon pouvoir à l'empeschement de la restitution de cest'eglise qui, par le mauvais rapport^d) de quelques uns tant de ma vie que de ma doctrine, est advenu, je ai^e) deliberé de donner ici par escrit à vostre Congregation et à toute l'Eglise du Seigneur la somme^f) de ma foi et quant et quant de ma doctrine tant en general qu'en particulier de ces points dont on m'a chargé, invocant^g) le nom du Seigneur le Dieu Vivant en tesmoignage de ma sincerité en ce que de soubz sera comprins.

1. Premièrement, je reçois et embrace tous les livres Canoniques de la Saint'Ecriture, comme vraie Parole de Dieu, et fondement de la foi de toute l'Eglise de Jesus Christ. Pareillement les symboles de la foi où sont comprins les principaux articles de nostre foi, à savoir,^h) celui qu'on appelle desⁱ) Apostres, celui d'Athanasius, et celui du Concile de Nicée, et rejette et ai rejeté tout erreur contrevenant à quelq'un de ces articles, et nommeement touchant l'Unité d'un Dieu et la Trinité des Personnes du Pere et du Fils et du Saint Esprit en une mesme essence divine en egale majesté et eternité, celui d'Arius, et celui de Servetus, et proteste devant Dieu et ses Anges, que je n'ai tenu n'enseigne chose contrevenante à ceci, ains le contraire, et que ç'a esté une pure et impudente calomnie ce qu'on a espars de moi touchant ceci, ainsi qu'il appaist^k) par le tesmoignage que toute l'Eglise de Geneve a rendu de moi, et apparoistra davantage en la procedure de mon ministere, quand le Seigneur se voudra servir de moi. Voila quant à ma foi en general.

2. Quant à la doctrine en general, je advoe et reçois pour fidele et chrestienne doctrine tout le corps de la doctrine que je ai ouie en l'Eglise de Geneve, et en les Eglises françoises à Francfort et à Londres en lesquelles je ai conversé comme membre d'icelles, et en lesquelles je ai aprins et profité par la grace du Seigneur après ma venue d'Espagne; du consentement desquelles je proteste en saine conscience que ce n'est pas n'il a esté mon intention de me separer touchant les principaux points de la doctrine, ains de me conserver moyenant la grace du Seigneur, comme je ai fait jusques ici,^l) dont l'experience faira à l'advenir bon tesmoignage.

3. De la Cene du Seigneur en particulier, je confesse, qu'à tous les fideles y approchans en vraie foi en est rendu tesmoignage que toute la vertu de la mort

a) Two copies of this answer of Reina are at Geneva. One [A], an autograph of Reina, contains only the first twelve paragraphs and part of the twentieth with the subscription. On the back, by Reina's hand, as it seems: Confession de Cassiodore touchant l'article de l'unité d'un Dieu et trinité de personnes, et du point de la Cene du Seigneur. Above this the date 1566. It appears that Reina made this copy of some articles about the time when he wrote his Declaration de quelques passages, see Document 8. The other copy [B] of Reina's answer to the Strassburg brethren upon the letter of Olevianus seems to have an inscription by Reina's hand; the text is by another hand, also different from that which copied the letter of Olevianus; the conclusion of § 9 is more complete than in A, after § 11 follows the testimony of Strassburg, then, by way of addition, §§ 12 f. The original must be restored in its integrity from A and B together. I give the text of A, noting those differences found in B which are not altogether insignificant, and I add in the text those parts which have not been copied in A, indicating below their derivation from B.

du Seigneur leur est appliquee pour la remission de leurs pechés, et pour la certaine^{a)} assurance de leur reconciliation avec son Pere. Item, que pour estre faits participants de l'incorporation avec lui, et en estre faits os de ses os et chair de sa chair, leur est donné presentialement et sustantialement son vrai corps et son vrai sang en viande et beuvrage de leurs ames par le moyen de la foi et par l'efficace du Saint Esprit, par une façon toutesfois admirable et incomprehensible à nostr'humaine raison.

4. Item, que pour ce^{b)} faire n'est pas de besoin, et si ne se doit pas faire, de chercher ce saint corps et sang dedens les terriens elements du pain et du vin comm'estant là enclos^{c)} necessairement pour estre prins tant des infideles que des fideles, ou pour estre mangé corporellement, ou oralement avec la bouche corporelle^{d)} (comm'on dit, car ainsi on ne prend^{e)} que le sacrement exterieur, les infideles ou indignes à leur jugement, les fideles et dignes, selon que l'humaine fragilité porte, à leur grand profit), ains que lui se donnant à nous^{f)} es sacres symboles, ainsi qu'il a esté dit, doit estre cherché par foi plus haut, c'est à savoir en sa gloire et majesté, où il sied à la dextre de Dieu son Pere.

5. Item, que ce rechercher Christ par foi je ne l'entend pas par monture locale de nostr'ame avec la foi jusques à ces cieux visibles, car ainsi nous serions ceux qui nous fairions plustost present à lui là haut, que non lui à nous ici bas, ains ainsi que l'Apostre [Rom. 10^{g)}] dit de tout son benefice qui nous est présenté par son evangile interpretant d'icelui le dit de Moyse: Ne dies en ton coeur: Qui montera aux^{h)} cieux? c'est à savoir (dit il) pour de là amener Christ; ou: Qui descendra auxⁱ⁾ enfers? à savoir,^{k)} pour rappeler Christ des morts? Ains, la chose est prochaine en ta bouche et en ton coeur. Car si tu crois etc., tu seras sauvé. Voila, freres, comme j'entend que la foi bisogne, non pas par locale monture ou mouvement.

6. Et pour ce que de ceci les rapporteurs m'ont mené à la question de l'ubiquité du corps de Christ, qu'on soit aussi resolu de ma sentence touchant cela. C'est que j'estime que cest' est une question outrepassante les bornes de la modestie chrestienne qu'on doit garder^{l)} en telles conferences. Et en cest endroit^{m)} la sentence de M. Bucerus me plaît, qui dit: Combien que le Seigneur se baille en sa sainte Cene, au miroirⁿ⁾ de sa parole et des symboles qui sont choses de ce monde, toutesfois il se donne en iceux mesmes non pas en maniere de ce monde, mais en une certaine maniere divine et celeste. Car le sens ou l'affection de la nature ne le regarde pas ni apprehende aux sacres symboles, mais la seule pensee et affection eslevee par foi. Ni aussi il ne se donne pas pour viande du ventre ou du vieil homme, mais de l'ame et du nouvel homme, car c'est une viande donnant vie eternelle. Ce n'est pas seulement irreligieusement dit, mais aussi ineptement et sans aucune consequence ou suite, de dire: Si le Seigneur est au ciel, comment il est donné present à la Cene? Si le Seigneur a laissé le monde, et est en la gloire celeste, comment est il ici mangé de l'homme? Parquoi tres diligemment les hommes doivent estre retirés et detournés de ces meschantes et blasphematoires argumentations, etc.^{o)} Voila les titres que cest^{p)} bon et saint personnage baille à telles illations. Ceux là à mon advis font^{q)} encores pire qui, en se laissant^{r)} trainer^{a)} de telles consequences, afferment et defendent la dite ubiquité du corps de Christ, auxquels je ne consent pas.

7. Pour ce aussi qu'en conferant de ceste matiere avec les dits rapporteurs, ils m'ont objecté l'Ascension du Seigneur visible aux cieus, et son Assiete à la dextre de Dieu son Pere, dont ils m'ont traduit d'erreur, touchant cest article ma foi est simplement qu'il est monté aux cieus, et est assis à la dextre de Dieu son Pere. Mon intelligence autour de cest article est: Premièrement, que j'estime avec le commun consentement de toute l'Eglise, qu'il y a quelque lieu sur le ciel destiné à l'assiete et repos des esleus,^{b)} où Dieu, qui neanmoins est partout, singulièrement se monstre et communique à eux, auquel lieu Jesus Christ corporellement a esté receu et y tient singulièrement la siege du Royaume de son Eglise, ainsi qu'il est escrit, Ephes. 1.

8. Secondement, que, ce non obstant, l'intelligence de cest article passa plus outre, c'est à savoir, à nous enseigner que ceste corporell'ascension nous signifie la donation de la gloire et majesté de Dieu son Pere, qui a esté faite à Christ homme après sa resurrection en salaire de son labeur pour l'administration perpetuelle de son eglise estant au monde, de laquelle donation l'Apostre parle singulièrement, Coloss. 1. Philipp. 2. Heb. 1, comm'aussi il prend son ascension en l'opposant à sa descente, Ephes. 4. disant: Qu'il a monté, que est^{c)} sinon qu'il a premierement descendu es parties plus basses de la terre? où ainsi que (à mon advis) la descente ne se doit pas entendre localement, ains plustost d'une merueilleuse exinanimation de sa divine majesté et autorité, prenant pour nous la forme de serviteur, etc., ainsi mesmes ne l'ascension se doit rapporter seulement à la corporell'ascension, ains à la divine majesté et gloire de Dieu son Pere laquelle lui a esté communiquee. Tellement qu'en cest endroit ce qui est dit: Il est monté aux^{d)} cieus, est declairé par ce que s'en suit: est assis à la dextre de Dieu son Pere.^{e)} Et estre assis à la dextre de Dieu, ne se doit pas entendre en partie de la dextre de Dieu en quelque lieu particulier, ains^{f)} exempté de toute condition locale, ainsi que la dextre de Dieu est exemptee de toute semblable condition. Que si on me vouldra ici presser de l'ubiquité, je lui respond comme de sus. Item, tous les passages de l'Ecriture qu'on m'amenera pour prouver son absence corporelle de son Eglise, je les entend de la conversation charnelle et visible, comme celle en laquell'il a vescu entre les hommes devant sa mort, et selon laquelle il a monté aux cieus visiblement devant^{g)} ses disciples, Act. 1, de laquelle maniere ne conversera plus avec nous, jusques à sa venue derniere, ainsi qu'il est dit au mesme lieu.

9. Or, que l'Ecriture sainte par ce mot cieus n'entend pas tousjours les cieus materiaux et visibles, il est plus que manifest. Item, que je interprete cest article: Il est monté aux cieus, c'est à dire, il a receu de Dieu son Pere toute potesté es cieus et en la terre, c'est à dire, sur toute creature, ainsi que lui mesme dit, Matth. ult^o, ne niant toutesfois la corporell'ascension, ainsi que de sus est dit, ce n'est pas heresie ou erreur, comme vos rapporteurs le nomment, et si je ne suis pas seul en ceste sentence, ne destitué de tesmoignages de plusieurs hommes d'autorité en l'Eglise, tant des anciens que des modernes, lesquels faudra condamner aussi avcc moi, lesquels aussi nous produirons s'il est besoin, afin que l'Eglise des Estrangers de Strasbourg soit par iceux mieux instruite que par le rapport de ceux qui à l'estordie sans intelligence du mal qui font à l'Eglise du Seigneur temerairement condamnent à heresie tout ce que n'accorde pas en autant de paroles à leurs imaginations desquelles ils veulent faire articles de foi.^{a)}

10. Certes Bucerus en cest endroit parle ainsi: Le Seigneur n'est pas enclos en nul lieu es cieus, car l'Ecriture tesmoigne qu'il est monté par de sus tous les cieus et sied à la dextre du Pere, en disant: es lieux supracelestes, c'est à dire, en telle gloire et puissance du Pere^{b)} qu'oeil n'a veu, ne aureille oui, ni n'est monté en coeur d'homme. Donques d'enquerir du lieu et de la maniere comment le Seigneur est au ciel, c'est chose irreligieuse, et estrange de la pieté de la foi, laquelle doit simplement croire et confesser que le Seigneur Jesus demeure en ceste celeste et inaccessible gloire du Pere, et que, demeurant en icelle, il se donne à nous en sa Sainte Cene et y est vraiment. Voila ce que je sent de cest article.

11. Ce que je ai maintenant declairé tant de la Cene du Seigneur que de son ascension au ciel, ne m'est pas article de foi, sinon exposition privée de plusieurs doctes et fideles personnages en l'Eglise du Seigneur, dont, en cas que je trouve qu'à bon droit ell'est escandaleuse à l'Eglise du Seigneur et non pas utile pour son edification, je proteste devant Dieu^{c)} de m'en deporter, suivant en cela la prescription de l'Apostre, 1 Cor. 14, que tout soit à edification, à profit, item Pour l'edification de l'Eglise, tachez d'estre excellents etc., car je entend que cela est le devoir d'un chacun chrestien, et singulierement^{d)} des fideles ministres, encore que la chose soit en soi bonne et veritable. Item, de la communiquer avec ceux, qui ont rendu tesmoignage de ma vie et doctrine, et d'attendre aussi leur advis,^{e)} afin que ces bons delateurs soient treuvs en leurs temeraires et bien legiers prejudices de dire que j'abuse du dit tesmoignage.

12. En un temps si bien plein de calumniateurs que d'erreurs et sectes il est merueilleusement expedient à toute l'Eglise et à un chacun fidel en particulier de faire distinction entre les articles fondamentels de nostre foi et les privées declarations et sentences lesquelles ont esté tousjours libres en l'Eglise, sauve la verité de la foi. Il faut qu'en ce lieu^{f)} je requiere et exhorte la Congregation des freres, et tous ceux qui veoirront cest escrit de bien considerer cest affaire ici et de se porter modestement en leurs jugemens afin que par les jugemens temerairement rigoureux l'Eglise du Seigneur ne soit^{g)} consee. Martin Luther de bonne memoire, chef^{h)} de l'assertion de la charnelle manducation du corps de Christ, tant y a que pour cela aie esté condamné pour heretique, qu'il ne laisse pas de estre honoré merueilleusement de M. Calvin en ses escrits, et singulierement au commentaire de Jesaie, chap. 57, est appelé de lui Prophete du Seigneur etc. Cœcolampadius qui par le mot mon corps n'a point entendu le corpsⁱ⁾ naturel de Christ, forse que la somme de tous le benefice de l'Evangile et l'accomplissement des promesses de Dieu en Christ, n'a point esté despoillé de la bonne renommee et estimation^{a)} qu'un tel personnage a bien merité en l'Eglise du Seigneur, ains a esté orné de grandes louanges des hommes doctes et savans, qui aveue leurs prefations ont recommandé à l'Eglise ses escrits. Zuinglius, qui jamais^{b)} n'a pensé à la reale et substantiale exhibition du corps de Christ en la Cene (comme M. Calvin temoigne en son opuscul de la Cene du Seigneur) — on lui a neanmoins conservé le mesme degré d'honneur. M. Bucerus et^{c)} M. Capito, qui furent d'accord aveue Lutherus touchant le point de la Cene du Seigneur, jamais d'eux vivants ont esté après molestés de personne, n'aussi estimés heretiques, ains ont eu des pareilles louanges par après, de celles qui^{d)} avoient eu auparavant, et singulierement de M. Calvin; Bucerus souvent, mais especialement en la prefation sur l'epistre aux Romains, Capito, en la prefation sur les actes des Apostres. Philippus Melancthon, auteur de la Confession Augustane et de son Apologie,^{e)} on sait bien comment et aveue quels titres est honoré de M. Calvin en ses escrits. Que si quelqu'un voudra ici objecter que Loudres a bien condanné de heretiques tous les autres ici surnommés,^{f)} je lui reponds que ce n'est pas^{g)} l'exemple que nous devons imiter, si nous aspirons à la concorde de l'Eglise. Ains plustost celui^{h)} de ceux là qui estants mesmes exagités de lui, jamais ne se sont séparés de la chrestienne modestie de l'honorer et estimer frere en Christ. Queⁱ⁾ si nous voulons estre si delicats que personne ne s'accorde pas à nous qui ne^{k)} soit estimé errer es articles de la foi, condannons aussi tous ces grands personnages par lesquels le Seigneur neanmoins^{l)} a renouvelé Son Eglise. Car ce n'est pas raison que ceux là, pour avoir esté grands, soient réservés,^{m)} et les petits soient diffamés d'estre pleins d'erreurs, estant avec les autresⁿ⁾ en une mesme condition.^{o)}

13. Quant à ma venue ici, laquelle les rapporteurs vous ont signifié estre le danger à vos portes, je puis aussi protester en la presence du Seigneur en bonne conscience, qu'elle n'a point esté de ma volonté pour chercher ou mon proufit ou mon existimation etc., sinon nettement pour le soulagement des freres qui, desirans la restitution de ceste Eglise, m'ont appellé; considerant aussi la grande importance qui seroit pour l'Eglise du Seigneur que ceste place fut lui restitué, premierement pour fermer la bouche aux papistes qui triomphe[n]t de l'expulsion des Eglises estrangeres de Francfort et d'ici, secondement pour donner courage à ceux qu'aussi ont osté les Eglises aux estrangers de leurs villes, à prendre l'exemple de Messieurs de ceste cité, pour les recueillir encores, tiercement pour tenir en ceste ville un asyle ouvert pour l'Eglise du Seigneur, si seroit encores son bon plaisir d'affliger derechef la France, dont les apparences en sont bien grandes; et qu'ayant esgard à ces choses (lesquelles vos rapporteurs, assis desja en leurs pales et commodités, ne regardent pas de si pres, forse que de detourner l'oeuvre de Dieu plustost que d'amoinrir de leurs fantasies un seul mot) je m'en suis donné haste, ainsi que vostre lettre portoit, toutesfois par le conseil et advis de gens de bien, afin que l'opportunité que Dieu presentoit de recouvrer ceste place par la benignité de Messieurs de ceste ville ne fust pas perdue par ma negligence, et que le juste blasme retumbast plus après sur moi. Item, que tant y a que les rapporteurs disent vrai en ce que je suis desuni, ou tasche de desunir ceste Congregation de celle de Geneve et des Eglises de France, que mon intention plustost estoit en la procedure de l'affaire, premicrement rien n'accorder avec les ministres de ceste ville sans la consulte et accord de tous ceux qui m'ont appellé et des autres freres qui, esmeus de la mesme affection de la gloire de Dieu, s'eussent voulu ajoindre à nous, et de tout faire le rapport à l'Eglise de Geneve pour avoir aussi leur advis et conseil en la determination, afin de conserver le commun consentement, ce que j'ai promis aussi en mon departement de Heydelberge au mesme Olevien, et aux Docteurs Boquinus et Ursinus, theologiens de Heydelberg. Si ceci pouvoit sortir de coeur fardement pretendant le consentement de l'Eglise de Geneve, ainsi que les rapporteurs ont calomnié, que un chacun en soit juge; et certes en la procedure de l'affaire ma fidelité ou infidelité eust esté clairement decouverte, et le jugement alors eust esté plus asseuré, dont maintenant est temeraire et inique de dire que tout est en moi fardé et simulé en cest endroit; que si vous voulez suivre ce maudit prejudice sans en faire l'experience, considerez en quel lieu vous estes.

14. Quant à ma vie, de laquelle les rapporteurs vous ont voulu aussi faire soupçon de moi, je ne tiendrai pas ici long propos pour en faire purgation, ayant celle que j'ai pres de moi laquelle pourra voir quiconque voudra, et attendant aussi celle que de tout je espere que me sera envoyé de Londres en brief. Toutesfois je ne vous laisserai pas de dire ici que, si les rapporteurs par leur dire vous ont fait soupçon de moi en cest endroit, vous me faites grand tort, car n'ayant pas encores receu l'entiere purgation de Londres de tous mes affaires, je m'avois excusé envers vous assez, et non obstant cela, vous m'avez voulu avoir, et avez accusé mes excuses jusques à me faire venir. Et si vous ne pouvez point dire que les rapporteurs vous ont dit quelque chose de nouveau, car et des autres et de moi mesme vous avez oui davantage, c'estoit à vous donques maintenant de vous opposer pour ma defense touchant ce point ici, ne pas de vous escandeler.

15. Reste maintenant, freres, que pour vostre entiere satisfaction quant à la lettre des rapporteurs, vous soyez ici informés de leur façon de faire avec moi, afin que de là vous pouvez mieux juger de l'effet et d'eux mesmes, et en cas que ceste mienne relation ne soit pas trouvé plus veritable que leur rapport, je veux estre estimé de vous tel quel ils ont voulu. Estant arrivé à Heydelberg, j'ai visité Olevianus pour communiquer avec lui ma vocation (car j'avois quelque cognoissance à lui de paravant), où je n'ai point esté receu de lui si amiablement que je pensois, à cause qu'on lui avoit rapporté de moi que je avois esté déposé de mon ministere à Londres, et chassé de là à cause que j'avois soustenu publiquement les erreurs de Servetus. Sur le propos de l'accord que Bucerus avoit fait avec Lutherus touchant le point de la Cene du Seigneur nous avons entrés en dispute, là où j'ai affirmé les points desquels il fait mention en sa lettre comme d'erreurs contrevenans aux articles de la foi, mais à la verité, à cause du faux prejudice qu'il avoit de moi, il ne pouvoit rien bien interpreter de tout ce que je disois, forse que me traiter fort rudement, ce que lui mesme a après confessé. Or en lui priant de faire plus modestement avec moi, il s'en est un peu amolli pour me demander, si le predict rapport qu'on lui avoit fait de moi estoit veritable. À quoi je lui respond que non, et je lui racompte en somme l'affaire comme il se tenoit, lui certifiant devant le Seigneur que j'avois esté blasmé et calomnié à tort de cinq ou six calomnies, que la moindre d'icelles, estant vraies, meritoit bien la corde; dont l'une estoit des herésies de Servetus, et que me voyant aussi pressé de nécessité de perdre mon temps en ma defense, j'ai esté d'advis de m'acquiter moi mesme de mon ministere, et pour enfuir les debats m'enfuir aussi de Londres pour vaquer es choses plus utiles à l'Eglise du Seigneur, que j'avois entre les mains.

16. Or considerez un peu ici les paroles de sa lettre et vous voirez, si, lui ayant candidement, comme à un ami, racompté les afflictions desquelles je avois esté merueilleusement pressé, ç'a esté candeur chrestien de prendre mes mots de si mauvaise part et vous les reciter plus exagereement encores de ce que j'avois fait, pour me faire à vous suspect, et ce que j'avois dit: m'enfuir de Londres pour enfuir les debats et mieux employer mon temps, le changer en fuir le jugement. Item, dire que à calonnie des heresies de Servetus je avois adjousté que j'estois innocent, comme laissant à vostre bonne discretion entendre, que en les autres choses je ne l'estois pas. Item, qu'est ce de dire que j'avois adjousté cela, et laisser astutamente de vous referer la confession de foi que touchant ceci il m'a demandé par deux fois, et je ne lui ai pas refusé pour lui remedier en un jugement si dangereux qu'il fesoit de moi seulement par les faux rapports? Certes ceci n'est pas sans malice.

17. Lui ayant donc respondu aux interrogations qu'il me fist pour se certifier de moi de tout, et estant assez satisfait, ou le simulant estre, il m'a fait entendre qu'il estoit bien aise et m'a traité plus amiablement, et sommes departis en grande amitié. Deux jours après je l'ai visité derechef, et il m'a receu beaucoup rudement en me disant grandes injures, dont j'estois bien estonné, car je ne savois l'occasion de si grand changement en si peu de temps. Les plus petites estoient que j'estois ignorant, que je ne savois rien, etc.; les plus atroces que j'avois trompé Mons^r de Beze et Mons^r de Saules, et tous les gens de bien qui avoient rendu bon tesmoignage de moi. Entre les injures me ameneça de faire ce qu'il a fait, de estre mon adversaire partout etc. Donques nous ayant porté assez immodestement l'un avec l'autre, à la fin, par l'intercession de Mons^r d'Honestis qu'estoit present, nous nous sommes moderés, et y a eu lieu qu'il declairaist l'occasion de ce nouveau et acerbe courroux, disant qu'on lui avoit rapporté que le jour devant j'avois esté à la leçon de M. Ursinus, lequel traitant de la divinité du Saint Esprit, j'avois corné de la teste en signe que je ne consentois pas; et lui ayant certifié que je n'y avois jamais esté, il trouva son abus, et me certifia qu'on lui avoit dit, et que par ce nouveau rapport il avoit renouvelé tous les vieux rapports de moi, adjoustant que je ne convenois pas avec lui en l'interpretation du ciel etc., et que c'estoit pour cela qu'il m'avoit receu et traité si rudement. Et pour s'en plus asseurer de moi en cela, me demanda derechef, me conjurant par le Seigneur, si de coeur je detestois les erreurs de Servetus, et je lui ai testifié devant le Seigneur mesme, qu'oui, et que je n'avois autre chose en mon coeur, et quant et quant je lui exposois l'occasion d'où ceste blasme m'estoit venue. Alheurs il me donna la main avec grand joie, me demandant pardon des paroles passees, et moi aussi à lui. Le mesme fist ce Sylvanus qu'estoit alhors present, et me pria et importuna de souper avec lui, ce que j'ai refusé, et ainsi nous nous sommes departis fort amiablement. Et à tout ce estoit present Mons^r d'Honestis.

18. Le lendemain un'heure devant mon departement je l'ai visité pour lui dire adieu, et il m'a receu avec grande amitié, et je lui ai communiqué la forme que je pensois tenir en la procedure de cest affaire, ainsi que je l'ai escrit de sus, laquelle il a fort approuvé, et si m'a racommandé de ne tenir null'autre, et m'a donné son advis, et des especiales et secrets advertissements de comme je me devois gouverner avec Amerbachius et autres personnages, me descrivant l'engin et maniere de faire d'un chacun, et à la fin me raccomand'à Dieu, et moi lui recommandant en ses prieres privees et publiques mon entreprise, m'a envoyé et convoyé hors de sa maison, me disant ces propres mots au departement: Mi Cassiodore, tandem oportet ut te dimittam; doleo quod domi mecum non habeam nunc Tallerum unum, alioquin juvarem tuam egestatem. Dont je lui ai respondu lui remerciant, et me contentant de sa bonne volonté, et lui asseurant qui j'avois de l'argent assez pour parfaire mon voyage, et ainsi nous sommes departis. Or, freres, je vous prie de conferer ceste histoire avec vostre letre et en juger avec equité de cestui bon frere en Christ.

19. Quant es autres qui sont sousignés avec lui, soyez asseurés aussi que le Sylvanus n'a point esté à nostre premier colloque qu'à la moitié où il est venu d'aventure, l'autre Mosellanus n'a point esté au second, afin que vous entendiez que ce n'a point esté une assemblée faite de propos pour disputer avec moi, comme il semble qu'ils veulent donner à entendre par sa lettre, ains se sont trouvés à pieces ainsi qu'ils venoient à l'aventure, et le mesme Sylvanus (s'il voudra dire verité) pourra tesmoigner de l'amitié de laquelle je m'en suis departi d'Olevianus la premiere fois, et de la immodeste rudece, avec laquelle il m'a receu et traité la seconde fois à cause de ce nouveau faux rapport de sus dit, et comme ayant treuvé*) qu'ils avoient esté trompés, ils ont congneu leur faute, et Olevianus a fait avec moi grand amitié, en laquelle nous nous sommes departis, ainsi que de sus est dit. Item, vous entendrez que les deux sousignés ne savent rien de françois, et par ainsi qu'ils ont sousigné ce que Olevianus leur a présenté, non pas ce qu'ils ont entendu.

20. Voila, freres, ce que je ai pour de present à vous presenter en response de ces rapports. Que si elle n'est pas suffisante pour effacer de vos coeurs l'opinion mauvaise qu'on vous a fait de moi,) j'ai bon espoir qu'elle suffira assez pour me purger devant tous hommes de bien, que sans aucune ou affection des parties, ou passion humaine regarderont le droit. Pour le moins je serai quitte devant le jugement du Seigneur, ne m'ayant point espargné en nulle chose pour vostre consolation, et pour la restitution de ceste place, et pour l'avancement de son royaume, auquel seul soit gloire à tout jamais. Amen.

Gratiam et pacem per Christum.

Oppugnatum sæpius per septem aut octo menses, mi domine et frater in Christo imprimis observande, ut ipsis restitutionem ecclesiæ suæ molientibus auxilio essem, tuo de me inducti testimonio me tandem expugnarunt Argentinenses peregrini. Profectus Argentinam, existimo e re fore, si Heidelbergæ Olevianum, mihi antea et notum et amicum, convenero, de mea vocatione cum ipso collaturus, ut ipsius consilio provinciam, ut difficilem ita etiam ecclesiæ imprimis conducentem, aggrededer instructor. Reperio hominem præjudicio de negotiis Londinensibus et quidem per rumores falsos accepto adeo occupatum, ut vix soluto vultu et ad hilaritatem utcunque composito me salutarit. Ego vero nihil minus suspicatus, secundo aut tertio verbo aperio ipsi meam legationem, et ut in animo habebam, pro ecclesia illa recuperanda ad omnia cum Germanis ministris condescendere quæ citra veritatis et fidei jacturam, in qua sum edoctus, atque citra conscientiarum læsionem postularent. Inter co-fabulandum dixi Oleviano, me sentire, articulos Bucer de consensu cum ecclesiis Saxonis, si recte intelligatur, adjuncta videlicet ipsius declaratione, esse satis ad piam concordiam constituendam temperatos. Homo statim vultu ad gravitatem composito cœpit invehi in Bucorum immoderate satis. Ego contra suadebam ut ab ejusmodi maledictis in virum egregie pium et de ecclesia Christi optime meritum sibi temperaret; sed videbar oleum flammæ adjicere. Hac occasione inceptum est disputare de illis articulis, ubi nihil, quod a me diceretur, non erat ipsi aut erroneum aut ambiguum. Sed quia de successu nostræ disputationis fusius in hoc scripto quod ad te mitto, hic supersedeo. Depositis igitur pessimis illis præjudiciis, melius de me sentit, modestius agit, dimittit denique amicissime. Venio Argentinam; in primo conventu eorum qui me accersiverant, opponunt quidam Oleviani virulentissimas quasdam literas, quibus unis acceptissimus fuissem Germanis, modo is ego essem quem ipse me facere in eisdem literis est conatus. Incipiunt me, qui literas opposuerant, interrogare de illis articulis in literis annotatis; sed quum video, mea omnia juxta Oleviani delationes in sinistram partem interpretari, a disputatione subsisto, polliceorque in crastinum meam de illis articulis sententiam scripto daturum, ne fraudi ulla ex parte esset locus. Nonnulli in eo cœtu erant adeo videlicet pacis amantes ac restitutionis illius ecclesiæ studiosi, ut oppositioni quidem per delationes Oleviani interesse voluerint, responsioni meæ nunquam. Respondeo itaque scripto, satisfacit fratribus mea responsio, hortantur ut in negotio restituendæ ecclesiæ incumbam. Recuso ac renitor, præsentī experientia edoctus periculosum esse, ac tranquillitati ecclesiæ non satis consultum, ante integram purgationem rerum Londinensium inter fratres tam parum quietos provinciam vel aggredi vel administrare. Gravissimis tamen conjecturis adducor ut credam occasionem fuisse repræsentatam, multa cum lætitia piorum et invidia Satanæ, locum illum recuperandi. Ego certe sic eram instructus, ut si cum ministris Germanis (qui tamen meo judicio una modestia et benevolentia vinci atque vinciri possent) negotii aliquid fuisset, per Dei gratiam ipsos eo fuissem adactus ut aut Buceri articulis palam atque impudenter essent renunciaturi aut nos admissuri. Literas quibus Olevianus temere hoc bonum intercept, ad te mitto, cum mea tumultuaria quidem sed sincera responsione; ex quibus discas et illius (ne quid gravius dicam) intempestivum zelum, et consilium meum omne. Doleo vehementer (neque enim hic mihi ab ingemiscendo ecclesiæ calamitatem temperare possum) homines ejusmodi ingenio præditos ecclesiæ gubernaculis præesse, in diebus præsertim tam calamitosis et rebus ecclesiæ exulceratis. Quod attinet ad eos articulos in quibus iste dicit me pessime errare, nullo interea hactenus expresso errore, palam est ipsum nullam aliam corporis Christi præsentiam in Cœna esse assequutum quam qua corpus corpori sit prope aut quæ et sensibus et ratione humana comprehendī queat, quam et merito cum ipso negamus; eam vero quam ipse Christus vel in extremo cæli angulo corporaliter positus per divinitatis suæ vim ecclesiæ suæ præstat, et ecclesia per fidem accipit, nondum meo judicio est assequutus. Ascensionem Christi ad cælos, præter eam qua a discipulis corporeis oculis ascendisse est visus, aliam accipit nullam, eis qui corporalem corporis Christi manducationem ex nuda verborum Cœnæ significatione astruunt, hac in parte haud absimilis;*) voci cælum ab ea, qua materiales istos cælos comprehendimus, nullam aliam significationem in sacris literis subesse putat. Sed ad rem. Argentinæ Salennius quidam in principio Oleviani partes strenue defendit, sed, ut credo, bono animo, nam visus est mihi sincerus, cæterum de re melius edoctus reconciliavit se mihi per D. Sturmium, qui de eo ad me in hæc verba literas misit: Salennius apud me fuit. Candide aperui ei tuam sententiam de Cœna Domini et de ascensione Christi, promittit operam in te defendendo et tua innocentia, et ut perveniamus quo volumus, ut ecclesiam Gallicanam restitutam videamus. Ignosce illi, nam quod fecit, zelo bono fecit etc. Hæc D. Sturmius. Nescio tamen quo consilio postea Salennius, quum existimaret me jam profectum Argentina, meam illam responsionem habere voluit ut eam ostenderet ministris Germanis. Ego vero providens, ne quis absente me causam meam cum ipsis in ecclesiæ damnum minus prudenter ageret, scriptum meum, quod cuidam asservandum tradideram, recepi, et tutiore loco deposui. Facile enim esset ex uno aut altero verbo, Germanorum animis jam satis exacerbatis, duriore ita ipsos offendi, ut omnem in posterum spem recuperandi loci nobis abscinderent, me præsertim absente, qui illud aut modeste defendere aut prudenter emollire non possem.

Quum primum Oleviani literæ mihi fuerunt perlectæ, petivi a fratribus ut ab ipso per literas efflagitarent ut declararet quinam essent illi errores circa articulos illos in quibus me esse ajebat, quando in literis expresserat nullum; et si quid præterea speciatim de me haberet, ut in literis pollicebatur multa; me enim in ea sententia esse, Argentina videlicet non excedendi nisi de his quæ objecisset sufficienter purgatum. Expectavi postea Argentinæ 13 diebus quæ esset missurus, sed frustra. At quia hominem maligno nequaquam animo præditum novi (credo enim peccasse eum potius levitate quam malignitate animi; hoc est a pessima quapiam post meum discessum exagitatum furia, quæ malum aliquem de me rumorem, cui ipse fidem adhibuerit ea levitate qua biduo ante bis fecerat, ipsi attulerit), Francofurtum reversus, hominem per literas admonui officii sui, idque ea lenitate ac modestia qua non hostem sed parentem commonefecissem. Sed quid sperem adhuc ignoro. Pudebit fortassis hominem in honoris gradu haud infimo constitutum rumores temere sparsos revocare. Saniores mentem Deus illi concedat.

Nunc itaque, mi domine ac observande frater in Christo, has literas cum ipsius epistola delatoria et mea ad ipsam responsione ad te mitto. Primum ut, quando Olevianus petit ut sua epistola tibi communicetur, de tota causa, quoad fieri potest, certior fias. Deinde ut, si quid in mea hac responsione impium et a Christiana pietate minime tolerandum deprehenderis, admoneas; invenies me re ipsa præstare haud gravatim quod in eadem responsione polliceor. Quod si temerarium et præceps consilium, infectum*) etiam insigni perfidia, ut illud singulæ literarum Oleviani voces spirant, in ipsis subolfeceris, hominem quoque officii admoneas ut in posterum caveat ne tam temere tanto cum malo ecclesiæ in fratres æque atque in perniciosissimos hostes irruat. Tertio ut, quoad ad negotium recuperandæ illius ecclesiæ attinet, si post discussas nebulas rerum Londinensium, neque enim aliter patiar me publicis ecclesiæ negotiis rursus implicari, Dominus ad id mea opera uti constituerit, tuo me consilio juves. Et ut melius discas qua parte indigeam consilio, aperiā hic sententiam meam. Si, ut verisimile est, magistratus Argentinensis me cum suis ministris commiserit in doctrinæ negotio, præsertim quod ad Cœnam Domini spectat, petam ut mihi constent articuli Bucer cum ipsius explicatione, tum ea quæ cum eisdem articulis extat typis excusa, tum ea quæ ex articulis ad ministros Francofortenses peti potest. Hæc si concesserint, tuto et tranquille retinebimus nostram sententiam, ut ex ipsis Bucer verbis plane et sincere possum ostendere, tam quoad ipsam sacramenti substantiam, quam quoad id quod infideles aut indigni sumant in ipso. Diserte enim docet in illis articulis Bucer, infidelibus non exhiberi corpus Christi in sacra Cœna; isti vero alias docent peccantes mortaliter carere fide, unde coguntur ex ipsorum pronuntiatis indignorum nomine eos accipere quos nos accipimus. Quod ad cæremonias attinet in Cœnæ administratione, a genuflexione in sumptione panis sumus liberi, utpote qua et ipsi Argentinae non utuntur. Fractionem omitti in ecclesia nostra omnino non patiar, nisi fortassis melius edoctus, quam ex sacris literis disco esse cæremoniæ illius tanti momenti circumstantiam, quæ et universæ actioni Cœnæ in principio nomen indiderit, et Paulo fracti corporis Christi in cruce allegoriæ sit sedes: Hoc est corpus meum, inquit, quod pro vobis frangitur. Cætera omnia quoad cæremonias baptismi etc., non usque adeo displicent, ut malim amitti locum quam eis attemperari. Hæc in summa. Cæterum ut quod sentio ingenue fatear, arbitror ecclesiam illam cum integra sua pristina libertate una hactenus modestia potuisse conservari, neque Germanos ista difficultate tam vindicare doctrinam Cœnæ, quam ulcisci contemptum sui.

Responsum ad Brentium nunc cœpi legere; placent hactenus omnia, sed modestiam vehementer probo, quam qui in hujusmodi controversiis neglexerit, defendet quidem causam, confractum vero sanabit nunquam. Quod ad universum argumentum attinet, est quod te, mi domine, commonefaciam, suis ipsorum scriptis, quæ adversus Sfenchfeldium de glorificatione carnis Christi olim ediderunt, perspicue et citra ullum laborem debellari adversus eos posse. Extat ipsorum libellus: Quod Christus, quatenus homo est, etiam ad dexteram Patris sedens, sit pura creatura; an facile reperiri possit nescio. Quodsi hæc jam a te sunt animadversa, studium meum boni consule.

Vale in Christo, per cujus viscera a te peto ut ab ea Christiana charitate, qua me complecti in Christo cœpisti, rumoribus ullis nisi me prius et audito et convicto te abduci ne*) patiare, id quod de tua cum pietate tum prudentia facile mihi persuadeo.

[*Beza Reimio. Geneva 23 Junii 1565.)]

Mi Cassiodore, quomodo Londini vixeris, et nuper Heidelbergiæ te gesseris, judicare nec possum nec volo, quia neque sum ego constitutus istarum rerum iudex, neque, si iudex essem, de incompetitis possem quicquam constituere. De iis enim ad me neque Olivianus noster neque quisquam alius præter te unum vel syllabam scripsit. Sed dissimulare nec possum nec debeo quid de confessione fratribus Argentinensibus a te tradita mihi videatur, qua de re etiam ad illos scripsi, ne forte testimonio, quod ab hac ecclesia accepisti, deinceps apud illos vel alios quospiam abutaris. Scio fore ut hoc verbum durum tibi et asperum videatur, sed quando ita opus est, offendere te malo (idque utinam in salutem tuam) quam connivendo veritatem et fratres prodere.

Quod putas hominum asperiorum seu culpa seu imprudentia factum esse, ut istæ controversiæ gliscerent et Gallica ecclesia tandem istis corrueret, in eo plane te hallucinari scio, et tibi prædico fore ut id re ipsa sentias. Illud certe tibi cogitandum est, neque doctrinam neque zelum neque prudentiam neque rerum usum iis defuisse quos ita vides ab istis agitari, ut cum ipsis Turcis et papistis longe mitius agant. Hoc si certo animi iudicio faciunt, tu scilicet ab illis impetrabis ut meliore conscientia utantur; sin vero errore quodam peccant (quod mihi quidem non fit verisimile, cum nihil præter insignem impudentiam ad defendendam suam causam afferant), non video profecto qui possis illos in viam revocare, nisi tu ipse prior erudiri te sinas.

Capite confessionis tuæ secundo, doctrinam Gallicarum ecclesiarum amplecti te profiteris, sed in genere, inquis, sive in toto doctrinæ corpore, et præcipuis ejus capitibus. Quorsum autem hanc exceptionem, quum ingenua et plena confessio a te flagitetur?

In tertio capite, præterquam quod inter rem sacramenti et ipsius usum vel nullum vel perobscurum discrimen constituis, scribis præsentē aliter et substantē aliter corpus donari, quæ verba quamvis commoda interpretatione leniri possint, tamen non video cur usurpare debueris. Præsens quidem esse fidei oculis et in sacramentis et in verbo ipsum Domini corpus atque adeo totum ipsum Dominum profitemur, sed quod corpus alioqui reipsa non sit alibi quam in cælis, etiamsi vere nobis donetur. Itaque ab illis qualitatis potius quam substantiæ adverbis merito abstinemus, præsertim in confessionum formulis quas planas et perspicuas esse oportet.

Quarto capite recte negas quærendum esse corpus in panis elemento quasi illic sit inclusum et affixum, sed addis adverbium „necessario“, quod sententiam illam obscurat; et quod in extremo adjicis: „qu'il le faut chercher par foi plus haut, c'est à savoir en sa gloire et majesté“, quis non videt ex eorum sententia dici qui realem præsentiam corporis in terris adhuc somniant, ejus gloria prætextu qua nunc est ornatum? Transi ergo aperte in adversariorum castra, aut verba, quæ non bona fide ex formula in nostris ecclesiis usitata descripsisti, pervertere desine.

In quinto capite disseris de eo quod nulli unquam in mentem venit. Quis enim unquam ita insaniit, ut putaret animam locali motu per fidem in cælum subvehi? Itaque cum umbra tua hic litigas. Et quod postea subjicis, detorqueus, quod de verbo prædicato et oris confessione scripsit Moses, ad rem ipsam sacramenti sive ad corporis communicationem, istud videlicet: prope est verbum in ore tuo, nec vere, nec recte id facis, nec quisquam est ex adversariis qui hæc non trahat ad oris manducationem, atque adeo qui non dicat manifestam esse in tuis dictis discrepantiam.

Sexto capite citas domini Bucerī locum adversus eos qui, quoniam corpus Christi est in cælis, idcirco negant ejus nos in terris degentes fieri posse participes, cujusmodi cogitationes perversas vocat, ac merito quidem, sed addere debuisti, ista in nos sive Zwinglianos sive Calvinistas, ut isti appellant, minime competere. Nec enim ad tollendam communicationem aut præsentiam sive fidei sive spiritualement istis argumentis utimur quæ verissima et solidissima sunt, sed ut eorum delirium coarguamus, qui corpus Christi adhuc in vel sub vel cum pane realiter esse contendunt, quod nos nusquam alibi nunc quam in cælis esse affirmamus, quia verum et suis finibus circumscriptum sit corpus quantumvis gloriosum. Ista vero argumenta quomodo ad ubiquistas transferas, quasi et ipsi iis aut similibus utantur, ego quidem non video, quamvis in eo recte sentis, quod Eutychianam illam ubiquitatem repudias.

Sed vide quomodo illius fundamenta non jacias sequentibus duobus capitibus 7º et 8º. Etsi enim recte sentis receptum esse Jesum Christum supra cælos omnes, tamen quum adverbium „corporaliter“ addis, et diserte postea spiritualement nescio quem corporis ipsius præsentiæ modum in terris constituis, quid vis a me constitui nisi te cum nostris adversariis in reali et invisibili præsentiâ in, sub vel cum pane manifeste sentire, et illud unicum ubiquitatis fundamentum jacere? Sed et in eo quoque cum illis sentis, quod ascensionem in cælos cum possessione ad Dei dexteram confundis, cum tamen articulus ille loci, iste vero status et conditionis mutationem sigillatim et distincte declaret. Locum autem illum Apostoli Eph. 4, si domini Calvinii commentarios diligentius inspexeris, non sic interpretaberis, quasi locali conditione exemptum sit sive incircumscriptum factum sit Christi corpus. Intolerabile etiam est quod testimonia omnia quibus absentia corporis Christi ab ecclesia manifesto confirmatur, ad visibilem illam conversationem refertur cui suo in cælum ascensu finem imposuerit, quasi nunc invisibili quodam modo corpus illud nobiscum versetur, quod falsissimum commentum satis nosti quam firmis argumentis sit jampridem a nostris refutatum. Illud ergo potius dicere debuisti: carnem Christi sua virtute, cujus unius respectu spiritualem ejus in terris præsentiâ affirmamus, vere ecclesiæ suæ adesse; ejusdem autem carnis substantiam, licet vere et realiter et incomprehensibili modo ejus ipsius fiamus participes, tanto a nobis in terra positis intervallo a terris abesse, quanto quod supra omnes cælos est a terris distat.

Rursus nono capite articulum ascensionis in cælos cum glorificatione carnis Christi, et cælos, in quos ascendit, cum gloria, cujus ibi possessionem adiit, perperam confundis.

Decimo capite vide num*) perperam incitaris domini Buceri auctoritate adversus eos disserentis non qui cælorum nomine ultra mundanam sedem significari recte judicant, sed qui terrenum illic locum et crassas ac informas cogitationes[?] glorificato illi corpori Christi attribuunt, quibus nihilo sane sunt saniores qui propterea illocalem et invisibile Christi corpus faciunt, et huic fundamento suam illam consubstantiationem superstruunt.

) Ut autem semel finiam, pretiosa est apud nos domini Buceri et eorum quos nominas memoria, sicuti esse debet, sed hoc certe nemo non videt, obscurius illum aliquando tum*) de his mysteriis, tum etiam aliis multis de rebus esse locutum, sive quod non omnibus datum sit perspicue animi sui†) sensa explicare, sive quod, dum concordiam totius studet, speravit se ipsa etiam repugnantia aliquo modo posse conciliare, quod studium, etsi per se est laudabile, præsertim in tanti judicii viro, tamen quam infelicitèr aliquoties ab eo sit tentatum, res ipsa demonstrat. Itaque multo rectius feceris††) (quod cum illius pace dictum sit) si ex clarioribus et certioribus aliorum quorundam ac præsertim domini Martyris scriptis sapere in hoc saltem argumento didiceris.

Et de iis quidem hactenus. Nunc superest ut te obtester per Jesu Christi nomen, ut priusquam longius progrediaris, accurate rem totam expendas, teque ab iis regi patiari quibus nunquam te poenitebit plusculum tribuisse. Quod concordiam et istius ecclesiæ instaurationem tanti facis, in eo te vehementer laudo, sed quia

Pour ce qu'il pourra bien advenir que quelqu'un trouve ou difficulté ou bien (à son advis) contradiction en quelques passages de ceste mienne Confession, je ai trouvé bon (afin de me mieue donner à entendre et oster toute occasion de l'interpreter hors de mon intention) d'ajouter ici quelque sommaire declaration es lieux où il me semble qu'on pourroit avoir semblable doute.

1. Premièrement du chap. 2. Je dis que je reçois et advoue pour fidele et chrestienne doctrine tout le corps de la doctrine que je ai ouie en l'eglise de Geneve, et aux eglises françoises auxquelles j'ai esté adjoint etc. Ceci on ne le doit prendre ou interpreter de male part, comme si je voudrois excepter quelque chose d'importance receue par le commun consentement de l'eglise, voyant principalement que je me declaire assez, disant que ce n'est pas n'y a esté mon intention de me separer des dites eglises aux principaux points de la doctrine etc., en quoi il me semble que je ai compris tout ce que modestement et à bon droit on me sauroit demander. Que si quelqu'un pour estre plus certifié et asseuré voudra ici que je especifie quelque chose, je suis prest à le faire estant requis.

2. Au 3 chap. où est traité de la Cene du Seigneur, je ai adjousté ces mots „presentialement et sustantialement“ esquels je n'entend point autre presence du corps de Christ de celle (en quelque lieu qu'il soit) que l'esprit et vertu divine de Christ exhibe, et la foi aperçoive, ce qui est assez clair de tout le contenu au 4 chap. suivant. Desquels mots j'ai usé premierement, pour estre veritables au sens dit et selon la doctrine de la saint'escriture et des eglises auxquelles je ai protesté estre adjoint. Secondement, pour ce que l'occasion, qui estoit de restablir un'eglise entre les Almans, le requeroit. Tiercement, pour ce que les exemples de ceux qui prudemment les ont usurpés (voire des plus difficiles) en semblables occasions, m'estoient devant les yeux. Que s'il y avoit dangier que quelqu'un en abuseroit des dits mots pour les tirer en mauvais sens, le chapitre suivant y provoyoit assez clairement.

3. Au 4 chap. où est dit qu'il faut chercher le corps de Christ par foi plus haut, à savoir, en sa gloire et majesté, ceci n'est pas perversion des paroles du commun formulaire de la Cene (qui dit: Pour ce faire eslevons nos esprits et nos coeurs en haut, où est Jesus Christ en la gloire de Son Pere etc.), ains ou la sustance des mesmes paroles (à mon advis) ou la legitime declaration d'icelles, et le vrai objet de la foi là où elle cherche et trouve tout ce qu'elle requiert en Christ, non pas en quelque lieu corporel qui soit depuis que Dieu l'a une fois destaché de Jerusalem etc. (Joa. 4).

4. À ce mesme propos ai je amené au 5 chap. le passage de l'Apostre Rom. 10. pour monstrier que l'homme pour obtenir et jouir de tout ce qu'en Christ et en son evangile lui est présenté et en general et en especial n'a que faire de monter aux cieus visibles ne descendre aux enfers, car la foi lui presente le tout en son coeur, croyant de coeur et confessant de bouche. Que si quelques uns abusent de cest passage le tirant à l'orale manducation (qu'on dit), je ne l'ai point mené a tel propos, sinon pour monstrier seulement la nature de la foi au dit endroit, ce qui est assez evident et clair au dit lieu de ma Confession.

5. Au 8 chap. où je interprete l'article de l'Ascension du Seigneur par l'article de son Assiete à la dextre de Dieu, le chap. 7 precedent monstre que cela doit estre entendu de ceux qui sincerement liront ma confession sans nul prejudice de la verité de la limitation et circumscription quantitative du corps de Christ en son lieu naturel où il est, comme l'ont entendu ceux qui par ci devant ont interpreté le dit article sans en rien favoriser pourtant l'erreur de l'ubiquité, comm'à la verité la dite interpretation en rien favorise le dit erreur, veu que la puissance et majesté donnee à Christ signifiee par le triomphe de sa corporelle et visibl'ascension aux cieus ne vient, ne peut aussi venir jusques à la destruction de son corps et de sa nature humaine. Que si quelqu'uns abusent de tell'interpretation, la prenant pour fondement de leur ubiquité ou de quelqu'autre erreur (comm'aussi font ils de la gloire et majesté de Christ pour tirer son corps voire au et de soubz le pain), ce qui a esté de tout temps orthodoxe en l'eglise, ne doit pas pourtant estre maintenant chancellé comme nuisable à la verité, ains, puis qu'il est tout certain que jamais verité n'a fait appui à mensonge, nostre devoir est de retenir la verité, et monstrier l'abus qu'on en fait d'icelle.

Or, interpreter un article de foi par un autre, sans nier toutesfois la distinction qu'ils ont entre soi quant à l'histoire, ce n'est pas confusion des dits articles, mais chose usitée des fidels interprets de la foi, voire mesmes des Apostres. La mort, sepulture, resurrection, session de Christ à la dextre de Dieu, articles sont assez differents, selon l'histoire, de l'article de la remission de nos pechés et renouvellement de nostre vie, par lequel neanmoins l'Apostre interprete les autres, non seulement comme causes d'icelui, mais aussi comme symboles ou figures. Rom. 6. Coloss. 2 et 3. Ephes. 2. Certes quant est de cest'article de l'Ascension, le mesm'Apostre, au passage allegué en ma Confession, à savoir Ephes. 4, l'interprete de sa gloire et majesté respondante à sa precedente humiliation, à laquell'interpretation rien empesche que selon l'histoire l'un article soit du lieu, et l'autre de la condition ou dignité, non plus que si on diroit que l'entree triomphale des rois en leur villes capitales, ou leur trone et siege royale est comm'un symbole ou figure de leur inauguration au royaume ou de leur dignité et autorité royale.

Voila les passages qui pour le present je trouve qui pourront estre tirés en quelque sens estrange de mon intention. Que si en ceux ici, ou en autres on aura encores quelque doute, je demande et requiers par le Seigneur de en estre requis, afin que je puisse donner à son eglise toute satisfaction à moi possible. Donnee ce 28 de Janvier 1566. ans.

Mi domine et observande frater in Christo. Per me hactenus non stetit quominus ad binas tuas intra biennium ad me datas, alteras de confessione mea Londinensi, alteras de Argentinensi agentes, in tempore a me responsum tuleris. Neque enim is sum qui acceptum beneficium piæ aut admonitionis aut etiam correctionis, etsi minus opportuna illa foret, superbe contemnā.) Quod ad priores attinet, ut tuæ illius meæ confessionis correctiones mihi fuerint gratissimæ, utque quod exemplar meum, a quo tamen et modeste et religiose, ut dicis, abstinuisti, quibus visum fuisset locis tua ipsius manu non correxeris, ægre tulerim, vetus ista epistola, quam cum isthac ad te mitto, testari potest. Eam cum meo illo exemplari, quod ad te remiseraam, Hispani fratres, qui Genevæ sunt, ad me remiserunt ante annum cum dimidio, quod gravioribus, nescio quibus, occupationibus ex tempore esses) distractior, ut ipsis visum fuit, quam ut vacaret legendis meis. Itaque eandem eo tantum consilio nunc ad te mitto ut, si libuerit legere, ex ea discas et quantum tibi tribuerim, et infestas atque adeo duras censuras ut nihil moror, ita etiam piam tum admonitionem, tum etiam objurgationem, si sit opus, et expetere me, et pro summo ducere beneficio.

Quod ad postremas, in quibus de Argentinensi mea confessione agitur, hoc in summa tibi atque adeo universæ ecclesiæ responsum est: Christum glorificatione sua ejus conditionis corpus esse adeptum, quod omnis corporeæ dimensionis cancellos prætergressum, ubique diffusum sit atque distentum, ut sententiam ab omni scriptura et rei veritate prorsus alienam non recipio neque recepi unquam, quum potius sentio, ut verum hominis corpus certa dimensione et loco pro dimensionis ipsius habitudine circumscriptum ac limitatum, modo quo†) tantam majestatem decēat, supra cælos omnes constitutum, secundum quam corporalem ac localem habitudinem nobiscum amplius non versetur, neque uspiam quam in cælis sit, ubi etiam retineri ipsum oportebit usque ad tempora restitutionis omnium, Act. 3. Deinde Christum ipsum per spiritum suum ac divinitatis suæ vim, quæ nusquam non est, revera exhibere suis in sacra cœna corpus suum et sanguinem, atque adeo Christum ipsum totum, integrum, sedentem ad dexteram Patris, per eandem vim adesse suis, ubicumque gentium degant, citra cælestis loci illius corporalem mutationem, ut sententiam fidei et verbo Dei consentaneam amplector, et eandem per Dei gratiam spero me ad finem usque vitæ meæ retenturum. Hanc sententiam neque confessioni ecclesiæ vestræ neque sententiæ tuæ in literis ad Argentinenses peregrinos expressæ neque confessioni demum meæ, modo adsit in interpretando candor, arbitror ulla ex parte adversari.

Ecclesiæ Italorum cui omnia debeo, tum quod, dum Genevæ vixi, fui ei adjunctus, tum etiam quod singularem et Christiano cœtu dignam erga me caritatem suam præteritis annis declaravit, eandem meam confessionem mitto, adjuncta mea declaratione in eos articulos, quos in tuis ad me literis secus quam mea habet sententia es interpretatus, ut jam nihil sit hac in parte in quo, si satisfactionem requiras, non putes abunde tibi satisfactum. Mitto præterea meam responsionem ad Servetismos illos quos dicunt, per meos Londinenses castigatores ex meis annotationi-

Marcos Perez had come to Basle from the Netherlands. He had been a banker at Antwerp („which was to the rest of Europe in the sixteenth century what London is in the nineteenth, the great heart of commercial circulation“, as Prescott says, Philip II, book 2, chap. 1). He was of Jewish extraction. As President of the consistory of the Calvinists at Antwerp, he worked hand in hand with the Lutherans against the common enemy. His name was at the head of the document by which, in October 1566, the Calvinists and the Lutherans of Antwerp offered to their Sovereign thirty tons of gold, in addition to their ordinary contributions, if he would consent to ratify their agreement with the Regent of the Netherlands. In the beginning of 1567 Marcos Perez and his wife Ursula Lopez) were by the Inquisitors put on the list of the suspected persons, and in an official list of the persons banished or executed during the years 1566—1569 he is among the banished. [Reyne: Déclaration sur sa confession de foi de Strasbourg.

Le sousigné Cassiodore de Reyne, aiant conversé) avec les ministres de l'Eglise françoise recueillie en cette ville de Francfort sur les articles de ma confession de foi jadis par moi presentee à l'Eglise françoise de Strasbourg le 24 de Mars 1565, et estant par eux requis de leur bailler une plus claire declaration de ce que je sens principalement sus ces points, de la ^{ste} Cene de nostre Sgr Jesus Christ, de son ascension au ciel, et session à la dextre de Dieu son pere, leur ai declairé et declaire en toute sincerité que j'entens les articles de ma dite confession tout ainsi qu'il est porté par ce present escrit signé de ma main.

À savoir: Qu'en premier lieu perseverant en l'approbation de tous les livres canoniques de la ^{ste} escriture du viel et nouveau testament et des trois symboles receus de toute l'Eglise, à savoir celui qu'on appelle des Apostres, celui du Concile de Nicée et celui d'Athanase, et rejetant tous erreurs et heresies à iceux contraires (pour l'esgard principalement de la doctrine contenue et declairee es deux derniers touchant l'unique essence de Dieu et trinité des personnes), suivant le premier article de madite confession, *) In the Spanish original: un ministro de Sancta fee This must be Sainte-Foi in the Agonois, which had been taken by the Protestants in that year 1563 in which Corro's letter referred to by Beza was written.

j'approuve aussi et reçois sans aucune exception ni restriction toute la doctrine comprinse en la confession de foi des Eglises reformees de France qui commence: nous croions, etc., comme estant vraiment fondee et entierement conforme en toutes ses parties à la pure parole de Dieu et doctrine des Prophetes et Apostres. Laquelle pour plus grande certitude je suis prest et promets signer toutesfois et quantes que j'en serai par eux requis (comme je l'ai desja approuvee et signee aultresfois). Et ce pour satisfaire au 2^e point de ma dite confession.

Quant au 3^o, je declaire que mon intention n'a jamais esté et n'est encores de confondre par icelui la chose spirituelle qui nous est presentee au sacrement de la s^{te} Cene, à savoir la chair et le sang du Seigneur et tous ses benefices, avec le moien par lequel nous en sommes faits participans et le droit et legitime usage de ce sacrement. Et quant à ces mots „presentiellement et substantiellement,“ je desire d'estre supporté si je les ai là usurpé outre leur naive signification (aiant esgard au lieu auquel j'estois) pour signifier la vraie presence et substance du corps et sang de Christ; protestant que je n'y recognoi toutesfois autre presence que celle que nostre foi y apprehende spirituellement, demeurant son dit corps au ciel et non ailleurs, comme il sera dit ci après.

Quant au 4 article, je recognoi y avoir usé de ce mot „necessaire“ non à autre intention que pour forclorre et rejeter du tout l'opinion de ceux qui attachent tellement le corps et le sang de Christ aux signes visibles du pain et du vin qu'ils estiment que nuls ne peuvent recevoir ces signes qu'il[s] ne reçoive[nt] aussi veritablement la chose par iceux signifiée, soit fidele ou infidele. Laquelle opinion je condamne là. Et touchant les mots symbolisans avec le formulaire de l'administration de la Cene qu'on recite communement en la celebration d'icelle, je les entens au mesme sens que portent les paroles du dit formulaire, n'aiant eu lors nullement intention de rien innover ou changer quant au dit sens, combien que j'aie usé d'autres paroles, ni moins d'establir quelque autre presence du corps de Christ en terre que celle dont j'ai parlé ci de sus.

Quant au 5 article, ce que j'y ai allegué, le passage de St. Paul [Rom.] 10, v.*) 6, 7 et 8, ç'a esté seulement pour declairer en general la vertu et efficace de la foi en l'apprehension des choses spirituelles de Christ qui nous sont proposees en sa parole, et non pour vouloir precisement l'appliquer à la manducation du corps d'icelui en la Cene, ou favoriser à l'opinion de la manducation orale et charnelle, comme je sai que l'Apostre n'a eu là ceste intention.

Pour l'esgard des paroles et sentences de feu Monsr Bucere que j'ai alleguees tant au 6 qu'au 10 article, je n'ai nullement pretendu de les appliquer contre ceux qui suivent la confession des eglises reformees ou de France ou du pais des Suisses et les laisse au sens de l'auteur d'icelles, n'en voulant abuser contre personne.

Quant au 8 article, combien que j'aie estimé pouvoir sans reprehension declairer l'article de l'ascension de nostre Seigneur par celui de sa session à la dextre de Dieu pour l'affinité d'iceux, si est ce que je n'ai onques pretendu ni pensé de confondre les dits articles en leur substance et particuliere doctrine. Ains submettant ma dite interpretation au jugement de l'Eglise et fideles docteurs en icelle, je proteste de recognoistre la diversité et distinction des dits articles en ceste maniere: c'est que suivant le 7 article de ma dite confession, je recognoi que celui de l'ascension nous enseigne que le corps naturel de nostre Seigneur Jesus Christ a esté visiblement eslevé de la terre et de ce bas monde pour monter au ciel où il occupe un lieu certain circonscrit selon la dimension d'icelui, estant à present là et non ailleurs, voire pour y estre contenu jusques au temps de son dernier advenement, comme St. Pierre le tesmoigne, Act. 3, v. 2. Et quant à celui de sa session à la dextre de Dieu son pere, il nous monstre et declaire simplement non point la deification de son corps ou quelque presence infinie et invisible d'icelui en la terre, mais la condition et estat de sa gloire, majesté et puissance, laquelle comme mediateur il a obtenue après sa resurrection, et obtient encores maintenant, aiant esté declairé et establi de Dieu son pere pour roi et dominateur du ciel et de la terre, comme lui mesme le tesmoigne, Math. 28, v. 18. Laquelle gloire, majesté et puissance signifiée par la dite session n'a point osté ni aboli les propriétés naturelles de son corps, ains les lui laisse toutes en leur entier, tellement qu'il n'est maintenant non plus exempt au ciel de la condition locale et circonscrite, qu'il estoit pendant qu'il conversoit encor ici bas après sa resurrection, ou que nos corps seront, après qu'ils seront aussi ressuscités pour estre faits conformes à son corps glorieux, comme parle St. Paul Philip. 3, v. 21. Voila quelle est mon intelligence quant à ces deux articles, par laquelle je declare aussi que je n'ai non plus voulu confondre au 9 article de ma confession l'article de la dite ascension au ciel avec la glorification de la chair de Christ, ni le lieu auquel son corps est contenu ou circonscrit au ciel avec la gloire de laquelle il a prins visiblement possession lorsqu'il y monta à la venue de ses Apostres. Suivant donc ceste mienne declaration touchant ces deux articles, je proteste n'approuver et n'avoir en rien voulu symboliser ni consentir à l'opinion de ceux qui imaginent une ubiquité ou omnipresence invisible du corps de Christ, par laquelle ils veulent qu'il soit present corporellement partout et mesmes conjoint inseparablement en ou avec ou sous le pain de la Cene, aneantissant, en tant qu'en eux est, par une telle opinion la verité du corps naturel de Christ, en tant qu'ils le pensent infini, incirconscrit et invisible, le feignant estre present en divers lieux, voire mesme partout en un mesme instant, ce qui ne peut competer qu'à la seule nature divine et non à l'humaine qui est finie, visible et circonscrite.

Finalement pour comprendre toute la resolution de tous ces points et les appliquer à la doctrine de la ^{ste} Cene, je confesse en somme librement et de coeur qu'en icelle, et mesme en la simple parole de Dieu, Jesus Christ se donne soi mesme aux fideles avec tous ses biens, en vie eternelle, et que la foi est le seul moiën ou instrument de ceste communication et union spirituelle que nous avons avec lui. Parquoi je conclus que Jesus Christ par sa vertu divine, spirituelle et incomprehensible, pour l'egard de laquelle seulement nous recognoissons sa presence en la terre, est vraiment present en son eglise, mais quant à la substance de la chair, elle a esté vraiment et realement esleevee aux cieux hors de ce bas monde, n'estant plus en la terre ni ailleurs qu'aux cieux et par ainsi autant esloingnee, quant à la distance locale, de nous qui sommes en terre, comme ce qui est par de sus tous les cieux est esloigné de ces bas lieux terrestres; et neanmoins que par foi nous ne laissons d'estre faits participans d'icelle spirituellement, avec une telle efficace et certitude que nostre ame en est vraiment nourrie et sustentee en esperance de la vie eternelle, et ainsi estant incorporés avec Christ par ceste communication spirituelle nous sommes faits os de ses os et chair de sa chair en vertu de sa promesse.

Voila quelle est ma foi pure et simple, suivant laquelle je desire et requiers que tout ce que je peux jamais avoir dit et escrit de ceste matiere soit prins et entendu. Je voi que par faute de me povoir si bien expliquer comme j'eusse désiré, aucuns aiant peu prendre occasion d'estimer que j'aie creu ou senti autrement que je ne sens ou croi à present, et afin que nul ne doute ci après de ma sincerité et droite craiance en tous ces points, j'ai signé de ma main la presente declaration à la requeste des dits ministres qui ont conféré avec moi, promettant au surplus de perseverer en ceste foi et doctrine et de me renger en toutes choses au jugement de l'Eglise du Seigneur, à laquelle je submets et ma personne et tous mes escrits, desirant estre tenu et recogneu pour vrai membre d'icelle.

[Francfort 25 Novembre 1571].

Monsieur, la paix du Seigneur soit aveque vous.

Ces jours ici estant au point d'aler à la communion de la Cene du Seigneur, le Consistoire de l'Eglise françoise de ceste ville, ayant entendu qu'il y a eu par le passé entre vous et moi quelques differents, pour l'esgard de leur office et de ma conscience m'ont requis qu'avant que d'aler à la Cene j'eusse à vous escrire quelques lettres de reconciliation, ce que je fais maintenant volontiers, veu qu'en cela je ne suis pas requis que de mon devoir, encores que j'aie desja à mon advis suffisamment acquitté ma conscience en cest endroit, l'ayant fait plus d'une fois; neanmoins pour leur consentement et satisfaction je me suis mis maintenant à vous escrire derechef ce mot de lettre, par laquelle vous soyez certifié de ma part que je ne vous porte nulle haine ne rancune qui me charge la conscience devant Dieu pour l'esgard de ce que je vous dois comm'à mon prochain et frere en Christ, comme je vous prie aussi au nom du Seigneur de me porter pareille affection, attendu mesmes que, quant à la doctrine dont estoit procedé le principal different, j'en ai satisfait par declaration signee de ma main aux ministres de cest' Eglise, dont j'espere qu'elle contentera tous ceux qui la verront. Quant à la lettre que quelques uns de mes amis, à ce qui semble, de par deça ont envoyee à Geneve, dont j'entens qu'il y en a eu plusieurs offensés, vous veus je aussi certifier devant Dieu qu'elle n'a point esté faite ne de ma volonté ne de mon conseil ne de mon seu, et que mesmes il m'a despleu et desplait encores, qu'elle aie esté faite. Que s'il y a encores quelques differents entre nous, j'espere que le Seigneur Dieu à qui j'ai tousjours remis ma cause les esclaircira quelque jour, afin qu'un chacun aie le paiement de sa justice, auquel je prie nous vouloir tous tellement conduire par son esprit que nos consciences soient en repos devant son jugement et nos prochains bien edifiés. De Frankfort ce 25 de Novembre 1571.

Je Cassiodore de Reyna, Espagnol, ministre de la parole du Seigneur, par le passé de l'Eglise des Espagnols à Londres, bourgeois à present de la ville de Francfort, estant requis de Messieurs et freres en Christ les ministres, deputés et diacres de l'Eglise Françoisie recueillie en ceste ville de Francfort, de laquelle aussi je suis receu membre, de declarer ma conscience et faire solemnelle protestation de mon innocence touchant le crime nefande et detestable de sodomie contre moi pretendu entre plusieurs autres blames qui me furent à tort mises de sus à Londres au cours de mon ministere, il y ait environ .8 ans, ce que les sus dits ont requis de moi pour leur satisfaction avant que de m'admettre à la communication de la sainte Cene du Seigneur (comm' aussi je en suis esté depuis et à Londres, et en France en l'Eglise de Montargis soubz le ministere de Messieurs Pierius et Corranus, et en Bergerac soubz le ministere du dit Corranus et Broikius), d'autant que mon innocence n'est pas encores declaree par sentence de juge competente, — confesse et proteste devant Dieu juge des vivans et des morts, que ç'a esté une pure calomnie, et que j'en suis innocent et de fait et de volonté, ainsi que je l'ai par plusieurs fois protesté et confessé tant au Consistoire de l'Eglise françoise de Londres, de laquelle j'estois membre, qu'ailleurs.

Item, promets et proteste de le faire ainsi apparroistre por juge legitime, et qu'il ne tiendra pas à moi que je n'aie ma legitime purgation dedens un an au plus tost, dont j'en fairai apparroistre ma diligence au Consistoire de cest' Eglise, si Dieu m'en donne la vie et l'opportunité, et qu'il n'a pas tenu à moi qu'elle n'aie esté faite, il y a longtemps, mais à quelques empeschemens de consequence qui se sont interposés.

Item, d'autant que les sus dits S^s ministres m'ont monstré un escrit lequell ils estiment estre un tesmoignage du Consistoire de l'Eglise françoise de Londres des propos que j'y avois tenus touchant le mesm' affaire, lequell escrit je n'ai pas recognu ne advoué pour certaines raisons, neanmoins, estant requis d'eux d'advouer ou declarer le mot de pollution y contenu, je declare soubz la mesme protestation, qu'aux propos que j'ai tenus au dit Consistoire ou ailleurs touchant la declaration de ma conscience au dit affaire, je puis avoir usé en mon discours de ces mots de pollution ou polluer ou pollui, disant m'estre trouvé quelques fois en des songes et fantasies pollues et ordes en dormant pendant que le garson couchoit pres de moi; ce que je n'entens pas de quelque effusion de semenee, de laquelle j'en suis bien certain et asseuré que jamais ne m'est advenue alentour ou sus le corps du dit garson, ainsi qu'on m'a enjoint de declarer, mais seulement l'entens je des songes et fantasies vileines, ordes et pollues, ainsi qu'il advient aux hommes en dormant. Et d'autant que la question est maintenant d'un esclaireissement de ma conscience, et que j'ai entendu qu'aucuns ont prins en mauvaie part les dits mots de pollution, voire jusques là que de me charger comme d'avoir confessé es dits mots ou l'acte ou pour le moins quelque grande partie, je declare, soubz la mesme protestation, qu'en cest endroit, quant à ce qui concerne la signification des dits mots, rien ne m'est à moi advenu qui ne puiss' advenir à tout homme de bien, demorant encores homme de bien. Item que ces dits mots là en rien m'ont graivé devant le dit Consistoire où je les puis avoir usurpé pour me defendre, ou empesché,*) en quelque maniere qui soit, la communion de la Cene, à laquelle j'ai esté par après aveque eux par quelquesfois sans aucune contradiction d'homme vivant jusques au jour de mon departement d'Angleterre.

Et en tesmoignage de ceste mienne protestation et declaration j'ai donné cest present escrit sousigné de ma main. Fait à Frankfort ce 25 de Novembre 1571.

Jam quanto me vinculo gratitudinis perpetuo devinxistis, quum me gravissimus ac plane letalis morbus Basileam cum uxore et familiola recentem ingressum corripuisset? quam assidue aderatis, relictis aut intermissis studiis vestris adhortando, consolando, precando, fidam Christi confessionem a moribundo expetendo, neque enim aliud aut medici aut vos aut amici aut demum ego ipse judicabam. Namque, ut ingenue fatear quod res est, in ea præsentis mortis certitudine, dum compos eram mei, haud me deterrebat mortis species quam iniquissimi sæculi malitiam abundanter expertus absentem et meo judicio trahentem moras desiderabam, præsentem jam lætissimo animo amplexabar. Peccatorum memoria, licet esset præsentissima, acuebat potius desiderium exuendi in totum veteres peccati exuvias et esse cum Christo quam aut conscientiæ metum incuteret aut quoquo modo illius pacem turbaret, Christi sanguine per Dei spiritum in ea obsignatam, pro indubitato habenti nullum superesse judicium credenti in Christum, translato nempe a morte in vitam. Uxoris et parvulorum liberorum memoria, quos idecirco tantum videbar comportasse Basileam ut procul ab amicis et notis inter ignotos soli ac me præsertim destituti novum exilium inchoarent, nonnihil mæstitiæ injiciebat, sed et illam facile ac cito exuebam paternæ Dei providentiæ illos committens, qui et me ipsum primum et illos mecum postea inter tot discrimina et labores crebros paternam sane ipsius curam fecisset experiri. Illam ipsum erga relictos nequaquam intermissurum, indicium mihi certum erat Perezii mei domus, qui, ut de me fuit semper egregie benemeritus, ita etiam tunc caritate ac pietate insigni, neque a me aut quovis alio, qui illius beneficentiam sit expertus, unquam satis laudata, me periculose decumbentem familiolamque meam in domum suam transtulerat, curabatque tum ægrotos tum recte valentes humanissime. Hoc unum summo me afficiebat dolore, videlicet quod quum in vertendis Hispanico sermone sacris bibliis per integrum decennium laborassem atque in ea occupatione multum pertulissem tum invidiæ tum etiam calumniarum ab iis quibus illa haud erat æque grata atque mihi, adeo ut præ hac molestia levissimus mihi fuerit ipse vertendi labor, quum jam pro foribus essemus typographiæ ac fruges mature essent ad messem et fructuum tanti laboris collectionem, relinquendi essent aliis labores mei quos ignorarem qua cura et sollicitudine absoluturi essent opus, quique etsi maxime futuri essent fidi ac diligentes, ut de Perezio non dubitabam, opus demum non erat per me absolvendum. Hæc mæstitia vel in tanta virium cum corporis tum animi debilitate excitabat tamen ardentes ad Deum preces ut mihi tantum adhuc vitæ permitteret quantum ad sacrum illud opus ad gloriam nominis sui publicandum foret satis, decessuro postea ex vita cum integra animi lætitia. Hanc meam sollicitudinem quum vobis indicassem, auctis tum publicis ecclesiæ precibus tum privatis tanta contentione Deum interpellastis ut me demum vobis concederet et intra paucos dies periculi suspicione liberaret, redderet vero integram valetudinem haudquaquam ante tres menses. Itaque pro compertissimo tunc habui habeoque adhuc, vitam mihi ac valetudinem pro absolvendis sacris bibliis e mortis faucibus erepto fuisse concessam, atque eam me secundum Deum debere primum vestris precibus, deinde summæ Perezii in me curando diligentia et optimorum medicorum summæ industriæ, qui, ut erant etiam amicissimi, nihil sibi aut arti in me curando pepercere. Neque minore studio ac diligentia me ac negotia mea tum consilio tum etiam opere quum opus fuit curastis postea per triennium, quo Basileæ fuit, quam ægrotanti feceratis, ut sacras prælectiones vestras præteream, utpote publicum ac vulgatum omnibus beneficium eruditione summa ac pietate plenas, quibus quam sæpe [fol. a 3] interfrerim, prout licebat per occupationes cum typographicas tum domesticas, utilissimas mihi fuisse fateor ingenue Quum quarto abhinc anno constituissem edere seorsim versionem novi testamenti Syriaci doctissimam et elaboratissimam doctoris Tremellii in gratiam vulgi studiosorum sacrarum literarum, ne ob pecuniæ inopiam tanto præsidio ad novi testamenti aditum faciliorem fraudarentur eique adjungere decrevissem cogitationes nonnullas meas in selectiora aliquot loca: quum ad quartum Matthæi caput ventum est . . . then he had been so absorbed by the subject, that this lucubratiuncula had grown too large for the frame of his annotations upon the New Testament.

[Cassiodori Reinii
epistolæ duodecim ad Theodorum Zwingern datæ].

Theodore Zwinger was born at Basle 1533. His mother was a sister of Joh. Oporinus, the learned printer. He studied philosophy at Paris under Peter Ramus, and at Padua medicine. At Basle University he was professor of Greek, then of moral philosophy, lastly of medicine. He died 54 years of age. A biographical sketch by Felix Plater is inserted in the preface dated 1604 of Theodore Zwinger's Theatrum humanæ vitæ, edition of his son James Zwinger, Basileæ (in folio). Compare our excerpts from Ramus here p. 213, and Reina's letter of 15 May 1569.

Reliqui itaque apud eundem tuos 30 florenos plane intactos ut tibi eos redderet, uti spero te jam accepisse, atque pro eisdem tibi non minus gratias ago quam si usus essem: quodsi quando indigere contingat, præsentiore auxilio exclusus utar pia illa liberalitate tua, ea tamen lege ut prius experiar, mea omnia tibi vicissim communia existimare atque habere te. Hoc ut firmum ratum perpetuumque ex me tibi sit, hæ literæ mea exaratæ manu et sigillo obsignatæ publicarum vice tabularum esto. Carissime compater. Nundinæ non successerunt ex voto, vix vendidi ex bibliotheca pro 60 florenis, partim quod nundinæ fuerint solito infrequentiores et bibliotheca nondum venerit in hominum notitiam, partim quod non satis mihi fuerit aut temporis aut loci ad eam eo ordine disponendam quo libri essent inventu faciliores. Itaque creditores orare constitui ut rejecta in insequentes nundinas utraque solutione mihi et fidejussori meo sint mitiores, et pro hac primæ solutionis mora fructum pecuniæ suæ a me accipiant quem ipsi constituerint. Venerande compater, scire cupio primum, grassante ubique peste, quinam valeatis vos Basileæ. Deinde quid de meo debito creditores constituerint: repetierintne a meo fidejussore an conditione a me proposita fuerint contenti. Hisce de rebus ut me, per hunc qui has literas tibi reddet, certiore facias, etiam atque etiam rogo. D. doctori Grinæo et Episcopio, amicis colendissimis, multam ex me salutem dicito. Eisdem etiam indicato, per me non stetisse hactenus quin lucubrationes in Ciceronem et in Plinium, quemadmodum sum eis pollicitus, non receperint, quippe qui et collegerim omnes quotquot habeo et parvulo dolio inclusas ad adventum primæ navis Argentoratensis, cui commendem importandas, apud me asservo; expectatur autem navis singulis horis. Ego hic imprimendum curavi librum theologicum magni, ut credo, momenti, Bibliothecam Sanctam F. Sixti Senensis, cui etiam ex meo addam Castigationes sub finem breves, quibus quæ ille tradit in controversiis religionis veluti antidoto apposito corrigantur. Liber sub prelo est, bonis ni fallor auspiciis. An de amisso Momo meo, quem alias unice curabam, risum ipse deposueris nescio, mærorem certe deponere ipse non possum. Vale,

Gratiam et pacem per Christum.

Suavissime compater. Facies mihi rem magnopere gratam si quanta potueris diligentia me instruxeris de controversia heredum Wessalii cum creditoribus Op[orini], item in quo nunc temporis statu sit ea controversia. Peto autem id a te tanquam amico fidissimo et cupidissimo utilitatis meæ propterea quod jam agitur de translatione juris illorum in me in eo negotio, quod et amici intercessores cuperent mea cum utilitate fieri. Itaque secretum tibi hac in parte primum ac vehementer commendo; deinde ut illud nos diligenter ac cito edoceas, ac præterea si quid habes quod e re sit. Carissime domine compater. Cum hac epistola mitto ad te aliam ad d. doctorem Grinæum eamque apertam ut legere tibi liceat et si libuerit ridere stoliditatem meam. Sed, crede mihi, adeo gravabar per illos dies atque distendebam, ut ita dicam, curis multis et molestissimis ut vix essem mei compos. Bibliothecæ distractio non succedit ex voto atque adeo multum ab eo abest; solutiones sunt faciendæ neque unde fiant abunde suppetit. Oro te itaque ut apud d. Grinæum et Episcopium pro me qua soles efficacia intercedas ne jacturis jam pæne obruto hæc quinquaginta ad minus florenorum addatur jactura. Libros habent selectissimos, quos etiam, ut illis servarem, e manibus multorum abstuli multo cum meo incommodo, quando aliis non tam parvo vendidissem; requiruntur diligenter ac studiose a multis neque grave illis est vel dimidium bationem pro folio numerare. Bationem pro folio numeravit Bene vale, compater amantissime, cum honestissima uxore et universa familia. Francofurti 6 Aprilis 1575.

Tuus Cassiodorus.

VII.

Gratiam et pacem per Christum.

Carissime domine compater. Cum dominis D. Grinæo et Episcopio, qui vas meorum librorum se nondum aperuisse causabantur, ita conveni ut, aperto coram te vase et inspectis libris, una tecum statuant de corrigendo meo errore atque adeo de integra solutione. Cōventum erat inter me et Episcopium ut cruciferum pro folio essem accepturus, quando libri ut vides sunt selecti et majori ex parte impressionis peregrinæ, et Perna pro nonnullis ejusmodi, qui duplicati erant, pro folio bationem solvit. Ratione deinde a me male subducta erratum fuit, qui viginti duobus florenis, quos ab Episcopio accepi, eam summam confici existimaverim. Error tamen in calculo pro jure arripi non debet, inter amicos præsertim, et ab iis inprimis quibus susceperis gratificari. Sed de eo conventum jam est inter nos, ut puto. Obsecro igitur, domine compater, ut efficias ut primo quoque tempore vas aperiatur, et quod pecuniæ rependi mihi statueritis inter vos, commendetur Pellizariis ad ferias d. Joannis ut Argentorato ad me transmittant. Epistolæ Hisp. Guevaræ nondum sunt recusæ, sed sub prelo adhuc. IX.

Gratiam et pacem per Christum.

Carissime domine compater. Quod attinet profectionem meam in Poloniam, res adhuc sub deliberatione est. Neque enim tam difficilem et multis nominibus laboriosam provinciam temere suscipiendam arbitror, in hac præsertim ætate, quantumvis conditio sit amplissima et valde honorifica. Cæterum, si Deus ita disposuerit, ut abeam, senties in illo tuo negotio haud frustra te meam coluisse amicitiam, atque de bono successu nihil dubito, cum sciam negotium tibi esse cum viro bono et qui multis scyphis aureis existimationem suam anteferat. Tu itaque ut bono quoque animo sis velim. Vale, compater amantissime, cum uxore honestissima et familia universa, quam et meo et uxoris meæ nomine plurimum ut salutes oro. Francoforti 23 Septembris 1577.

Gratiam et pacem per Christum.

Carissime compater. Qui has tibi reddet literas, juvenis est Anglus generosus et in bonis literis non mediocriter (ut mihi quidem videtur) institutus. In quibus persequendis juventutem, periculosam alioqui ætatis partem, impendere constituit. Ejus rei gratia contendit in Italiam, et oravit me ut, quibus in eo itinere nossem viris doctis se commendarem. Dignum arbitror ob egregium virtutis specimen, quod præ se fert, cum commendatione mea, tum bonorum omnium virorum, in quos inciderit, amicitia. Tu vero, qui ejus Deæ haud vulgaris es cultor, quam vicissim debeas humanitatem ejus cultoribus neque ignoras neque negligenter præstas. Excipies igitur hunc et favore tuo prosequeris, et studio tuo et commendatione mea. Commendabis præterea illum domino D. Basilio Amerbachio, quem, puto, consulet de ratione studii juris, in quo operam aliquam ponendam censet. Vide quam sim in te imperiosus pro veteris amicitiae nostrae jure, cum ipse nihil unquam imperes, imo ne commendes quidem.

De mea protectione in Poloniam nosse cupis? Quiesco. Idque non sine Dei providentia, ut semper aliàs, qui meas sortes in manu habens, et quidem valde commendatas, eas gubernat pro sua voluntate. Si illuc venissem, sensisses fructum commendationis tuæ cum D. Firleio*) in illo negotio, de quo intelligo nondum tibi satisfactum. Vale, compater amantissime, cum uxore et familia universa, cui mea plurimam salutem dicit. D. Amerbachium quam officiosissime salutatum cupio et D. Samuelem Grilæum. Francofurti I. Aprilis 1578.

Tuus Cassiodorus Reinius.

Ad D. Franciscum Bettum) daturus sum literas si per negotia licuerit. Sin minus, has illi tecum communes velim. Et ut intelligat in liberatione filii dominæ Claræ me hactenus fecisse quod in me fuit, neque frustra, spero enim intra paucos dies nos compotes voti futuros. Hæ D. Claræ aut per ipsum aut per se renunciari cupio. Vale iterum et rescribe aliquando.

Nobilis iste juvenis si forte, cum apud vos venerit, habuerit opus pecunia ad conficiendum iter Venetias usque, obsecro, domine compater, curabis illi ad viginti coronatos meo nomine, pro quibus, si ad me in tempore rescripseris, curabo tibi satisfieri ad nundinas Argentoratenses proximas, aut ad nostrates, si magis libuerit, per Guarinum aut Episcopium.

XI.

Carissime domine compater. Hermannus, qui has literas reddet, apud nos per aliquot annos fuit, nunc vero melioris conditionis desiderio cum uxore et prole una ad vos migrat, ab Episcopio, ni fallor, conductus ad operas typographicas. Est pro sua conditione doctus, probus et pius, præ nimia quoque simplicitate hominum fraudibus valde expositus, denique dignus auxilio et ope vestra. Arbitror, quicquid in illum beneficii posueritis, Christo ipsi fore impensum, cujus nomine mihi valde commendatum illum rursus vobis commendo. Pollicitus illi sum de vobis, quam ipse sæpius sim expertus, omnem humanitatem. Ipsi videte ut cum fidem meam, tum vestram existimationem liberetis, quod, vel me nihil pollicente, facturos vos esse non dubito. Hæ ad te primum, compater suavissime, deinde ad dominos Doctores Amerbachium et Grynæum, vetere observantia mihi colendissimos, ut dum deterioris fortunæ injuria nos hîc amittit, isthic appulsus patronos et amicos non amisisse, sed una cum fortuna ipsa se in melius commutasse deprehendat. Clarissime atque observande domine compater. Accepi literas tuas 18 Novembris Basilea datas quas præ desiderio tuo profecto exosculatus sum. Gratularis mihi; de mutato vitæ genere habeo gratiam, sed de otio et quiete in hac præsertim ætate post tot labores et vitæ difficultates ut gratulari posses magis vellem. Nunc vero cum in eis verser negotiis, quæ et afflictionis et fellis etiam multum secum ferant et infractas jam dudum vires superent, juvari velim potius piis tuis votis et precibus. De afflicta atque adeo periculose intercepta valetudine optimi pastoris vestri D. Sultzeri*) vehementer doleo. Precandus est Deus ut de bono et æque fido successore ecclesiæ vestræ prospiciat. Si adhuc est in vivis, ut metuo non fore, oro ut illum ex me officiosissime salutes, cui ex animo precor felicem ex hoc miseriarum lacu exitum, in Domino videlicet et in cælestem patriam migrationem ad eum qui nos expectat. De negotio Oporiniano scripsi ad d. Manfredum Balb[ani] quod mihi factu opus esse videtur. Doleo in vestra republica, cui ego ob hospitium et accepta beneficia bene cupio, iniquitati ejusmodi aliquem locum esse, quæ aucta in dies similibus occasionibus attractura demum sit publicas calamitates. In bonis ab Oporino relictis et in debitis erat satis (ut intellexi) unde creditoribus civibus ex integro potuisset satisfieri, nisi vafri creditores, qui et simul debitores essent, solutiones impeditissent suis artibus, et curatores fidi scilicet ita rem curassent ut major pecuniæ pars in eorum unguibus hæserit, jactura universa recidat in simplices et innocuos, vidente interea et connivente M. et prædam, quousque ad satietatem sese expleverint, harpyis permittente. Ego vero, quia et officii et existimationis esse puto, interposita præsertim mea fide, injuriam potius ferre quam detrectari solutionem, non detrecto. Ego una cum uxore et familia universa felicitatis vestræ cupidissimi te cum honestissima ac pientissima uxore tua et liberis amantissime salutamus. Salutes vero reddes duplicatas amicissimis ac dominis meis DD. Amerbachio et Coctio. Salutabis vero DD. Grinæum Samuelem, d. Bettum cui vehementer gratulor secundam prolem. Bene vale, compater suavissime et venerande, et tuis literis, licet tam male scriptis ut ad eas legendas evocandus mihi fuerit abbas Trittemius, me frequentius quam facis exhilara. Prohibited in the Index of 1583, see de Castro Hist. de los prot. Esp. p. 441 f. The title Declaracion .. en Christo agrees with the above; place and year of publication are not mentioned.

The Epistola del Autor begins: Aviendo releydo muchas vezes esta Confession, à la fin me determiné de publicarla despues de mas de quinze años que fue hecha, y de auer seruido para el fin que se hizo. It is clear that Reina means, that the Confession had never then been printed. Nor does Retrodt contradict him, when saying, in the preface of his reprint of 1601 (see next n°): haben sie Anno 1559 .. ein .. Bekentnis jhres Glaubens in jhrer Mütterlichen Hispanischen Sprachen auszugehen lassen. The expression ausgehn lassen, to issue, to set forth, is not equivalent to printing. In Lessing's article (see here p. 166) there is no trace that he knew another edition besides that of 1601. — Reina wrote the above passage more than fifteen years after that the Confession had been drawn up and that it had effected the aim for which it had been intended, viz. to procure for evangelical Spaniards in London admission into the Church of Protestant foreigners there.

The preface to the Confession is dated January 4 1559. This date being according to the old English style (compare above p. 167 f.), it corresponds to 1560 new style; the admission desired by the Spaniards will have been granted some months after the presentation of the Confession; it is, therefore, improbable that Reina wrote the above later than the end of 1575. We must not, however, conclude that the edition of 1577 was not the first.

*Reina, in his autograph dedication of a copy of his Bible to the University library at Basle: typis ab honesto viro Thoma Guarino cive Basilⁱ excusam. Valera, in the Exhortacion prefixed to his Bible of 1602, fol. 3: La Biblia de Cassiodoro de Reyna impressa en Basilea año de 1569.

Iselin in Historisch- und Geographisches Lexicon, Basel vol. 4. 1727, p. 63 said when publishing Reina's autograph dedication of his Bible to the University of Basle, that the honey-sucking bear is the device of Thomas Guarin, printer at Basle. And likewise in the Beiträge zur Basler Buchdruckergeschichte. Von Stockmeyer and Reber. Basel 1840. p. 157 among the Baslerische Buchdruckerzeichen the honey-bear is given with the subscription: Thomas Guarinus (von 1564); the publication from which it is taken is not mentioned. But Professor Sieber, chief librarian of the Basle University library, wrote me, that he does not know any publication in which the name of Guarinus is found together with the honey-bear; Sieber examined ten publications: one of the year 1564 is without Guarin's name and with the Palma Isingrinii, his father-in-law, who died in 1557, nine others 1564—1580 bear the name of Guarinus and his own Palma in different size and design, some moreover at the end the Palma of his father-in-law. I may add that the Hebrew grammar of Aretius, Basileæ, per Thomam Gverinvm MDLXI [VIENNA Court], has no emblem whatever. In the Supplement to Brunet's Manuel by Deschamps and G. Brunet, vol. 1. 1878, col. 127 is said: Thomas Guarin (ou Garin) était né à Berne, which statement seems to be intended to show that he was entitled to use a bear-device (compare here p. 243), but the fact is that he was from Tournay in Belgium, see Rechnungsbuch der Froben und Episcopius, 1557—1564. Hrsg. durch Rudolf Wackernagel. Basel 1881. p. 102. Guarin's epitaph stating the same is still extant at Basle.

Some doubt about the printer was hinted at by Sam. Engel, in republ. Helveto-Bernensi bibliothecarius primarius, in his Bibliotheca selectissima. Bernæ 1743, p. 17: Vulgò perhibetur Impressionem à Guarino Typograph. Basil. procuratam fuisse, etsi insignia Apiarii Typogr. Bernensis præ se ferat. And Butsch, die Bücherornamentik,

II. Theil, 1881, p. 28, is right in saying that that device represented by Stockbauer and Reber does not belong to Guarinus, but to Mathias Apiarius at Berne. The honey-bear on the last page of the Beschreibung vnd Geschicht desz Meylandischen kriegsz., published together with the Müsserrieg, Getruckt zû Bern durch Matthiam Apiarium M. D. XXXIX. is so completely resembling that, which is together with the year 1569 on the title of Reina's Bible (both books in my possession) that I should think both could well have come from the same stock. — In the Bernese impression of 1539 the woodcut is sided by the following inscriptions which are wanting on the title of the Bible. Above: ΕΡΕΝΝΑΤΕ τὰς γράφας, ὅτι ἐν αὐταῖς | ζωὴν αἰώνιον ἔχετε. Ioan. 5. Below: Omnia probate, quod bonum | fuerit tenete. 1. Thess. 5. Right hand: Quàm dulcia faucibus meis eloquia tua, super mel | ori meo. Psal. 118. Left hand: Vrsus insidians & esuriens, princeps super populum pauperem. Thre. 3. Prouerb. 28. The full tenor of the last quoted verses is in the Vulgate, Lam. 3, 10: Ursus insidians factus est mihi, leo in absconditis, Prover. 28, 15: Leo rugiens et ursus esuriens, princeps impius super populum pauperem. The inscriptions help to explain the meaning of the cut. It represents bees flying about and some sitting upon an open book which is characterised as the Bible by the word יהוה written in it. A bear, standing upright before a hole of a tree, is about to remove a huge mallet hung upon a branch before the hole which contains honey; the mallet will naturally always fall back on him. — The device alludes to the name of the printer. Apiarius is the latinized German family-name Biener, which means bee-master (for which the general German expression is Bienenvater; this latter, however, is not the family-name of Apiarius. G. Rettig: Notizen über Math. Apiarius, in Archiv für Gesch. des Deutschen Buchhandels. IV. Lpz. 1879. p. 32). Mathias Apiarius was in 1537 called to Berne from Strassburg, where the theologians Ecolampadius, Butzer and Capito were highly satisfied with him and certainly had recommended him to the Bernese authorities with whom they were on very good terms (G. Rettig in the Berner Taschenbuch auf das Jahr 1880. Bern 1879. p. 44). He used the emblem of the honey-bear in the years 1534 f. at Strassburg (Riederer, quoted in our n° 333⁵, p. 269). In the Roman prohibitory Index of 1558 he is still registered only as Argentoratensis impressor. He died some years before that Reina's Bible went to the press. After his death his son Samuel continued printing at Berne. In March 1564 Samuel Apiarius was banished from the town and territory of Berne, because he had, as they called it, falsified (by several alterations) a popular song which he had reprinted, of Hans Krafft of Lucerne, affecting a battle in France, of which perpetration Lucerne had complained, and because he had printed a satirical poem by which some places were offended (Anzeiger für Schweizerische Geschichte. 1873. N° 3. p. 326 f.). He went to Solothurn, where he printed in the years 1565 and 66, being the earliest printer of that town. Some publications of his of the year 1566 are without an imprint; one of them treats a strange appearance in the heavens seen in July and August 1566 at Basle, described by Samuel Coccius der heylgen Geschrift vmd freyen Künsten studiosus zû Basel im Vatterland. (See in the Anzeiger für Schweizerische Geschichte. Neue Folge. Dritter Band. Solothurn. N° 3 of 1879, p. 166 f., an article written by Frz. Jos. Schiffmann [librarian at Lucerne]: Samuel Apiarius, der älteste Buchdrucker Solothurns. Schiffmann asks in a note to the title of that publication on the phenomenon at Basle: Apiarius damals schon in Basel?). If he was not yet living at Basle when he printed this pamphlet, he certainly printed there in 1568. The printing place Basle and Samuel Apiarius as printer are named together on newspapers printed by him in the years 1568 and 1569 and as late as 1589 (Weller, Die ersten deutschen Zeitungen, in Bibliothek des litter. vereins zu Stuttgart, CXI, 1872, under the year 1568 n° 336, under 1569 n° 352, under 1571—89 nos 379. 385. 391. 435. 436. 656. 692. It is Weller who in two publications of the year 1566, nos 295. 315, adds to the name of Samuel Apiarius the printing place Basle). I find it expressly stated that the emblem of the honey-bear was used by him at Basle in 1575 (Riederer p. 270).

G. Rettig says, with reference to the bear-emblem ascribed to Guarinus by Stockmeyer and Reber (see above), that it seems that at Basle Thomas Guarinus lent for a while his name to the business of Samuel Apiarius. (In the above quoted Notizen in the Archiv d. Deutschen Buchhandels IV. 1879. p. 32 f.: Inzwischen hatte er sich in Solothurn und Basel aufgehalten und hier gedruckt. An letzterem Orte scheint Thom. Guarinus eine Zeit lang den Namen für das Geschäft hergegeben zu haben.) *More accurate is the conjecture of Professor Sieber, expressed to me in a letter: that Apiarius printed Reina's Bible at Guarin's expense, perhaps working in Guarin's office, and that, Guarin not putting his name in the book, Apiarius was at liberty to employ his own emblem. Dr. Göddlin, Scriptor of the Court library in Vienna, observed that this conjecture was so much the more likely, as Samuel Apiarius, even while still at Berne, printed for a publisher at Frankfort: Die Guldin Arch. . . durch Sebastian Francken von Wörd. M. D. LVII. has the colophon: Getruckt inn der Lohlichen Statt Bernn, Bey Samuel Apiario, Inn kosten vnd verlegung desz Ersamen David Zäpfels, Buchtrucker vnnnd Burger zu Franckfurt, Im M. D. Lviij. Jar. [VIENNA Court.] Matthias Apiarius had in 1550 printed at Berne a cosmography Inn Costen vnd vorlegung Cyriaci Jacobi zu Franckfort am Meyn (Riederer, Nachrichten, vol. 4, p. 269). What Reina says of the typographer in the letter of 4 Aug. 1568: typographus eludit nos, does not appear to be applicable to Guarin; whilst the other circumstance, stated in Reina's letter of 23 Dec. of the same year, that Reina's typographer was hard to his debtor, is natural enough, if he was Samuel Apiarius who during his exile from Berne was himself accused there of debts by some creditor of Solothurn or Basle (for this fact see Rettig in the Archiv l. c. p. 331). His exile ended in 1575. (Historische Ztg. Hrsg. v. d. Schweizer. . . geschichtsforschenden Gsllsch. 1853. Bern. P. 77: Samuel Apiarius wurde mit Verlust des Bürgerrechts auf zehn Jahre von Stadt und Land verwiesen, nach deren Verlauf er sich um Aufhebung der obigen Strafe bewarb: klug begleitete er sein Gesuch mit einer Ihr Gnaden dedicirten Schrift. So wurde nun Samuel Apiario, unserm gewesenen Burger und Buchdrucker, vor zehn Jahren von Stadt und Land verwiesen, das Land wieder geöffnet, ihm auch für sein dedicirtes Büchlein zwei Kronen geschenkt. 1575 Apr. 7. — T. Spr. B. ZZ. 776 und R.M. 389 s 7 IV 1575.) He nevertheless continued to print at Basle. His last publication, of which I know, is of 1589 (see above here). In 1591 a Lied appeared at Basel bey S. Apiarii Erben (registered by Weller, Annalen der poet. National-Lit. Vol. 1. 1862, p. 257, n° 311).*

In 1567 Reina, on his way to Basle where the Bible was to be printed, wrote to a friend: it was settled that Oporinus should print 1100 copies of it (see my Romanische Studien IV, 485). The printing was, however, not begun till after the death of Oporinus (see Reina's letters to Hubert, and compare, among our Documents, the extracts from letters of Oporinus) who died on the 6th of July 1568, having, a short time before, sold his printing-establishment (to two persons, each of whom Basiliensis, divitiis et generis splendore insignis, as is stated in an *Epistola on Oporinus printed on a separate leaf in 1568. Apiarius therefore was not one of the buyers). In 1602, Cipriano de Valera reports in the Exhortacion prefixed to his Bible fol. 6: 1569 imprimiò [Reina] dos mil y seiscientos exemplares. There is no reason to doubt this. Valera continues: Los quales por la misericordia de Dios se han repartido por muchas regiones. De tal manera que hoy casi no se hallan exemplares, si alguno los quiere comprar. It is, however, certain that there still remained a store of them at Frankfurt. For not only did the booksellers, in that same year 1602 and in the next, issue copies with titles bearing the dates of 1602 and 1603, but even twenty years later new titles with the date of 1622 were printed. — The Supplément 2 to Brunet, vol. 1. 1878, col. 127: la Bible de l'Ours a été tirée à 2,600 exempl., ce qui n'empêche qu'elle soit devenue fort rare.

Ticknor says on this Bible: It is paged in three different portions, as if they were all advancing through the press at one and the same time. (See Catalogue of the Spanish Library and of the Portuguese books bequeathed by George Ticknor to the Boston Public Library together with the collection of Spanish and Portuguese literature in the general library by James Lyman Whitney. Boston 1879. P. 33.) Possibly the two parts of the Old Testament were proceeding simultaneously, the New Testament certainly was not given to the press before the Old was finished; compare here p. 173 f.

My proof-leaves containing the numbers 333 and 334 were sent to several friends and public libraries; at Basle, Frankfurt, Gotha, Halle, Saint Gall, Stuttgart, Wernigerode the librarians have kindly revised and completed the notices formerly made by myself in these towns; my colleague E. Reuss at Strassburg has done the same concerning his own copy; from other places I have been informed by librarians on copies which I have not seen, viz. from Berlin by Dr. Joh. Müller, from Dresden by Professor E. Förstemann, from Leipzig by Professor Krehl, from Munich by Dr. G. Laubmann, from London, British Museum, by Mr. R. Martineau, from Oxford, Wadham College, by Mr. Thorley, from Paris, Bibliothèque Nationale by Mr. L. Delisle, Bibliothèque Sainte Geneviève, by Mr. F. Deni; Rev. Edward W. Gilman, Corresponding Secretary of the American Bible Society, informed me of the copies in the library of that society in New York, I. W. Knapp, New Haven, wrote me about the copies in his possession and the particulars concerning the copy in Boston Public library, Menendez Pelayo did so about those copies which he himself has got.

333^a. 1569. Without name. With heading ornament.

At the head an ornamental border running over the whole breadth. (19 times the same ornamental type. Identically in the copies Basle, Halle, Vienna, Reuss, B—r, and the border in the other copies is probably the same) | La biblia, | qve es, los sa- | cros libros del | vieio y nvevo te- | stamento. | Trasladata en Español. | The woodcut described here p. 236. | דבר אלהינו יקרו לעולם | The letter at the end of יקרו is not a final mem like that of the following word. | La Palabra del Dios nuestro permanece para siempre. Isa. 40. | M. D. LXIX. | The first five lines in capitals, the other two Spanish lines in Italics. Colophon: Anno del Señor M. D LXIX. en | Septiembre. | The D in the year is not followed by a full stop, but is distanced from L.

On the verso of the title two decrees of the Council of Trent, in Latin and Spanish.

Some copies have a blank leaf after the title-leaf.

Ad sereniss. . . Reges . . . Praefatio . . . Interpretis, in qua ex prima visione Ezechielis . . . disserit de officio . . . Principum . . . seven leaves, signature † 1—7. With two woodcuts, Ezechiel's vision on the verso of the first leaf, Svppliv regis Tyrii on the verso of the fifth.

Bible-translation in two columns. Genesis to Ecclesiastico inclusive, 1438 columns. Under the text-columns 1437—1438 Prefacion del primer tradutor del libro, viz. the prologue of the Greek translator of Ecclesiasticus. Verso (1439—40) blank. (Instead of the column-numbers 533. 534. 540. 636. 651. 726. 829. 830. 894.

The misprint 451 was noticed by Ebert, Bibliogr. Lex., vol. 1. 1821, col. 183, the others were stated by Custos Verner of Halle University library, who adds: &c. All these misprints are in my copy likewise, except 720 where my copy has 726.) Second numeration: the 12 Prophets with Baruch and two books on the Maccabees 544 columns. New Testament, without separate title-leaf, at the head of St. Matthew: El nuevo testamento, | que es, los escriptos | Euangelicos, y Apostolicos. column 1—508.

Under the short columns 507 and 508 begin on the same page Errores, continued over the next page and ending on the third, where the colophon follows. Verso blank.

Annotationes breves sobre los lugares mas difficiles. Three leaves, α. α ij. α iij. Fourth leaf blank. These annotationes are mentioned in the Amonestacion (fourth page from the end) as belonging to this edition: al cabo del libro las annotationes que no cupieron en sus propios lugares. — Brunet t. 1. 1860 mentions the Annotationes breves, 3 ff. between the Old and the New Testament. Salvá, Catálogo 1872. II, 763: deben ir al fin, á pesar de estar á vezes encuadernadas entre los preliminares. In the Stuttgart copy the Annotationes stand between the Amonestacion and Genesis. — As far as I can gather from the notices of my correspondents, the types and the dimensions of the columns of the Annotationes do not differ from the Bible, but the paper is different from that of the Bible in quality, and is, in some copies (Frankfort, Halle), smaller than the size of the Bible.

BASLE Public. A copy with Reina's autograph dedication to Basilius Amerbach, written in 1569 (see below). A label written by the librarian Pfister, who in 1622 catalogued the library, is pasted in the volume: Biblia sacra utriusque testamenti Hispanica lingua optimè versa per Cassiodorum Reinium Hispano-Hispalensem academici Basiliensis alumnus per decennium, cum luculentâ eiusdem prafatione . . . Blank leaf after the title. Without the Annotationes. — Professor Ed. REUSS at Strassburg has a copy with Reina's autograph dedication to Dr. Adam Petri, written in 1569 (see below). Without the Annotationes and the blank leaf after the title. — FRANKFORT o. M. City. A copy with Reina's autograph dedication to the city library of Frankfort o. M., written January 1573. With the Annotationes, without fourth leaf following them and without blank leaf after the title. — BOSTON Public. Ticknor's copy, see Catalogue (quoted here p. 238) p. 33. With Reina's autograph presentation to Jean Taffin, undated (see below).

Without Annotations: DRESDEN Royal. Without blank leaf after the title. — MUNICH Royal. Many leaves are wanting, also the end of the Apocalypse. — VIENNA Court, from Prince Eugene's collection, a copy presented in 1603 by the translator's son Augustino to a friend (see below). No blank leaf after the title. — WERNIGERODE, the Count's library. No blank leaf after the title. — B—r. No blank leaf after the title. — MENENDEZ PELAYO.

The original impression of the Annotations is found in the following copies: Frankfort o. M., as we have already stated. — HALLE University. Blank fourth leaf following them, and blank leaf after the title. Some wanting leaves of Exodus and Leviticus (col. 153—168. 185—192. 201—216) are replaced in ms. by a hand of about a. 1600. The second numeration is placed between the columns 736 and 737. — STUTTGART Royal. Without blank leaf after the title. — BRITISH MUSEUM. No blank leaf neither after the Annotations nor after the title. — OXFORD, Wadham college, Wiffen's copy. It had the Annotations already in 1716, when Don Juan Isidro Faxardo was permitted by the Inquisitor General to keep and read it for three years; see John T. Betts' article The Governor of Madrid's Bible, in the Friend's Quarterly Examiner, April 1871. — PARIS National. Of the four copies there, all belonging to this n^o 333^a, one is complete, with the Annotations.

Professor I. W. KNAPP, Yale college, New Haven, has two copies of 333^a, one of them with the Annotations, but only in ms. of the 18. century.

The Annotations are supplied by Wiffen's reprint of them (see below), in the copies of GOTHA Ducal (blank leaf after the title) and of John T. BETTS, Pembury.

333^b. 1569. Without name. Without heading ornament.

La | biblia | qve es, los | sacros libros | del vieio y nvevo |
testamento. | The rest of the title as in n^o a. Also יְהוָה. The first six lines in capitals, the other two Spanish lines in Italics. No comma after biblia. No border above the whole. On the verso the decrees.

Without Annotations: BASLE Public. A copy with the translator's dedication to the Academy of Basle, autograph of June 1570 (see below). Without blank leaf after the title. — The same library has another copy of this variety. A former possessor has written on the title: Rem. Feschii, and on the fore-leaf: Cassiodorus Reinius Hispanus Hispalensis, inclytæ Academiæ Basiliensis Alumnus, huius sacrorum librorum versionis Hispanicæ author, quam per integrum decennium elaboravit, et auxilio pientissimorum ministrorum Ecclesiæ Basiliensis, ex decreto prudentissimi Senatus typis ab honesto viro Thoma Guarino cive Basiliensi excusum demum emit in lucem.

Quum sedero in tenebris Jehova lux mea est. Mich. 6. CASS. R.
A blank leaf after the title in the Fesch copy. — DRESDEN Royal. Ebert, l. c. on Reina's Bible with the year 1569 on the title: Exx., in den. d. Tit. verschied. abgesetzt ist. (Beide Art. zu Dresd.) — VIENNA Court. Between title and preface a blank leaf. The copy with which the Suplicacion a la reyna de Francia is bound up. I had to observe above p. 142 that the richly bound volume, framed throughout in red ink, probably was a presentation copy to Emperor Maximilian II, in whose library it already was in 1576.*)

ROME Casanatensis. Two leaves of the Amonestacion are bound up misplaced: after the title-leaf follow leaves iij. and IV of the Amonestacion, then a blank leaf of the same paper, then Praefatio and Amonest.

With Annotations: BERLIN Royal.

The following antiquarian prices seem to concern copies with the year 1569 on the title, but without name; it is impossible to discern to which of the two varieties each copy belonged.

*) Le Long's Biblioth. sacra, Paris 1723, I, p. 363 in the section inscribed Biblia Hispanica à Calvinianis edita, has in the first place: Biblia Hispanica, in 4°. Cosmopoli, Christophori Philalethi 1567. Eadem est forsan ac sequens editio: servatur in bibliotheca Cæsarea Vindobonensi. This sequens editio is Reina's bible of 1569. Denis in his catalogue of Codices manuscripti theologici bibliothecæ palatinæ Vindobonensis, vol. I, pars II, Vindob. 1794, col. 1993 states that with a copy of Reina's bible of 1569 in the Court library in Vienna, a Supplication &c. is bound together, quæ, cum ad calcem notetur impressa: En Cosmopoli por Christophoro Philaléto. 1567. nescio quo modo Longium in errorem induxit ut Bibliorum hisp. anni prædicti editionem inde effingeret. Ne igitur Editionem ejusmodi apud nos quaeras. (Compare here p. 88). The editions of Le Long's Biblth. sacra. Pars altera. 1709. Parisiis, p. 120 f. Lipsiæ, p. 147 have not the article on the Cosmopolis Spanish Bible of 1567.

Draudius Bibliotheca exotica 1610, p. 210: La Biblia, que es los sacros libros del veio y nuevo Testamento, trasladada en Espaniol. in Venetia 1570. 4. Probably Cless and Draudius copied from some earlier catalogue, perhaps from the original Frankfort one, where Venice may have been named erroneously, the real printing place being unknown. Bassæus, who used the same original catalogue, may have left out Venice, knowing that the book was not printed there (Nic. Bassæus published in 1573 two works of Reina, see below).

Vincent Salvá, A catalogue of Spanish and Portuguese books, part II, London 1829, p. 13, having given the title of 1569, says: It reappeared afterwards with different dates on the title-page, viz. 1586 and 1622. — Brunet, t. 1. 1860: Les exemplaires de ce même livre, qui portent la date de 1586 et de 1622, ne diffèrent des autres que par le changement de frontispice et l'addition de 4 ff. placés avant la Genèse (dans les exemplaires de 1622 seulement); d'ailleurs on trouve toujours la date de 1569 à la fin de l'errata. Vend. 13 fr. La Serna.

In the City library at St. GALL is a copy of those described here under n° a, in which the year M D LXIX has been cut out, as well on the title as also in the colophon, and has been replaced by the year 1587, printed with Arabic numerals. In order that the patch-work might not strike at the first glance, red lines are drawn in both places, and a system of such lines is, as if for ornament's sake, but indeed with very bad taste, extended over the whole title.

In all other respects the copy is exactly like mine. The identical border above the title. No blank leaf after the title. Misprint 451 instead of 651. No Annotations.

The notice in the Verzeichniss der Manuscripte und Incunabeln der Vadianischen Bibliothek in St. Gallen. St. Gallen 1864. p. 171, n° 205 is not exact. The title is given thus: La Biblia Que es los sacros libros d. v. e. n. Testam. Trasladata en Espaniol. Ohne Anz. It is however identical with that of our n° a (having also Español). The Verzeichniss continues: 4°. 1438 [add: +544] und 508 Spalten, mit dem Drukerzeichen e. Bären auf d. Titelbl. Die gedruckte Jahrzahl 1587 ist auf d. Tit. u. am Ende (in eine leere Stelle zwischen die Worte: Anno del Sennor [write Señor] ... en Septiembre) aufgepappt. The word leere is interspaced in the Verzeichniss.

Ducatiana ou remarques de feu M. Le Duchat sur divers sujets, t. 1, Amsterdam 1738, p. 130 f.: Moreri, au mot Reyna, a cru sur la parole du Pere Simon, dans son Supplement à Leon de Modène, que l'Édition de 1596. étoit unique, & comme d'ailleurs on prenoit le Livre, pour l'ouvrage d'un Juif, Gaffarel le vendit fort cher à M. Carcavi pour la Bibliothèque du Roi, & moi-même sur ce pied-là en 1697. j'en fis présent à l'Archevêque de Reims, qui se félicita d'avoir enrichi sa Bibliothèque d'un Livre si rare. Mais le P. Simon s'est trompé, y ayant de cette Bible une Édition de 1569. laquelle est la plus ancienne comme nous l'apprend le Pere le Long, dans sa Bibliothèque Sacrée, au Chapitre des Bibles en Langue Espagnole. Il s'en fit une seconde en 1596. avec la figure de l'Ours dans le titre, comme à la première; & je les crois l'une & l'autre, non pas de Bâle, . . mais de Berne, puisque c'est cette dernière Ville, & non pas celle de Bâle, qui a un Ours pour Armoiries. Depuis il s'est fait encore deux autres Editions de la même Bible, l'une en 1603, l'autre en 1622. toutes deux à Francfort sur le Mein, & avec une autre figure que l'Ours dans le Frontispice. A cela près la dernière répond en tout & page pour page à l'édition de 1569 laquelle pourtant est la plus belle de toutes, soit pour le papier, soit pour l'Impression. In a letter, written in 1684, Lettre XVIII of the Lettres choisies de M. Simon. Nouvelle édition. T. I. Amsterdam 1730. P. 189, Richard Simon says, that Reina's Bible of 1569 [sic] had been sold to M. Carcavi, alors Bibliothécaire du Roi, as a version made by the Jews of Granada. And Mr. L. Delisle, director of the Bibliothèque Nationale in Paris, writes me: J'ai sous les yeux l'exemplaire de la Bible espagnole que Carcavi acheta pour la Bibliothèque du roi; c'est l'édition que vous décrivez sous le n° 333^a. In R. Simon's Hist. crit. du vieux test. Suivant la copie imprimée a Paris 1680, p. 380, and in his Hist. crit. des versions du n. t. Rotterdam 1690, p. 496 f., only the year 1569 is given as that of the impression of Reina's Bible, without mention of the varieties with different years. The year 1596 in Moreri's Dictionnaire is certainly a mistake in writing or a misprint. Already Pellicer Ensayo p. 35 f. said: Ni es mas verdadera [que la edición de 1603] la que trae Moreri hecha año de 1596. procediendo quiza esta equivocacion de trocar los numeros de 1569. en 1596. A title with 1603 exists, however (see n° 333^b), and it would not surprise if a new title with the year 1596 had been printed in consequence of the publication of Valera's N. T. in that year. One could say, as for the copy of the archbishop of Reims, that it is registered thus in the Bibliotheca Telleriana p. 3: La Biblia trasladada en Español. Francfort, en la Libreria de Daniel Aubry, 1622. in 4^o., and that this variety is really, with other books of archbishop Letellier, in the Bibliothèque Sainte Geneviève in Paris. But the Biblioth. Telleriana was published in 1693, and Le Duchat says that he in 1697 presented his copy to the archbishop (who died in 1710), and he seems to state that he did not know of an earlier edition than that of 1596 until he learned from Le Long's Bibliotheca sacra, first published in 1709, that Reina's Bible had been printed already in 1569. Sure enough, Le Duchat did not examine the copies accurately, otherwise he would have discovered that the text is in all of them of the same impression. But the question as to the existence of a title with the year 1596 remains still unsettled.

On this title the honey hunting bear of 1569, only less well printed (nach allen Umständen einerley, in dem Nachdrucke aber nicht so sauber und scharf ausgefallen). No Hebrew on the title. At the end of the errata after the New Testament:

Anno del Sennor M. DLXIX en Septiembre. It is the old edition of this year, from Genesis to the end of the N. T. The N. T. has no special title. On the back of the general title the two decrees of Trent, Latin and Spanish; then the Latin and the Spanish prefaces of Reina, both reprinted from the edition of 1569. This description (excepting the strokes marking the divisions of the lines) is given by Johann Bartholomæus Riederer: Nachrichten zur Kirchen- Gelehrten- und Bücher-Geschichte, Funfzehendes Stück, Altdorf 1767, p. 265 f. As for the last mentioned point he says: Alles (the decrees and the two prefaces) ist in dieser Ausgabe mit der ursprünglichen einerley, auch Blat für Blat nachgedruckt; nur zeigen teils die verschiedenen Buchstaben und Zalen, teils die verschiedenen Ausgänge mancher Zeilen, auf denen etwan ein oder ein Paar Wörtlein oder Sylben mer oder weniger in dem Nachdrucke stehen, deutlich an, dass es wirklich zweyerley Druck ist, und also nicht das Titelblatt alleine, sondern 15 Blätter umgedruckt worden. The three leaves of Annotationes breues are found at the end of the copy described by Riederer.

A copy in the Royal library at DRESDEN (see Ebert). In the colophon, D is distanced from L. Without Annotationes. Preliminaries reprinted?

MUNICH Royal. From the Munich copy the division of the lines has been added here to Riederer's title-copy. The colophon has Señor. The Annotationes are wanting. Blank leaf after the title. The leaves between the title and Genesis are reported to be of the same impression with those in 333^a.

Riederer is most likely right in thinking that this new edition of Reina's Bible of 1569 was occasioned by Valera's Bible being published in the same year 1602: Da in eben dem 1602 Jare zu Amsterdam eben diese Übersetzung, iedoch mit Cypr. de Valera Verbesserungen, herausgekommen, so hat man one Zweifel, um den noch übrigen Exemplaren der ersten Ausgabe fortzuhelfen, dieses Mittel ergriffen, die erstern Bögen umdrucken zu lassen.

Valera's Bible, according to its colophon, se acabó en Septiembre 1602. The Catalogvs vniversalis pro nvndinis Francofvrtensibus autumnalibus de anno 1602. Francofvrti, excudebat Io. Saur. In Petri Kopffen Buchladen. has, fol. E 4, among Libri fvtvris nvndinis prodituri: La Biblia, que es los sacros libros del viuo [sic] y Nuevo Testam [sic]; trasladada de los fuentes Hebreos en Espagnol, por Cassiodoro de Reina. A Francoforte por las expensas de los herederos del trasladador. It really appears in the Catalogvs vniversalis pro nvndinis Francofvrtensibus vernalibus de anno 1603. Francofvrti, excudebat Io. Saur. In Petri Kopffen Buchladen zu finden. Fol. F 4 verso: La Biblia, trasladada de los fuentes Hebreos en Espannol par [sic] Cassiodore de Reina. Francof. apud Richterum. This article has, like all articles, the year 1603 on the margin. Also Draudius, Bibliotheca exotica, 1610, p. 211 registers: La Biblia trasladada de los fuentes Hebreos en Espannol por Cassiodoro de Reina. Francofurt apud Richterum 1603. 4. I think the year 1603 was not on the title of the Bible to be sold en casa de Richter, but it doubtless was the year in which the book with the new title appeared for sale at the fair.

333f. 1622. Without name.

La biblia, | qve es, los | sacros libros del | vicio y nvevo te- |
stamento. [„The a in TESTAMENTO is a capital V reversed.“ Knapp.] |
Trasladada en Español. | A woodcut, imitating that of 1569. On the leaves of the open book two bees, whilst in the cut of 1569 five; instead of יהוה, which, however, is not cut very well in 1569 neither, in 1622 something like דהנה. |
רבר instead of דבר in the verse: רבר אלהינו יקום לעולם | La Palabra del
Dios nuestro permanece para siempre. Isa. 40. | M. DC. XXII. |

This title in a frame of two parallel lines. On the reverse the two extracts from the decrees of the Council of Trent, with Spanish translation. Then preface with Ezekiel's vision on the second page.

The Annotations are wanting in the copies of DRESDEN Royal (the copy is mentioned by Ebert), GOTH A Ducal, HALLE University, of the count's library at WERNIGERODE, of the Casanatensis in ROME, of the National in PALERMO, of Prof. KNAPP. — PARIS National. Without Annotations? — With the Annotations: LEIPZIG University, with fourth leaf blank. BRITISH MUSEUM. — The American Bible Society's library in NEW YORK has two copies. One of them is enriched throughout by red lines on every page, and this copy has the Annotations, which the other lacks; one has Español, the other Espanol. It may be that some of the other copies likewise have Espanol.

To this variety belongs the copy registered by Siegm. Jac. Baumgarten in his Nachrichten von merkwürdigen Büchern, Band 7, Halle 1755, n° 2278, p. 190. He states that the title has not the names of Aubry and Schleich, and that the old colophon of September 1569 is left. In Baumgarten's title-copy, nostro certainly is an error of the copyist for nuestro.

Hidalgo, Diccion. de bibliografía Esp. t. 1. Madrid 1862, p. 209—210 from a copy in the Bib. del Ministerio de Fomento: La Biblia, qve es, los sacros libros del vicio y nvevo Testamento. Trasladada en español. M. DC. XXII. En el centro de esta portada hay un grabado de madera que representa un árbol hendido por medio de una de cuyas ramas pende un mazo de madera; en el tronco se ve un oso puesto en dos pies como queriendo lamer la miel que destila la hendidura, al rededor de la cual se ve un enjambre de abejas. Por bajo del grabado está una línea en hebreo, cuya traducción La Palabra del Dios nuestro permanece para siempre. Isa. 40 se contiene en otra línea. El título va orlado con dos filetes. Al respaldo de esta primera hoja se halla el decreto del concilio de Trento en latin y castellano, sobre libros prohibidos . . . Tambien esta edicion . . . es la misma de 1569.

y David Aubrij, y de | Clement Schleich. | M. DC. XXII. |

The title framed by two parallel lines on each side. On the verso of the title the decrees Latin and Spanish. Second leaf blank. On the third begins the preface, on the verso the cut is found. At the end 1569.

BERLIN Royal. With the Annotationes. Another copy without them, with second leaf blank. - STUTTGART Royal. No blank leaf after title; no Annotationes. - ZURICH City. - BRITISH MUSEUM. With blank leaf after title, with the Annotationes (identical impression with that of the copy dated on the title: 1569). - OXFORD, Wadham college, Wiffen's copy. The Annotationes are supplied by Wiffen's reprint. Blank leaf after title.

(1622) en 4^o grande. Al fin se lee: Anno del Señor M. D. LXIX. (1569) en septiembre. El frontis tiene una estampa que representa un Pegaso sobre un caducéo, asido de dos manos que salen de entre unas nubes. Leense esparcidas por ella estas letras iniciales D. D. A. C. S. que lo son de estos nombres: Daniel y David Aubry, y Clemente Schleich. El exemplar, de donde se ha copiado este titulo, le poseia Don Vicente Pardo, Agente Fiscal del Consejo de Hacienda. Pero ésta no es nueva edicion de la Biblia de Reyna; sino engaño de los Impresores, que para dar mas estimacion a los exemplares de la antigua impresion, o por otros fines, les pusieron otra portada para venderlos por de nueva edicion, y aun hicieron esto con tan poco disimulo, que conservaron al fin la fecha de los exemplares antiguos. — Catalogue des livres de la bibliotheque de M. Printed by William Clowes and Sons; for the British and Foreign Bible Society.

Title-copy and notice by Wiffen. BOSTON Public library, in the Ticknor collection; see the Ticknor catalogue p. 33, where the size is said to be 12°, the number of pages of the N. T.: 214, (1), and the notice is given: from Valera's edition of 1602.

This is probably the edition of which is spoken in Bagster's publication. The Bible of every land. New edition. London. With preface of 1860. P. 264: „An edition of the N. T. from Valera's version was completed by the [B & FB] Society in 1858, and the Old Test. from the same version is now in progress.“ (On the same page is read: „In the early part of the present year (1860) . . .“) It would seem that the N. T. was published separately in 1858.

LA SANTA BIBLIA, que contiene los sagrados libros del antiguo y nuevo Testamento. Antigua version de Cipriano de Valera, cotejada con diversas traducciones y revisada con arreglo á los originales hebreo y griego. Oxford, 1862, impr. de la Universidad. En 8°, pasta, 752 páginas á dos columnas, letra microscópica.

This from Don Dionisio Hidalgo's Diccionario de bibliografía española. T. I. Madrid: 1862. P. 202. The Bible will have 747 pages text, and two leaves title and index, just as n° 336^b; like that, it has the emblem of the SPCK on the title. I used a copy in PALERMO University library.

The Bible of Every Land. New edition. London: Bagster. Preface of 1860. P. 264 states that the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge undertook (I should think, in 1856 or 57) the task of revision and re-issue of the Valera Bible, and reports: „The revised version is now in course of printing at the Clarendon Press, Oxford, under the careful superintendence of the Rev. Dr. Lorenzo Lucena, Professor of Spanish in the Taylor Institution, who has throughout modernised the spelling, and, where absolutely necessary, substituted other phraseology for those terms and modes of expression which would be unintelligible to ordinary Spanish readers of the present day. In the early part of the present year (1860) it had advanced as far as Isaiah.“

Lucena wrote to me in 1878 (in English): „The first edition of the Spanish Bible prepared by me at the expense and under the superintendence of the Society for promoting Christian knowledge took place in 1862, and as it was stereotyped, other editions were easily made. I would recommend you that of 1869, which contains several corrections, made by myself, of mistakes of the printers in that first edition.“

Identical with the edition of 1865, only the year has been changed into 1876 on both titles. I found no differences in the text.

The titles of the Old Testament and of the N. T. in all respects, including the frame, like those of 336^b and c, except the year. Second leaf Tabla of both testaments. Text of the whole Bible p. 1—787, N. T. 597 f. The line separating the two columns 138 millim. No frame, except title-pages. No marginals. Octavo.

Probably from stereotype plates of 1869. I noticed that Isaiah 53, 11 the y before será is italicized, whilst in 336^b and c it is Roman.

Edicion popular, con Citas paralelo - aclaratorias y Notas textuales. | La biblia | ó las | sagradas escrituras | que contienen los libros | del | antiguo y nuevo testamento. | Antigua version traducida de los originales Hebréo y Griego | por | Casiodoro de Reyna, | revisada y cotejada con diversas traducciones | por Cipriano de Valera y otros. | «La palabra del Dios nuestro, permanece | para siempre.» | Isaías, 40. 8. | The Spanish arms | Barcelona | imprenta de George Lawrence. | Calle de la encarnacion, 42, Gracia. | 1882. |

Second leaf index of the books of the Old Testament. Verso: Al lector. Among other things, there is said that in this edition the Psalms are taken from Pratt's version and Isaiah from Usóz i Rio; that in the poetical books of the O. T. the rhythmical character is represented for the eye by typographical arrangement; and that Se han añadido abundantes Notas textuales, conteniendo enmiendas de la version aprobadas por los más eminentes críticos.

The TBS commenced the work in 1876, and the two first books of the Old Test., as also half of the New, were printed at their expense. Mr. George Lawrence, who, in 1878, bought the machinery, plant and stock which the Society had at Barcelona, continued the work, directed by him from the beginning, and completed it according to his own views. See his and Pundsack's circular of Sept. 1881 on the Large-type Spanish Bible, with a Specimen of Errata found in the various Spanish Bibles now in circulation.

Richard Simon, Histoire critique du nouveau testament, Rotterdam 1690, chap. 41, p. 503: On y a seulement fait quelques petits changemens de nulle importance dans le texte de la Version [de Reina]. On a aussi retranché une bonne partie des notes qui sont à la marge de la premiere Edition. On n'a point de plus conservé les diverses leçons que Reyna avoit enfermées entre deux crochets. — Pellicer, Ensayo p. 44: En el Prologo de este Testamento Nuevo se contienen las mismas noticias acerca de la historia de las Biblias en vulgar. que despues dilató con mas estension en la Exhortacion que precede a su Biblia de el año de 1602. Y el mismo empeño en que se traduzca y lea indiferentemente por todo genero de personas la Sagrada Escritura, es otro argumento que el autor de los dos Prologos es uno mismo. Pero en este Testamento no tuvo mas parte Valera, que solicitar su publicacion; porque es el de Casiodoro de Reyna, de donde le copió este Editor sin declararlo, haciendo algunas leves alteraciones en la version, suprimiendo casi todas las notas marginales, abreviando los sumarios de los capitulos, y aplicandose sole a expresar lo que se halla en el griego corriente, sin tener respeto a las variantes, fuesen del griego, fuesen de la edicion Latina antigua. — De Castro, Bibliot. Españ., t. 1. 1781, p. 476: en esta [viz. 1596] quitó Valera tales quales palabras que Casiodoro de Reyna añadió, y puso de letra cursiva en su edicion ... las quales volvió á poner el mismo Valera ... 1602 y 1625. — Catálogo de la biblioteca de Salvá 1872. t. 2, p. 818: son infinitas las variantes que contiene, viz. the differences from Reina.

Bungay is a town of 3500 inhabitants, situdte on the Waveney, the country river, dividing Norfolk from Suffolk, near Yarmouth. George Bullen in his Catalogue of the library of the British and Foreign Bible Society. London 1857. p. 145 registers El Nuevo Testamento. Bungay, 12°. with the question: circa 1815? I think that it is previous to the Bermondsey edition of 1813. The Bungay ed. has for instance p. 1. always engendrò à, on the last page rayz, the Bermondsey ed. has engendrò á and raiz, according to the modern orthography.

 in Valera 1602, his N. T. 1625.

Wiffen: „There is a reprint of Valera's N. T. omitting the references of 1596:
printed at Bungay por Carlos Brightly, no date, octavo; it has the same omission in Romans III 28 of the words por la fe. There is also another printed Bermondsey por Powell 1813.“

The Bible of Every Land, new ed., London, Bagster, with preface dated 1860, p. 263: The first editions of the British and Foreign Bible Society were printed from Enzina's edition of 1708, and were primarily designed for the benefit of the Spanish prisoners of war; but the copies found so rapid a circulation in Spain and in Spanish South America, that other and larger editions of 5000 copies each were issued from time to time, according to the opportunities for distributing them. From the reluctance of the British and Foreign Bible Society, in the early period of its history, to print any Catholic version of the Scriptures, it was long before any other version was issued except that of Enzina . . . At length, in 1820, . . . Scio's New Testament was printed in London, followed, in 1821, by an edition of the entire Bible of this version.

From this notice it would seem to follow that the BFBS reprinted Enzina's N. T. four times at least. Probably they are those editions registered here under nos 357—360.

361. 1823?

The Rev^d Mr. Pratt wrote me: „I ought to have (but can't lay hands on, and so fear it is lost) a N. T. published, without the name of anybody but the printer, in New York in 1823, I think. It is so much like the revised Valera of the ABS, that I have always set it down as his. It is possible, it may have been a revision of Casiodoro de Reina's, on which Valera's was founded." It may belong to this class 359. 360.

It seems to have been stereotyped in 1865. I have got parts with the years 1865, 1867, 1868 severally on the title-page:

Of 1865 the parts 1. 2. 4. 6—10. Only 1 and 2 are paged, each separately.

Of 1867 the parts 1. 2. 3. 4. 6. The gospels are paged, each separately, but S. John only as far as p. 72 incl.

Of 1868 the parts 1—5. 7. 11. 12. Each paged, also S. John to the end p. 77.

In the same year 1868 copies with the year 1865 and such with the year 1867 on the title-page were issued with a cover bearing the date 1868. With such covers I have got

of 1867 the above mentioned parts of this year (which I have not seen without this cover).

The cover is coloured (yellow or blue or red) and has, in the middle of a gothic frame, above the title of the part (S. Mateo and so on), the words: Créé | en el | señor Jesus, | y serás | salvo tú, | y | tu casa. | below: Londres: | impreso para el | deposito biblico | (the bible stand) del | palacio de cristal. | Para la distribucion gratuita. | 1868.

Composed and stereotyped in England (Pundsack thinks: in Cambridge); the Trinitarian Bible Society gave the plates to Mr. G. Lawrence at Barcelona, where the work was printed and the above title-page added.

Table and text the identical impression as that of 1871, certainly from plates. Only not in eights, but 16º.

The lists, which Mr. Corfield, the Agent of the BFBS at Madrid, sent me, do not include this edition. Copies to be sold in his depot were furnished with the above title. Duplicates of the plates sent to Barcelona seem to have been sent to Madrid likewise, perhaps bought in Cambridge.

In Mr. Corfield's list.

The stereotype plates of the gospels were used for separate editions of each of them, as well by the TBS as by the BFBS. Both call the size: 4º.

376. Mat^a. 1870. TBS 1^a.

El santo evangelio de nuestro señor Jesu-Cristo segun san Mateo. Madrid depósito de la sagrada escritura carrera de san Jerónimo, 11, pasaje del Iris.

This must have been the title of the first separate edition of St. Matthew, which Pundsack reports that was made in Madrid, suiting the gospel of St. John (see Ju^a). It doubtless was, like St. John, bound up with certain copies of the Barcelona primer, third ed.

376. Mat^b. 1871? TBS 2^a.

The fourth edition of the Barcelona primer was certainly coupled with gospels likewise. As Pundsack says that two editions of these 4º gospels were made in Barcelona, I should suppose that the first edition of Madrid was followed by a second in the same town.

376. Mat^c. 1873 or 74? TBS 3^a.

376. Mat^d. 1875. BFBS 1^a.

A new title-leaf which, however, is an integral part of the first layer. The new title is like that of d and f, but without the stop after Mateo and after Madrid, without comma after B. y e., and with the year 1881 (without stop) instead of 1875. The coloured cover repeats the same title, but with an ornamented stroke instead of the monogram, and has on the back of the last leaf: Imprenta de Enrique Rubiños, plaza de la Paja, 7, bis.

376. Mrc^b. 1876. TBS.

St. Mark, without title, paged 74—118, following after the primer entitled like that with St. Matthew, only that here Marcos is read in the place of Mateo.

From the statement of Pundsack that Matthew, Luke and John were printed in Madrid, and that a new edition was printed in Barcelona, previous to that of 1876, which contains the primers with the four gospels, I cannot suppose that St. Mark was published with the primer before 1876.

Probably from the plates of the following. Pundsack writes me that the TBS founded two copies of that N. T. and that they made an edition of it in London.

El | nuevo testamento | de | nuestro señor Jesu-Cristo : | que es, | los escritos evangélicos y apostólicos. | Antigua version de Cipriano de Valera, | cotejada con diversas traducciones, | y revisada | con arreglo al original texto Griego. | Barcelona: | imprenta de Obradors y Sulé. | 1872. |

Second leaf, first page: Libros del nuevo testamento. Text p. 1 — 315. Summaries, no parallels. Octavo. Pundsack: Letra del 7° (Minion o Colonel).

Six pages Erratas. At the end of them: Calle de San Juan, núm. 35, Gracia (Barcelona,) | se hallan biblias enteras y nuevos testamentos. |

Pundsack: For this N. T. the TBS used the composition of their N. T. contained in the Bible of 1875 (here n° 349). The parallels were taken away, and the size was made smaller. The stereotype plates were sent by the Society to Barcelona, where title and Erratas were added.

The edition was completed for Mr. G. Lawrence, who had directed all the editions of the TBS in Spain and who in 1878 bought their printing-machinery and store in Barcelona. See the circular of Mr. T. S. Marks, London, March. 1879. on Mr. George Lawrence's Bible work in Spain. and the circular of Mr. Lawrence and Mr. Pundsack, Barcelona Sept. 16th, 1881. on the Large-type Spanish Bible.

From this N. T. separate editions, partly from plates, partly composed afresh; with coloured covers (I have seen six colours):

378. Mata. 1877. 1^a.

The same N. T. as described under a, only with the year 1869 on the title. Certainly from the plates of the former. This must be the „Spanish Testament (Val.) (in 8 parts). 32mo. Psalms.
From Valera's Bible of 1602.

423. 1625.

Los psalmos de David y otros. Amsterdam, en casa de Jacob Wachter. M. DC. XXV.

This title is given by José Rodriguez de Castro, who adds a description and extracts, Biblioteca Española, t. 1, Madrid 1781, p. 472—3, without saying anything about the translator. He says: En la segunda hoja: Ephes. 5. 18. 19 . . . Coloss. 3. 16 . . . A la vuelta de esta segunda hoja Heb. 13. 15. The Bible verses are written out by de Castro. He continues: Fol. 1º. Primero Libro de los Psalmos, segun los Hebreos. Este Libro que David y otros Prophetas . . . en Griego se llama Psalmo. This preface which de Castro gives in full length is nothing else than Valera's preface to the psalms in his Bible of 1602, with some few petty and insignificant variations. Follows in de Castro the summary of psalm 1 and the first two verses of it, agreeing with what is read in Valera (v. 2: meditará). De Castro concludes: Es un Tomo en 8º. menor, con 330. pagg. y finaliza con el Salmo CL. Carece de Prologo y Dedicatoria; y tiene numerados los versiculos en cada Salmo.

Wiffen notes that on the title is a device: David killing Goliath, that the size is 12^m, and that the text is paged 1 to 230, total 234 pages.

The title like that of 1871, from which it differs in the year, in the types and in another ornamented division between Salmos and Madrid. The edition is not produced from stereotype plates. In the summary of psalm 39 there is a broken f in both editions, a coincidence explained by the printer from his having used the same form of moveable types. The different division of the lines in v. 5 of the same psalm shows that they are two distinct editions.

It follows, that in the last 14 years there have been printed in Spain 283,000 copies of Reina's N. T. (separately and in the whole Bible), and about 1,218,000 copies of each Gospel (sueños, and in the N. T. and in the Bible).

I may subjoin here that Mr. Corfield states in 1882 that stereotype plates (which they possess for the three kinds of the N. T. and for the four Gospels in 8°) have been corrected where mistakes were known to exist.

P. III—XV: Exhortacion A todos los Fieles de la Nacion Española que dessean el Adelantamiento del Reyno de Jesu Christo, à leer la Sagrada Escritura. Column-title p. IV f.: Exhortacion al Lector. Signed, p. XV: Vuestro Hermano en Christo. | D. Felix de Alvarado. |

The next five leaves, containing regulations on scripture reading and calendar, and the introductory remark on morning and evening prayer, are not paged. The first leaf is c 4, the next half-sheet is signed separately: d, d 2.

With El orden . . en las oraciones de la mañana begins Arabic paging, the first sheet being signed B. P. 436 ends the Forma Ordinandi vel Consecrandi, after which: Finis.

Wiffen's copy in Wadham college, OXFORD. B—r.

The Exhortacion is that of Valera's Bible of 1602, with omissions and some few variations. After reprinting the two first pages of Valera, he adds, in the passage un Obispo de Sevilla trasladò la sagrada Escritura, after Sevilla the words (mi Patria). Soon afterwards, after mentioning, as did Valera, Reina's Bible printed in 1569, Alvarado adds: que revio y confirio con los textos Hebreos y Griegos, y ennoblezio Ciprian de la Valera, natural de Sevilla mi Patria, y se reimprimio en Amsterdam, año 1602. Then he continues with Valera: Francisco de Enzinas &c. unto the words on Julianillo distributing N. Ts. at Seville in 1557, after which date Valera's words on his N. T. of 1596 are varied thus: Y el sobre dicho Criprian [sic] de la Valera año de 1596 imprimio el Testamento Nuevo. Then immediately Todas estas Impressiones he yo visto: fuera de otras que con la injuria &c. with Valera to the end of the sentence: se han perdido. Then follows the section:

Pluguiesse a Dios, *Valera fol.4, line 3 from below, unto Iuan cap. 17, 3. in the middle of the next page of Valera. After this, the section preceding in Valera's Exhortation: La causa porque los adversarios, ending: no seamos hijos de tinieblas, sino de luz. Next follows Valera's conclusion: Por tanto, hermanos míos muy amados to the end: Assi sea. In the original follows: Vuestro Hermano en el Señor C. de V. Without a word on Valera's authorship of this Exhortacion, D. Felix de Alvarado signs his own name, changing el Señor into Christo.

Nor does Alvarado say whose is the translation of the portions from Scripture and of the Psalms in his Spanish Common Prayer Book. A notice by Wiffen states: „Valera's version of the Psalms is used by Alvarado in his Liturgia Ynglesa 1707 and 1715.“ Alvarado used Valera's Old Testament of 1602, whilst Texeda used Reina's of 1569; for the New Testament both used Valera's edition of 1596. I observed variations introduced by Alvarado in 1 Cor. 13.

As for the rest, Alvarado's Common Prayer Book is Texeda's, revised and enlarged. Alvarado, however, does not even hint at the existence of an edition of the Common Prayer Book in Spanish, previous to his own editions; on the contrary, the title claims the whole merit of the „hispanising“ for himself.

He added, in Spanish: the preface of 1661, and, after the Psalms, the prayers at sea, the prayers for the 5. of November (gunpowder plot 1605), the 30. of January (death of Charles I), the 29. of May (restoration 1660), the 39 articles, the canon of the Canterbury Synod of 1603 on the sign of the cross in the baptism; in Latin: the form of making, ordaining and consecrating bishops, priests and deacons; finally a Colecta Para pedir à Dios las Assistencias de su gracia en el tiempo de persecucion. The differences from Texeda in the parts translated by this one, seem mostly to be caused by the necessity to conform the work to the latest edition of the English work; I am at present at a loss to compare old English editions.

Menendez says (3, 100) on the editions of 1707 and 1715: prohibidas entrambas en nuestros índices . . Vid. el índice de 1747, que se refiere al edicto de prohibicion de Octubre de 1709.

445^b. James Townley, in the Illustrations of biblical literature, London 1821, vol. III, p. 478, after speaking of the Spanish N. T. of 1708, then of Alvarado's Liturgy of 1715, says: „In G. Offor's sale-catalogue, of 1816, there are several copies of an edition in royal octavo, of the date of 1726, but without notice of place where printed, or printer's name.“ Only new titles?

The Psalms and the portions of the Scripture (I compared Psalm 1 and 1 Cor. 13) are given according to Lucena's Bible.

In 1878, Lucena, in a letter to me, after mentioning the Liturgia Anglicana of 1839, which uses Amat, said: „There are other two or three editions of the same Liturgia, also prepared by me, having all the portions of the Scripture from Valera's Bible as by me revised, and I feel sure you could find a copy of the last edition by the C. K. S.“

I suppose the editions are made from the same plates.

On other editions of the Common Prayer Book in Spanish, which do not contain the version of Reina and Valera, but those of Scio and of Amat, see below in the notices on various Bible-translations.

The Latin text is throughout followed after each section by its translation in Dutch and in French. The Dutch, on the title and in the text, Gothic.

LEYDEN University.

Lehnemann, in his publication registered under n° 518, has reprinted p. 160—163 the Latin text, and the French words of the title which concern place and printer. Not to speak of external changes, there must be noted that in article 5 in the question, L. has sint instead of sunt, that he omits the marginals of the excerpt from the Helvetian confession: Increduli sumunt sibi sacramentum in iudicium and Præsentia Christi in cœna, and that in the article of the London French church he has semel tantum instead of tantum semel. The words p. 163 Huc usque Confessio ista. are of Lehnemann's.

Catechism.

The deputies of the Augsburg Confession at Antwerp in a letter to Martin Chemnitz, 13 Mai 1580, reprinted by Lehnemann (see here n° 518) p. 156: . . . senden wir E. g. W. hiermit Copia davon, mit und neben ein Exemplar von unserm Catechismo in Niederländischer Teutscher Sprache jetzund neulichs gedruckt, welcher vor etlichen wenigen Tagen in Frantzösischer Sprache auch ist gedruckt worden, und ingleichem in Lateinischer Sprache wird gedruckt werden, wie wir denn denselben auch künftigt in Hispanischer Sprache übersetzt zu thun drucken vermeynen . . . Lehnemann himself p. 98: Wie er [Cassiodorus] denn, sobald er nach Antorff gekommen war, dieses seine erste Arbeit sein liesse, dass er zum besten der Jugend einen Catechismum in Frantzösischer Sprache verfertigte, welcher nachmahls in die Niederländische, Lateinische und Spanische Sprache übersetzt worden ist. — Otto Frid. Schütz 1728 (see n° 510) p. 20: ab autore brabantico sermone primum conscriptus, et paulo post in latinum, gallicum et hispanicum sermonem translatus. Langemack (see n° 510) p. 542: ohne Zweifel ist er [Reina's catechism] erst in Frantzösischer Sprache, massen der autor ein Frantzösischer Prediger war, verfertigt, und bald ins Niederländische und Lateinische und endlich auch ins Spanische übersetzt worden. Schultz Jacobi in his Bijdragen, eerste stuk (see n° 513) p. 43. [Reina] gaf er eenen Franschen Catechismus uit, die weldra ook in Nederduitsche, Latijnsche en Spaansche overzettingen uitkwam.

No one says that he has seen the Spanish version, and I think, it never has been printed.

510. 1580. First Latin edition.

This title is given in Otto Frid. Schütz] de vita Davidis Chytræi commentariorum libri duo ultimi. Hamburgi 1728. [STRASSBURG Univ.] p. 20 where is added: anno 1580 . . in lucem editus est, autore, ni fallor, Cassiodoro Reinio. —

This title is given by Gregorius Langemack in his: Histor. catecheticae, | oder | Gesammleter | Nachrichten | Zu | Einer catechetischen Historie | Anderer Theil, || Greiffswald und Stralsuud [sic], | . . . 1733. | Octavo. [BERLIN Royal]. P. 543. The same title, with external variations, in Io. Georgii Walchii Bibliotheca theologica selecta, t. 1. Jenae 1757, p. 464. Neither Langemack nor Walch give place or year of this Latin catechism.

Schütz l. c. p. 20: Vti autor Catechismi in Appendice apologetica editioni latinae Catechismi de A. 1583. suffixa . . . Schütz refers to several passages of the appendix.

Langemack l. c. p. 552: Hierauf schrieb Cassiodorus Reinius, als autor des catechismi, eine apologie desselben, so 1583 einer neuen edition seines catechismi angehängt ist. Of which apology Langemack p. 550 quotes the 60th page.

512. 1580. French edition.

Catechisme, c'est a dire: vne brieue instruction des principauls points de la doctrine Chrestienne, par demandes et responses. Pour l'Eglise d'Anvers qui suit la Confession d'Ausbourg. 1. Pet. 2, 2. Desirez comme enfans n'a gueres naiz, le laiet raisonnable et qui est sans fraude: afin que par iceluy vous croissiez à salut. A Anvers, chez Aernouldt s' Coninx. Anno 1580. Avec privilege. 70 pages, duodecimo.

This title and notice is given by Siegm. Jac. Baumgarten in his Nachrichten von merkwürdigen Büchern, Band 2, Halle 1752, n° MCCXXXIII. 1424, p. 395. He subjoins: Das Privilegium Matthiae ist zu Antwerpen am 25 Apr. 1580 unterschrieben. Die Vorrede sowol als der Catechismus selbst ist am Rande mit sehr zalreicher Anführung von Schriftstellen versehen, aus welchen der Inhalt desselben genommen worden. Nach den gewöhnlichen 5 Hauptstücken des Catechismi wird von der Gewalt der Schlüssel gehandelt, worauf die Haustafel S. 47 etc. und von S. 61 eine Samlung von Gebeten folget . . . Der Verfasser desselben [Catechismi] ist Cassiodorus de Reina gewesen.

Arnoldus de Konink is mentioned in Reina's letter of 17 May 1580.

513. 1580. First Dutch edition.

Korte Onderwysinge van de voornaamste Hoofdstukken der christelycke Leere, op vraage en antwoorde gestelt, also in christelycke kercken en schoolen der Nederduytse Landen, de Confessie van Augsburg togedaan synde, gheleert ende gheoeffent wordt. T'Antwerpen, by Arnout 's Coninx. 1580.

514. 1582. Second Dutch edition.

Catechismus, dat is: Corte anderwysinge, van de vornemste Hooftstukken der christelyker Leere: Op frage ende Antwoort ghestellet. Also in de christelyke Kercken ende scholen der nederduytischen landen, de confessie von Ausborch togedaen synde, gheleert ende gheoeffent wordt. van nious nerrsteijje oversien, verbeteret ende ver-meerdet. T'Antwerpen by Arnout s'Coninx. Anno 1582. Four sheets Octavo.

This title and notice is given by Langemack l. c., who adds p. 543—4: In einem sehr kurtzen Vorbericht wird erinnert, dass zwar viele catechismi gedruckt, aber auch solche, daraus die Jugend und Einfältige mehr Gift als heilsamen [read: heilsamen] Unterricht schöpfen: man hätte diesen catechismus allein auf Gottes Wort gegründet, und würde Christus Jesus theils als ihr Erlöser, theils als ihr Vortreter, ut meritum et exemplum vorgetragen. In einem andern kurtzen Vorbericht, von Eintheilung der Zehen Gebote, wird erinnert, dass in der ersten edition die 10. Gebote, nach Art der Evangelischen Kirchen in Strassburg, und anderer eingetheilet worden, in dieser andern edition aber das Gebot von den Bildern weggelassen worden: da man sich beruft theils auf die christliche Freyheit; theils auf den gelehrten Juden R. Aben Esra, der denjenigen widerspricht, so aus dem ersten Gebote zwey machen; theils weil es auch Calvinus selbst für einen unnöthigen Streit achte. In den ersten dreyen Blättern, stehen die sechs Haupt-Stücke des catechismi, ohne alle Auslegung: darauf folget eine kurtze und feine Erklärung. This is therefore the second edition of the Dutch version.

GÆTTINGEN Univ. In the copy of VIENNA Court p. 553—736 are wanting.

The history of the Augsburg Confession by David Chytræus had first been edited in German in 1576 in Rostock, a second time in 1576—77 in the same town, again at Frankfort o. M. 1577 and 1580. (Feverlini Bibliotheca symbolica, ed.
Riederer. Norimbergæ 1768, p. 73 f.) But he had written it first in Latin, and the Latin manuscript was edited in 1578 in Frankfort o. M.; with a preface of Matthias Ritter, Reina's friend (see here p. 180 f.). It was this Latin edition [a copy is in my possession] which was translated into French, as appears from Le Cop's Corollarium. Le Cop added the Apology of the A. C. from the edition of 1531, following the wish expressed by Chytræus himself in a letter to Schlüsselburg 18 July 1581: Historiam Confessionis Augustanæ Gallica lingua isthic exprimi, nescio an lætari potius vel dolere debeam. Non dubito enim Calvinistas hac ratione provocat-os, suam quoque Neostadianam Historiam Gallica lingua publicaturos esse. Et ad meum libellum Apologiam primam in quarto excusam Anno 1531. adiungi versam in Gallicum sermonem, et Adversariorum confutationem omitti, malim. Sed hæc Deo committo. (Schlüsselburgii studium posthumum, p. 225. Compare here p. 181.) The Confutation papistique is, however, not omitted by Le Cop. On Nov. 25. 1581, Chytraeus writes to Schlüsselburg (l. c. p. 228): Quod confutationem Adversariorum in Hist; Conf: Aug: omisit, & Apologiam primam, ex editione anni 1531. in quarto adjungitis: valde mihi gratum. Exemplar Gallicum in officina absolutum ad me mittetis.

Luc Le Cop, who at the end calls himself a Savoyard, is possibly identical with Lucas Copin, on whom the following notice is found in Gaullieur's Typogr. Genevoise. 1855, p. 151. from the registres du Consistoire of Geneva, 6 Febr. 1570: Lucas Copin est renvoyé par Messieurs. pour avoir abusé en ses études de plusieurs livres prophanes, comme Rabelex et Catulle. Pour laquelle faute lui a été la Cène interdite. Et, au reste, Messieurs sont priés de lui ordonner de se retirer de la ville, avec injonction, s'il ne peut être entretenu en bon chemin dans la maison paternelle, qu'il soit réduit à prison en lieu propre, sans manquement d'aucuns deniers.

Otto Frid. Schütz, de vita Davidis Chytræi commentarior. lib. secundus Hamburgi 1722, p. 350: De qua versione gallica, autore Cassiodoro Reinio, Ecclesiae Lutheranae gallicae, quae Antwerpiae erat, Ministro primo ita Chytraeus A. 1581 ad Schlüsselburgium ... But the passages quoted do not contain anything about Reina as translator of the Historia Augustanae Confessionis, nor is there anything in that letter that could in the least justify such a conclusion, the only words on Reina, occurring there, being those which I have extracted above p. 181. Schütz l. c. says of the book of Chytraeus on the Augsburg Confession: si Abbat Langlet de Fresnoy (note: In Catalogo Historicorum p. 49. edit. german. Mencken.) habenda fides, in Gallicum sermonem conversus et A. 1583. in 8. Antverpiae editus est. But the Catalogue des principaux historiens. Nouv. ed. par J. B. Mencke. Lps. 1714. P. 46 (not 49) says: David Chytraeus Histoire de la Confession d'Augsbourg in 4. Anvers 1582. And also Lenglet du Fresnoy, Méthode pour étudier l'hist. Nouv. éd. t. X. Paris 1772. p. 304 gives for that book: Anvers, 1582. in 4. Baumgarten, Nachrichten von merkwürdigen Büchern. 2 Band. Eilftes Stück. Halle 1752. describes the edition of 1582, and says that the notice of Schütz: 1583. in 8. autore Reinio „scheinet auf gegenwärtige erste Ausgabe der copischen Übersetzung zu gehen, die gedachtem Geschichtschreiber unbekant gewesen.“ J. G. Walch, Bth. theol. selecta, t. 1, 1757, p. 328: Schutzius .. memorat Cassiodori Reinii versionem gallicam historiae huius, publicae luci expositam Antwerp. MDLXXXIII. 8. quae tamen eadem esse videtur cum interpretatione a Copo adornata.

Among Wiffen's ms. notices concerning Reina I found the following: 1563 October. At Antwerp under the name of Luc le Cop. (Fardes d'Audience. Bruxelles N° 273). Rahlenbeck l'Inq. et la réf. p. 33, and he confirmed this in conversation with P. C. Van der Elst that this was stated in the report n° 273. Whatever may turn out to have been reported in 1563 on a pseudonym of Reina, Luc le Cop, the translator of the History of the A. C., must be a different person from Reina.

It is, however, not improbable that Reina cooperated in the preface of the elders and deputies, in which Rahlenbeck l. c. 1857, p. 93 f. recognizes ses idées et son style.

VIENNA Court. Without maps of Congo and of St. Helena. The map of Congo is registered by T. O. Weigel (Serapeum 1845 p. 90) and by Brunet (1355), as belonging to this edition.

The auction Catalogue of Serge Sobolewsky's library, Leipzig Berlin Londres 1873, p. 245, has a copy Avec 14 planches; avant la planche 11 un titre impr. „Folgen noch etliche Figuren etc.“ En outre conforme à la description de Brunet. But the copy has also the appendix of 1625.

530. 1609. Second edition.

The description of the first edition is also applicable to the second. The differences in the title are the following: ed. 2. has no comma after vbersetzt, writes vnd before Kunstreichen, has Mat- | thias Becker instead of Joh. Saur, and is dated M. D. C. IX. In the special title of the prints likewise M. D. C. IX. and Matthias Becker. Accessional are the prints 11—14, Cc IV—Dd III, where Ende; follows a blank leaf. Three maps: Egypt in two parts, Congo, St. Helena. Folio, layers of two sheets.

STUTTGART Royal. In the STRASSBURG University copy the title and the map of St. Helena are wanting. To a neat, but incomplete duplicate of the Royal library at Stuttgart, which I bought, I united, from another incomplete copy, the dedication and the preface: only the map of St. Helena is wanting.

The Appendix to Congo is not translated by Reina, it is a German original by the traveller: Anhang der Beschreibung desz Königreichs Congo. Innhaltend Fünff Schiffarten Samuel Brauns [a 1616 f.] ... von jhme selbst ... beschrieben [in German], vnd mit ... Kupfferstücken gezieret, durch ... Johann Theodors de Bry Seeligen gemeinen Erben. 531. 1628. Remodelled.

Title-leaf in a frame: Orientalisches Indien ... Gedruckt zu Franckfurt am Mäyn, bey Caspar Rötell, In Verlegung Wilhelm Fitzers. Anno M. DC. XXVIII.

P. 1: Kurtze Sumärische Beschreibung der Schiffarth ausz der Statt Lisebona, in das Königreich Congo .. Runs to p. 40. It is Reina's text, revised and abbreviated. One map: tabula regni Congo, identical with that of the 1597 edition. Twelve of the appended prints of 1609 are inserted in the text. Figure 9, the zebra, is left out. Three prints, representing trees, are added, p. 2. 14. 23. A map is added on p. 5. Besides a view of St. Helena on a separate open folio.

The Latin translation is not by Reina: Americæ pars VIII. Three voyages of Drake, and those of Candish, Raleigh, Keymis. Primo quidem Anglicana lingua partim ab æquitibus ipsis, partim ab aliis, qui hisce itineribus interfuerunt, sparsim consignata: Iam verò in vnum Corpus redacta. & in Latinum Sermone conuersa, auctore M. VIENNA Court, three copies; two with a small map, on p. 78 (end), of Candish's travels, one of these two copies with painted maps and initials; the third copy without that small map. I possess a copy without the map of Guiana. Tabulæ & imagines ad septimam et octavam Americæ partem . . . sumptibus dictorum Theodorici de Bry viduæ & filiorum. Anno M. D. XCIX. VIENNA Court, three copies, one painted.

For this Latin translation a series of expurgations is found in the Index of Sandomal y Rojas 1612, Palermo reprint 1628, Expurg. p. 34. Most of them are applicable to the German translation likewise. In Drake's last voyage p. 41, Germ. p. 45 is to be cancelled that he died in the Lord, and that the English clergymen held an efficient sermon; in the second voyage to Guiana several passages are to be suppressed which blame Romanism and the Spaniards and which praise the gospel and the English government, p. 74. 81. 82. 89. 90. 91. 99, Germ. p. 9. 10. 15. 16. 23. 24. 30.

Reina's translation, published in 1599, of those English explorations was, as Reina states, made from a Dutch translation of the English originals. The introduction to the edition of 1848 of Sir Walter Raleigh's Guiana says that the first two editions of the original appeared in 1596, the next in Hakluyt's voyages in 1599 (later ones in Birch's Works of Raleigh 1751, in Cayley's Life of Raleigh 1805, in the Works 1829), gives the title of de Bry's edition in Latin 1599, mentions the existence of a German translation in de Bry's collection, of two translations in Dutch, one in 4^{to}, the other published in 1619, and that a French translation appeared in 1722 in the second volume of F. Correal's Voyages. I may add that two editions of Correal's Voyages appeared in that year, one in Paris, the other in Amsterdam, both containing in vol. 2. Raleigh's Guiana, together with the second voyage to Guiana, performed and written by Lawrence Keymis, published London 1596. As for the Dutch, List d' Francke's Antiquarisches Verzeichniss, Leipzig 1879, p. 11, n° 202 has: Candish en Fr. Drake, Beschryvinge van de overtreffelijcke ende wydtvermaerde Zee-vaerdt van Th. Candish van 1586—1588. Hier noch by ghevoecht de voyagie van Fr. Draeck en J. Haukens naer West-Indien. ghepretendeert Panama etc. anno 1595. Amsterd., M. Colijn, 1617. 4. obl. mit gothischen Lettern. Reina used an earlier Dutch edition; it is not clear whether he found all the voyages, which he translates, united in one Dutch work.

The following seems to be disconnected with Reina. Kurtze Wunderbare Beschreibung ... Guianae ... So ... 1594. 1595 vnnnd 1596 von ... Walthero Raleigh ... besucht worden: Erstlich auss befehl seiner Gnaden in zweyen Büchlein beschrieben. darauss Jodocus Hondius, ein schöne Land Taffel, mit einer Niederländischen erklärung gemacht, Jetzt aber ins Hochdeutsch gebracht, vnd auss vnterschiedlichen Authoribus erkläret. The fifth part of Hulsius' Reisen. I take this from Catalog Nr. 31 von A. Stuber's Antiquariat in Würzburg 1880. P. 39, n° 915. A second edition, not indicated as such, Noribergæ, Impensis Levini Hulsii. M. DCI. 3 sheets 4^{to}, with map and plates (the plates wanting in the copy of VIENNA Court). Brunet has 2^d and 3^d 1603, 4th 1612, 5th 1663. Fidelis Butsch (Kuczyński), Augsburg, Antiquarische Blätter Nr. 25. 1882. p. 33, n. 719 has the ed. of 1612 with 21 pages; Brunet gibt nur 18 an. Ihm fehlen 3 SS. Vorrede. The introduction of 1848 of Raleigh's Guiana mentions an abridgment in Latin by Hulsius, Nuremberg, with five illustrations, and in German by the widow Hulsius, Frankfort o. Job 39.

from Latin.

Por auentura daras fortaleza al caualllo
o cercaras a su cuello el relincho.
Por auentura le despertaras assi como langostas?
La gloria de sus narizes espanto.
Con la vña caua la tierra gozase osadamente:
sale al encuentro alos armados.
Menosprecia el pavor
y no se da vencido al cuchillo.
Sobre el sonara el aljaba, semblara la lança y el escudo.
Heruendo y bramando sorue la tierra:
ni estima en nada que resuene el sonido de la trôpeta.
Quando oye la bozina dize vah.

Grypho 1550.

Has tu dado la fuerça al caualllo?
Podras le tu espantar como á vna langosta?
pues que el pavor se le asienta muy bien en sus narizes?
Caua con sus pies, y se alegra con grand fortaleça y loçania,
y se va desapoderado contra las armas.
Riese señorialmente de las cosas peligrosas
y espantubles, sin auer d' ellas temor, y no se retrae por vna espada.
Quando rechiña contra el vna aljaua,
y relumbran los hierros de las picas y lanças, el esta hiruiendo y bramando, lleno de corage, y haze volar en alto los poluos con su inflammado brio, ni se le da esta, por el sonido de las trom-petas.
Al son de las trompetas da saltos y se regocija.
y puede oler y sentir desde lexos el combate,
y el ruydo y las voces de los capitanes.

y en parte profetizamos.

Mas cuando haya venido lo que es perfecto,
lo que es en parte, será abolido.

hablaba como niño, sentía como niño,

y pensaba como niño:
mas cuando fui ya hombre hecho, dí de mano las cosas de niño.

Nuevo Pacto 1858.

Si yo hablare las lenguas [extrañas] de
i [las] de los mensajeros [celestiales],
i no tuviere amor,*
seré como bronce que suena,
ó un címbalo que haee ruido;

2 i si tuviere el [don de] profecía, i supiere todos los misterios, i toda la ciencia,
i si tuviere toda la fé, tanto que
pudiere remover montes,
i no tuviere amor, no [seré] nada.

3 I si [yo] distribuyere todo lo que tengo, para sustentar [á otros],
i si entregare mi cuerpo para ser quemado,

i no tuviere amor, de nada aprovecharé.

4 El amor tiene paciencia [con otros], i es benigno:
el amor no tiene envidia:
el amor no obra precipitadamente: no se envanece:

5 no se comporta indecorosamente:
no busca [solo] su propio [interes]:
no se irrita: no pone [á otros] en cuenta

6 no se goza de la iniquidad,*
mas se goza con la verdad:

7 sobrelleva todo [lo que puede], cree todo [lo que es creible],
espera todo [lo que puede esperar], soporta con paciencia todo [lo que es soportable].

pero [en cuanto á los dones espirituales], sea [el de] la profecía, se le pondrá fin;
sea [el de] las lenguas [extrañas], cesará;
sea [el de] la ciencia, se le pondrá fin.

i [solo] en parte tenemos la profecía;

entónces á lo que [es] en parte se
pondrá fin.

pequeñuelo,
discurría como pequeñuelo;
pero desde que he llegado á ser hombre,
he puesto fin á las cosas del pequeñuelo.

Notes: 1 esto es caridad. 6 ó engaño.
quoted for omission of entónces.

The specimens copied for me from the Escorial M.S.S. 2—8, are not printed here literally as they were written. With the modern use, introduced already by Juan de Valdés, I have disintricated the confusion between i and j, and between u and v (not writing vn sieruo, mjo iusto). I have omitted the cedilla before e and i, and have written ç before consonants, when the pronunciation required it (connosçré). Also have I written out what was abbreviated, wherever there was no doubt, for instance que instead of q̃, n instead of the stroke over a vowel. I have left such a stroke where it stands for an original m, the pronunciation varying in this case between m and n. I often have written ñ for nn. R, when initial sound, was sometimes written rr (or with the same meaning: R), and Isrrael occurred in the same verse with Israel; I have written a simple r in these cases. The conjunction y appears in this form only once, Esc. 8, Judges 5, 6; generally, in M.S. 8 not less than in 2—5 and 7, as something like τ; sometimes, in the beginning of a sentence (before vowels as well as before consonants), it is written Et (2—4. 7) and E (the only instances of the latter are: 3 E el, 5 E crescio. E el. E al, 8 E es); in Esc. 6, however, e is the usual form, but there occurs also τ. I have everywhere written e, except the above mentioned single y. I have added the apostrophe in s'alegren, and the sign of crasis in quès quèl sobrèl, also in lèra = la era. The accents and the punctuation are mine, of course.

In the same way I have treated the first psalm printed from an Escorial M.S. by Rdr. de Castro and by Eguren, and the same psalm translated by Arragel, published by Eguren.

The other texts taken from printed books are reprinted without alterations; only such abbreviations are written out at length, as could not give any occasion to doubt.

In the annotations concerning the differences, all orthographical variations are generally neglected, and so are even such differences as y, e or τ, and the change of f into h (fijo, hijo &c).

The texts of Valdés are regulated according to his orthography, in about the same way, as in my edition of his Mercurio, nor did I follow the punctuation of Perez's edition of the commentary on 1 Corinthians.

The extracts from the Covdisya de Salomo 1617, the Jewish Vienna Bible of 1813—16, the N. T. of Corfu 1829, the Constantinopolitan Bible 1872—77 are transcribed here from rabbinical characters into Roman ones. As those texts have only the letters, without additional signs for the vowels, some indefiniteness remains about the pronunciation of certain vowels. In my transcription: ḏ (in the N. T. of Corfu) is a softer d. The g has everywhere the same sound as before a. ḡ represents the Gimel accompanied by a diacritical sign, which Hebrew letter thus distinguished is used by the Jews as well for the Castilian ch as for some Castilian j (for the latter now not between vowels in the interior of words); notwithstanding this identity of designation, the Spanish Jews in Turkey, Rumania, Serbia, Vienna (as far as my experience reaches) pronounce ch wherever the Castilians pronounce it and in the same way as the Castilians, and on the other hand they pronounce the sound of English j in just, where the Spaniards write j or (before e and i) the equivalent g. The j of my transcription sounds like this letter in French (in the Covdisya de Salomo it was perhaps still pronounced like English j in major). x like English sh. z soft as in French. Instead of ll ñ they write ly ny. I have left the ly only where the Spaniards have a simple y (lyo olyeron); this ly is a wrong mode of writing practised by such Jews who do not even pronounce the l in the genuine Spanish ly, written ll (lyerimos Isaiah 53, 6 Vienna, is = yerimos. Constantinople, both pronounced yerimos; = yerramos Esc. 3; it is the perfect tense erramos). The rabbinical y (י) replaces the i of the Spanish orthography between a preceding consonant and a following vowel, which belongs to the same syllable: byen = bien; guiso = juicio. The accents in my transcriptions are added by me.

Usóz in his Isaiah and Pratt in his Psalms have arranged the text in parallelisms, as it is usually called, and Lawrence has adopted this method for all the poetical books of the Old Testament. In the foregoing synopsis the portions from the Old Testament are printed in that way. In Judges 5, 6 I have three lines whilst Lawrence has four, in 2 Sam. 1, 21 in one place my division of the lines is different from his. In Job we agree. In Psalm 1 I arranged all specimens according to Pratt's division of lines, dividing, however, his first line into two. In Isaiah 52. 53 I give Usóz's division, except 53, 2 where I take some words into the preceding line, and v. 9 where I unite two lines of his into one; the other translations, which, all were written like prose, have been arranged by me accordingly.

In the Escorial M.S.S., so far as the above specimens from the Old Test. are concerned, there are no alinéas in the chapters; the verses are not numbered, but generally marked by a §, which, however, sometimes is wanting or misplaced. Esc. 6 has no such paragraphs.

The Epistolas y Evangelios 1506 f. do not mark verses nor sections. In Grypho's Job no numeration nor distinction of verses, but alinéas for sections; my specimen is a whole section; in Grypho's Psalm each verse begins a new line, but the verses are not numbered. In the Ferrara version 1553. 1611. 1630, in the Psalms a fresh line for each verse; in Isaiah the division between two verses is marked in 1553 by a star, in 1611 and 1630 by a full stop, no alinéas nor numbers for the verses. Perez in the Psalms numbers the verses and begins each in a fresh line. Reina does the same throughout the Bible; he indicates sections and gives summaries and notes, and Valera follows him. I have extracted in the Specimens those notes which affect the translation. In the two editions of Luis de Leon's Job used by me, each verse begins a line, but no such division is made in the interior of a verse.

Not less disagreeable, than to be obliged to read poetry printed as if it were prose, is it to read prose moulded into verses, as the prose works of the Bible are generally printed. Among the Spanish Bibles the N. T. of Enzinas, that of Perez, that of Corfu 1829, the Nuevo Pacto of 1858 f., the Gospels of St. John and St. Luke, Toulouse 1863. 1865, Pratt's Matthew 1877 and the Judeo-Spanish N. T. Constantinople 1877 print the text in the same way in which prose is printed usually, leaving a line unfinished only before a new section which generally consists of several or many verses or of the whole chapter. In Matthew 5 Pratt begins a new line with each Bienaventurados, except the last one v. 11, and this not without reason, for there is indeed a poetical parallelism in the beginning verses of the Sermon on the Mount, and the last Bienaventurados introduces a sentence explaining the last but one (I should, however, notwithstanding parallelize the ninth blessing with the other eight). My arrangement of those blessings and of 1 Cor. 13 in the foregoing synopsis has only the practical aim to facilitate the comparison.

Valdés has Mat. 5, 1—12 as one undivided section; in 1 Cor 13 he makes eight sections, each followed by its explanation; no numbers (or letters) for verses or sections. Perez, who, like Enzinas, has neither alinéas for verses nor numeration of them, marks sections by marginal letters, in 1 Cor. 13 four such. Reina, who begins each verse with a fresh line and numbers the verses, often indicates sections by numbers in his summaries, and by paragraph signs in the text, not, however, in 1 Cor. 13; all this is repeated in Valera's Bible of 1602, and in the N. T. of 1625. In the N. T. of 1596, with numbered verses in alinéas and with indications of sections in the summaries, not in the text, 1 Cor. 13 is divided in two parts, the second beginning with v. 4. The N. T. Corfu 1829 has no divisions in the chapters, besides the verses, which, however, run on as in ordinary prose works (the edition has a full stop where my transcription has a comma, and a double stop: where I have placed a full stop). The Nuevo Pacto 1858 and the N. T. Constantinople 1877 have sections beginning with fresh lines in the interior of the chapters. Such sections in the originals I have in my Specimens marked by big capital letters.

In Esc. 2 and 6 the translation of 1 Cor. 13 is interrupted by explanations, which I have omitted, except a few short additions. In Esc. 2 there are many § signs, placed without system.

For a new revision of the Spanish Bible all Spanish translations and revisions hitherto made ought to be as carefully consulted as possible. In examining 1 Cor. 13 I found no improvement whatever to propose which could not be taken from one of the various editions in Spanish existing, except that instead of todos los misterios y toda la ciencia one better would strictly follow the more forcible and elegant position of the words in the original: los misterios todos y toda la ciencia. —

The following short notices, taken by the way, concerning translations of the Bible and of parts of the Bible into Spanish, different from Reina's version and from the revisions of it, may, although insufficient, nevertheless be found of some use, until a more complete catalogue appear.

Some bibliographical and other works are referred to by abbreviations in the following way. Ant., *Vet.*¹: Nicolas Antonio's Bibliotheca Hispana Vetus, first ed. 1696, simply Vet.: 2^d ed. 1788; Ant. without Vet. means his *Bbl. Of Bagster's publication The Bible of Every Land I use the enlarged edition with preface of 1860; the first was published in 1851, I should think.

STUTTG. means (as STUTTGART Royal throughout my work), the Royal Public library at Stuttgart, VIENNA the Court library here.

I did not intend to register the translations in poetry, nor the paraphrases. Some few such are, however, mentioned here, for certain reasons. —

The specimens of Escorial M.S.S. in my preceding synopsis are taken from copies made for me in that library by Dr. Baist, from seven mss. now numbered 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8.; the numbers in dC are the same, except that he does not expressly mention the number of the ms. which he describes (I, 434 f.) between nos. 4 and 6, and that in his time (II, 676) the present n° 2 was no numerado.

The present n° 2, a ms. of about the end of the XIV. cent. (Baist), is, according to dC I, 426 f., the fifth volume of the General Historia de la Biblia y de los historias de los gentiles, which contains the earliest translation of the whole Bible into Spanish of which we know, made from the Latin of the Vulgate for king Alfonso X (who reigned 1252—1284). Psalm 1 of this translation, vol. 3, has been printed above from Eguren's Memoria descriptiva de los códices notables conservados en los archivos eclesiásticos de España, Mdrd 1859, p. 27; from dC, who I, 422 f. has the same, with orthographical differences, I have taken the forms nusimiento, fas, jaysio, as Baist too has s for z; I should think, however, that the M.S.S. mean z. From the fifth volume I have given 1 Corinthians 13.

To judge from 1 Cor. 13, n° 6 (Proverbs — Apocalypse) copies the text of n° 2, with unessential alterations. Isaiah is translated from the Latin likewise. According to Baist, the M.S. is of sæc. XV, according to dC I, 437 f. of the beginning of the XIV. cent.

From the Hebrew: Isaiah in n° 5 (Isaiah — Paralip.), dC 434—437: ms. of the beginning of the XV. cent., Baist: end of XIV. cent.; in n° 4 (Genesis — Maccab., dC 433 f.), Baist: ms. XV. cent., — one of these two mss. seems to be a revision of the other; and in n° 3 (Genesis — Maccab.), a different translation from that in the just mentioned two mss., dC 428—433: obra de algun Judio converso, Escorial catalogue: written at the end of XIV. cent., Baist: gegen 1440.

In n° 8 (Lev. 6 — Psalm 71), de C 438. col. 2: ms. end of XIV. cent., Baist: XV. cent., the Psalms have the inscription: Esta es la translacion del psalterio que fizo maestro hermanel aleman segund cuemo esta en el obraygo. I printed the first Psalm at the end of my edition of Constantino's sermons (see here n° 207).

Judges and Samuel in n° 8 are translated from the Latin. They are translated from the Hebrew in n° 7 (Genesis 8 — Reyes), written according to Baist in the XV. cent., to dC 438 in the beginning of that century.

Another Esc. ms., numbered: 17, written in the beginning of s. XIV, segun parece, contains Genesis 8 — Reyes. dC I, 438 f. dC II, 675 f. registers several other M.S. folio volumes of the Spanish Bible in the Escorial; one, containing the first part of it, he ascribes to the XIII. cent., all the others to the XV. .

In 1577 the Inquisitor General reported to the King about the propriety of keeping in the Escorial library a Spanish version of the Bible; the original reports

dC I, 439: the Gospels and the Epistles of St. Paul translated into Spanish by Dr. Martin de Lucena el Macabeo por mandado de Iñigo Lopez de Mendoza (who lived 1398—1458). Esc. M.S.

Eguren (whose Escorial Bibles 2. 3. 4. 5 seem to be Baist's Esc. 3. 4. 5. 7) notices p. 8f. the Codice biblico 2 de la Real Academia de la Historia, siglo XV, containing the Prophets and the Maccabees, in Latin and in Castilian, this latter by a Rabbi Salamon.

Luis de Usóz i Rio wrote a pamphlet with the following title: Siglo XV. — Año de 1430. Notizia de Biblia de aquel tiempo en Códice ms. en vitela, que hoy existe como propiedad vinculada; en la casa del Duque de Alba. Text, beginning on the second leaf, p. 1—30, where it is dated: Madrid 26. 3.º m. del año de 1847. [B—r.] Printed in San Sebastian by Ignazio Ramon Baroja, as is stated in a ms. notice by Wiffen. The tract of Usóz has been translated, with some omissions, into English by John T. Betts, in the Friends' Quarterly Examiner N° XI. Seventh Month. 1869; this article has also been issued separately [B—r]. Usóz states that this translation of the Old Testament from the Hebrew into Spanish was made by Rabbi Moses Arragel who finished his work in 1430. In a postscript, Usóz relates, that, after writing his Notizia, he learned that en una obra del Sr. Canónigo Villanueva, sobre los Libros Santos; se habla de la obra de Arrajél. He certainly means Joaq. Lorenzo Villanueva's Tratado de la leccion de la sagrada escritura en lenguas vulgares, Valencia 1791, of which I only know what Villanueva relates in his Vida literaria, Londres 1825, I, 104—5. When Usóz wrote that tract, the ms. was in Liria, in the palace of the Duke of Alba; Eguren, who treats of the same and gives specimens from it, p. 26 f. cf. p. 5 (without mentioning Usóz nor Villanueva), calls it the only Spanish M.S. Bible in Madrid.

Baist mentioned to me in 1878 a Spanish Bible, M.S. of the XV. century, in the library of the Duque de Osuna (Est. bl. 1. P. — iij — 1), which he, however, had not seen.

In the beginning of the XV. century, a converted Jew, Juan el Viejo, wrote a Declaracion del salmo LXXII, of which Amador de los Ríos, Estudios sobre los Judios de España, Madrid 1848, p. 433 gives a specimen which contains some Bible-verses in Spanish. — The translation of the 43. Psalm from the Latin, by Alonso de Cartagena, who died a sexagenarian in 1456, being bishop of Burgos, has been published by dC I, 248.

The first printed Bible in a popular language of Spain, Ferrer's Bible, arramancada de lengua Latina en la nostra Valenciana, published in 1478 in Valencia, is linguistically not a Spanish Bible, the Valencian dialect not belonging to the Spanish branch of the Romance languages, but to that branch of them which has the scientific name of Occitanic, and includes also the Provençal.

The psalter in Spanish from the Latin Vulgate, apparently printed before 1500. Le Long 362; he thinks, the version may have been made in time of Alfonso X or rather of Juan II of Castile after 1406.

In 1490 appeared in Zamora: Los Evangelios desde Adviento hasta la dominica in Passione, by Fr. Juan Lopez. [Ant., Vet. II, 330.]

A Spanish translation of the Gospels for the Mohamedans, probably those of Granada, is said to have been issued at the end of the 15. century. [See De prima typographiæ Hispanicæ ætate specimen auctore Raymundo Diosdado Caballero. Romæ 1793. P. 84 f.]

Vita Christi Cartuxano. Compluti 1502 [Ant.]. Sevilla 1530—31 [Tickn. 209]. Primera parte. Sevilla 1537. Prohemio de fray Amb. montesino sobre la interpretacion del vita xpi cartuxano [Ludolphi de Saxonia] dela lengua latina enla castellana endereçado to Ferdinand and Isabella, por cuyo mandamiento lo interprete [read interpretó]. He says there: Contiene todo el testo delos quatro euangelistas con hermosura de concordia. The Bible words are printed with larger types, porque se reconozcan sin pena las palabras diuinas entre las humanas. Later editions Sevilla 1551 [Ant. Of the copy in VIENNA the first vol. in wanting]. 1623 [VIENNA]. Enlarged 1627 [Ant.]. I do not know whether this work is meant in the following passage of the preface of the translation, published in 1511 at Zaragoza, of Jerome's Vitæ patrum: Despues de la translacion que fezimos poco ha de los Evangelios (this passage is extracted by Raym. Diosd. Caballero l. c. p. 93, who does not name the author. Probably W. I. Knapp was thinking of the same passage read in a later edition, when he wrote: we were told by the hispanicizer of Jerome's Vitæ patrum „in 1536, that he had long before translated the New Testament into Spanish.“ See Knapp's article on The Ticknor Spanish Library, in the New Englander for May 1880, p. 395).

The Pericopes for the whole year from the Epistolas y Euangelios were printed in Spanish in 1506 in Seville [VIENNA].

Some years later Ambrosio de Montesino, of the order of St. Francis revised and edited the Spanish Ev. y Ep. He says in the Epistola prohemial to king Ferdinand, dated Toledo, in the monastery S. Juan de los Reyes, 20 May 1512 (I copy from the edition of 1558): . . este libro y suma delos sanctos Euangelios y Epistolas principales de todo el año, dominicales y festiuales. La qual obra vuestra alteza mando, a mi su mas leal y antiguo predicador & sieruo, reformar, restaurar, y reducir ala verdadera interpretacion & integridad della, segun el romance de Castilla, porque estana muy corrrumpida, confusa, y disforme, assi por la impropriedad y torpedad delos vocablos que tenia. como por la confusion y escuridad delas sentencias. La qual en algunos passos mas parecia scriptura de barbaros que de fieles. Lo qual pudo ser parte por inaduertencia del auctor, y parte por la negligencia y error delos impressores. . . . he mucho trabajado por la [viz. obra] limar, quitandole todos los defectos que tenia con gran vigilancia & diligencia, & si algunos vicios enella se fallaren de alguna parte o letras no sera a mi causa, mas por error delos que agora la imprimieron o adelante la imprimieren. Montesino's revision was several times reprinted by Steels in Antwerp: 1543 (Ev. y ep.) [VIENNA. AUGSBURG City], 1544 (Ep. y Eu.) [VIENNA], 1558 (Ep. y ev.) [B—r]; that of 1543 does not name Montesino, that of 1544 has on the title: dela correçion de F. Ambrosio Montesino. which notice is repeated in 1558.

Revised by Romanus Vallezilla: Barcelona 1601 [Ant.], Madrid 1603, Barcelona 1608 [Le Long 363]. Epistolas y evangelios. Compuesto por el Reu. Padre Fray Ambrosio de Montesino. Agora nvemente visto y corregido, y puesto conforme al orden y estilo del Missal y rezo Romano de n. muy s. Padre Papa Pjo V. por el R. P. Fray Roman de Vallezillo, de la Orden de S. Benito. 1615 Madrid. Colophon 1614. In the preface of Roman de Vallezillo, dated 1586: vn libro de las Epistolas, Euangelios, y Sermones de todos los tiempos del año, y solenidades del, y Santos que se celebran: el qual en tiempos passados (como fue año de mil y quinientos y doze) sacò a luz el doctiss. y muy religioso Padre fray Ambrosio Montesino, de la Orden del glor. san Francisco: limandole c. algunos vocablos, que la antigüedad de aquel tiempo permitia, y restituyendole en la propiedad de los que aora se vsan: por mandado de la Magestad Real del Rey don Fernando n. señor de tan glor. mem., cuyo Predicador fue: para que restituydo el dicho libro en language Castellano y propriedad en que el le puso, con su buena Christiandad y zelo de religion, pudiesse salir a luz, para el seruicio de Dios y aprouechamiento de las almas. Y yo atendiendo a esto . . . he puesto mi diligencia para que . . . de nuevo salga a luz: ponicado (como he puesto) de mi parte el trabajo que ha sido necessario . . . limando y corrigiendo el dicho libro de muchos errores y emiendas [sic], que por inaduertencia de los Impressores tenia la impresion antigua. From the date of this preface one would think that an edition of Montesino's Evangelios y epistolas by Vallezillo was made in 1586 or soon after. (Wadding, Scriptores ordinis minorum, Romae 1650, p. 16 has under Ambr. Montes.: Commentarios in epistolas, & Euangelia quadragesimalia. Madriti 1615., but he does not mention the translation of the Ep. y Ev. for the whole year).

In the Dialogo de la lengua 1533 (fol. 87), Pacheco is surprized that Juan de Valdés does not mention among the well written Spanish books Las epistolas y evangelios del año, Los Cartuxanos, Las vidas de los padres que compuso san Jeronimo and others which he thinks deserve that praise. Valdés answers: Por ventura yo no alabo ninguno dèssos, porque no los he leído.

Prohibited in the Index Sandoval y Rojas, Madrid 1612, Palermo reprint 1628, p. 11: Fr. Ambrosio de Montesinos, Epistolas i Euangelios para todo el año, quanto à los que no tienen explicacion del Autor; pero permitense los que la tienen, quitados los demas. But in the Appendix secunda, a. 1614 f., to the Index Madrid 1614, Palermo 1628, are prohibited by the Spanish Inquisition: Ambrosio de montesino, l'epistole, & euang. di tutto l'anno in lingua volgare, cosi quelle c'hanno le annotationi come quelle, che non l'hanno.

(Fr. Ambrosio Montesino's spiritual Cancionero, with dedication to king Ferdinand, dated Toledo 1508, has been reprinted in Rivadeneyra's Bibliot. de aut. Esp., vol. 35. 1855).

Job from the Latin is contained in Los morales de sant Gregorio, two volumes, Sevilla, Cromberger, 1527. [VIENNA]. Prologo of the translator to Alonso Manrique, archbishop of Seville, undated. Colophon of the second vol.: Esta traduction delos morales fue hecha por el licenciado Alūso aluarez d' Toledo enel año d'. M. d. xiiij [= 1514]. Fueron impressos . . . 1527. No hint of a previous edition. Ant. registers two editions, Seville, Cromberger, 1513, ad Alph. Manrique Antistitem Hispal., and Seville, apud Ioannem Barreda de Salamanca 1534.

The psalter in Spanish, with Royal Portuguese printing license of September 1529, probably printed at Lisbon. [Raym. Diosd. Caballero l. c. p. 85 f.]. Most likely from Latin.

Between 1533 and 1541 Juan de Valdés translated from the original languages the Psalms, then the Epistles of St. Paul (not including that to the Hebrews) and of St. Peter, then the Gospels, of which he completed St. Matthew and he certainly began St. Mark. Only the following parts of Valdés' translations of Holy Scriptures are hitherto known to us. The Psalms and St. Matthew, edited by myself in 1880. The epistles to the Romans and the first to the Corinthians had been printed already in 1556 and 57, reprinted 1856 (see here n° 84 f.).

Fernando Jarava translated from Latin: Job with the psalms del Oficio de difuntos. Amberes 1540 [dC I, 499]. Las Liciones de Job, con los nueve Psalmos, que con ellas se cantan en las horas de los finados trasladadas en Castellano. Antuerpie 1550 [Ant.]. Los siete salmos penitenciales, el cantico de los canticos, los lamentaciones de Jeremias. ib. 1543 [dC ib.]. The same ib. 1546 [PSalvá 946]. Los siete psalmos penitenciales. Los quinze psalmos d'el canticumgrado. Las lamentaciones de Hieremias. Lo qual todo la señora Leonor Reyna de Francia mando assi traduzir y componer al maestro Hernando Jaraua su capellan. Anvers 1556 [PSalvá ib. Ant. I, 713 under Joannes de Jarava, Medicus, after other writings issued 1546—57: Neonon & ex Bibliis, cum eo tempore liceret. Los Psalmos Penitenciales, el Canticum Graduum, y las Lamentaciones traducidas en lengua vulgar]. — The Psalmos Penitenciales, y el Canticum grado, y las Lamentaciones, romançadas por el Maestro Jaraua, are prohibited in the Antwerp Index of 1570; in the index of 1583, see de Castro Hist. de los Protest. Esp. 444.

In 1550, En Leon, en casa de Sebastian Grypho, in four small volumes, translated from the Hebrew: Job. El psalterio. Los proverbios de Salomon. Both these: conforme à la verdad Hebraica. Syrach traduz. de Griego. No translator's prefaces. [All four in VIENNA. The Proverbs in STUTTG. Wiffen knew of other copies.] As for this psalter, Le Long says 364: interprete forsan Joanne Roffensi cui Index lihor. prohib. Castellanam Psalmorum versionem tribuit, and dC I, 462 (who has not seen the book), that the translator was Juan Roffense; the Antwerp Index of 1570 prohibits: Psalmos de Roffense, en Romance; the same in the Index 1583, see de Castro, Hist. de los Protest. Esp. 444.

The Psalterio of Raynerio Snoy Goudano. Valladolid 1548 [Knapp, in the article on the Ticknor library, p. 396]. Anvers 1555 [BERN. GOTH. VIENNA. WERNIGERODE. Wiffen's copy in Wadham coll., OXF.] gives only paraphrases from the Latin. Prohibited in the Antwerp Index 1570: Psalterio de Raynerio, en Romance; Index 1583, see de Castro, Hist. de los Protest. Esp. 444.

Wiffen thought Raynerio a reformer of the class of Dr. Constantino; the contents of his dedication to the bishop of Sigüenza seem to prove that he was less evangelical. (Cornelio Snio natural de Gouda: Psalms 1553, in dC I, 462 seems to be only corrupted from Raynerio Snoy 1555). — Compare also Hd V, 472 f.

In the year 5307 = 1547 a tetraglot Pentateuch was printed in Constantinople, containing a Spanish version in Hebrew types with the usual additional signs for the vowels. [I used the copy of the Jewish Institute in BRESLAU. The notice of an edition of 1552 comes from another computation of the Jewish numeral letters for the date, which the best authorities declare to mean 1547. Wlf IV, 181. An ed. of 1497 does not exist, Wlf III, Appendix].

In 1553 the Old Testament in Spanish was published in Ferrara in Latin types. In part of the copies the colophon has the year 1553, in another part it has the corresponding Jewish date 5313. [Compare on both: dC I, 400 f. Of each of the two classes there is a copy in STUTTG. and in VIENNA — here the copy with 5313 wants the title-leaf and the last leaf before Genesis; a copy of the edition with the Jewish date is in the Casanatense in ROME. I forgot to which class the copy in WERNIGERODE Ducal belongs]. The text of our specimen Psalm 1 and Isaiah 52—53 is in both varieties literally the same. W. I. Knapp wrote me that he had seen four variations of the Ferrara Bible 1553: „It seems to have been modified four times while passing through the same one edition.“ In the preface Al lector: haziendo seguir pero en todo lo posible la traslacion del Pagnino y su Thesauro de la lengua Sancta . . . no faltaron todas las traslaciones antiguas y modernas.

Le Long 365 f. reprinted the chapter Genesis 20 from the Pentateuch of Constantinople and from the Bible of Ferrara, in order to show that the Pentateuch in both is the same, paucissimis mutatis vocibus. Wolf, in the Appendix of vol. III, added the first six verses of Genesis in Hebrew letters and in Latin ones from the Pentateuch of 1547: the Ferrara edition, says he, illam ut plurimum sequitur. Stnsch. n. 122 on the Pentateuch of 1547: Vers. hisp. diversa ab ed. Ferrar.; he repeats this under n. 1322. As far as may be judged from a comparison of the song of Moses in Exodus 15, the Pentateuch in the Ferrara Bible, and still that in the Jewish Bible of Vienna 1813, are only revisions of the version published in 1547.

New editions and revisions of the Ferrara Bible by Jews. 5371 = 1611 Amstrd. [STUTTG. VIENNA. dC I, 472]. — S. l. e. a., sed Amstelodami ut videtur et circa a. Christi MDCXX. Ant., Vet. II, 160. It is probably the edition which on the title has neither place nor date, but in the colophon 5390 = 1630: [8] + 293 leaves. [STUTTG. VIENNA. Wlf IV, 17. PSalvá 3850.] — Amsterdam 5606, by error instead of 5406 = 1646, as Wlf thinks, II, 452. IV, 177. Ant., Vet., II, 360. In the colophon 5390 [STUTTG. Tickn. 33: (18), 605 pp.] — MMMMCDXVI Amstrd. Ant., Vet.¹ II, 260, Vet.² II, 360. Bartolucci, Biblioth. rabbin., IV. 1693, p. 213 registers likewise an ed. Amstrd. 5416 = 1656. Wlf IV, 177 does not think it a different one from that of 5406. — 5421 = 1661 Amstrd. [STUTTG. dC I, 481 f. Stnsch. n. 321. PSalvá 3851.] — 5423 = 1663 Amstrd. [Hd 208 f., misprint 1665]. — 5486 = 1726 Amstrd. [dC I, 516 f. Hd 208. PSalvá 3852]. — 5522 = 1762 Amstrd. [dC I, 517 f. PSalvá 3852]. — Old Testament with Judeo-Spanish in rabbinical characters, Wien 1813—1816, IV vls. [B—r]. — According to The Bible of Every Land 269, „An edition in Roman characters was likewise published about the same time, at Amsterdam. corresponding in almost every particular with the Vienna edition, of which it is considered a mere transcription."

Psalmi Hispanice, in 12. Ferrar. 5313 = 1553. Wlf II, 452. — The Psalms, Hebrew types, vocalized, Saloniki 1583. Const. 1730. Stnsch. n. 263. 893. 1324. — Psalterio de David. Trasladado verbo de verbo. Estampado en Amsterdam por el Haham Abraham Sury 5388 [= 1628. STUTTĜ.]. — Translad. verbo de verbo. Amstrd. 5410 = 1650. [dC I, 477 f. The first two verses, reprinted by dC, of Psalm 1 show the following differences from the Ferrara Bible of 1553: without los before pecadores. escarnecedores. meditará dia y n.]

Isaiah and Jeremiah ex ed. Ferrar., mutata dialecto. Salon. 1568. lit. rabb. punctatis. Stnsch. n. 209. 1323. Wlf IV, 137 f. transcribes Isaiah 1, 1—5 from this edition and from the Old Test. of 1646, and comes to the conclusion that the Saloniki text generally follows that of Ferrara, but that it has some voces obsoletiores where the Ferrara Bible has other, more Spanish, expressions.

I do not know the source of the notice in The Bible of Every Land 268 f., that Abraham Usque „two years“ after printing the Ferrara Bible of 1553, printed „an edition of the Pentateuch, Megilloth (Canticles, Ruth, Ecclesiastes, Lamentations, and Esther), and Hapthoroth, or sections of the Prophets.“ — Pentateuch 5387 = 1627 Amstrd. [Hd 233. Wlf IV, 181]. — 1630. 1646 [Fürst, Biblioth. Judaica. II. 1851, p. 354]. — 5415 = 1655 Amstrd. [Tickn. 34. Wlf IV, 181. dC I, 478. Hd 233]. — Pentateuch with Jewish Prayerbook, 5465 = 1705, Amstrd. apud Isaac. de Cordova. Wlf IV, 182. dC I, 493 says Pent. trad. por R. Is. de Cordova. — 5478 = 1718 Amstrd. in one of the catalogues of Rosenthal's Antiquariat in München.

An unknown Jew wrote a translation into Spanish of all words which are „a little difficult“ to the general Jewish reader of the Bible, of which he follows the order from chapter to chapter. Gedalya Corduero dedicated the work to R. Solomon de שירש and called it השך שלמה Cordisya de Salomo. It was printed in 1588 in Venice, and in the same town in 1617. Wlf IV, 177 f., dC I, 476 f. Stnsch. n. 1325. 1326. The glossary for Psalm 1 and Isaiah 52—53, which I have transcribed above, is taken from the second edition, of which I possess a copy (without title). Stnsch. l. cit.: Versionem ed. Ferrar. adhibuit.

Le Long 368 on the Desire of Solomon: Ex collatione hujus libri cum editione Ferrariensi patet non novam versionem concinnatam fuisse, sed ipsammet Ferrariensem paucis vocibus mutatis ad verbum expressam exhiberi, eadem excerpta fere omnia reperiuntur in margine Codicis Hebræi a Jona Kaleoni editi, 4°. Venetiis 1635. He means the Hebrew Bible with Spanish marginal translations of difficult words, Venice, Joannis Caleoni, 5395 = 1635, see his p. 68, where also a Bible of 5399 = 1639, Venice, Joannis Martinelli, with such marginals. Compare ib. p. 367. Stnsch. n. 1327: [ex Desiderio Salomonis] excerpta (lit. hebr.), ad marginem Bibl. hebr. A. 1633—5 N. 465; 1730 N. 889. Under n. 465: Biblia. Ven. 1633—5. c. Expos. voc. hisp. The Bible of 1639 mentioned by Le Long, is Jacob Lombroso's Hebrew text with Spanish glossems, Wlf I, 604 (Stnsch. n. 475).

The Song of Solomon 1664. 1683. 1701. 1712, all in Amstrd. Stnsch. n. 1322 A. Probably the Ferrara version revised.

Ruth. hisp. in edd. recentissimis Precum rit. hisp. in Pentecost., ut in ed. 1840. Stnsch. n. 1322 A. Probably the Ferrara version revised.

In the Jewish Livro de Thefillah con Ladino, Wien 1879 [B- τ], the portions from the scripture, to judge from Exod. 15, are taken from the edition Vienna 1813 f., with some variations.

Le Long 364: Triplex dumtaxat numeratur Castellana Novi Testamenti ex Græco facta conversio: Prior Francisci de Enzinas, altera Joannis Perez, ultima Cassiodori Reynæ[:] collatis inter se tribus harum exemplaribus, reperi eandem prope modum versionem, paucis tantummodo mutatis, vel alio ordine positis vocabulis; adeoque non triplex, sed eadem aliquantum demceps in posterioribus editionibus recognita censenda est translatio. And dC I, 500, speaking of the version, edited in 1708 by Sebastian de la Enzina: es identica con la Traduccion de Juan Perez; bien que . . . hay una ú otra variante de poquisima consideracion, como se ve por este cotejo: follow, p. 500 and 501, Mtth. 2, 1—3, Acts 1, 1. 2, Apoc. 1, 1. 2 from the N. T. of 1556 and of 1708. I think, judging from 1 Cor. 13, that Perez used Valdés and Enzinas, but I am not certain whether Reina, when translating the N. T. in Basle, had any Spanish translation at his disposition. (Bartolocci, Bblth. rbb. IV, 207, has under 1559: Biblia Hispanice, in 4. I think, by mistake for 1569, although he has under 1569 the Bible in 4. maj., and under 1622 the [title-]edition Fref. in 4.)

The editor of King Philip's polyglot Bible, B. Arias Montanus, the best orientalist of Spain' at that time, has left a Spanish translation from the Latin of the penitential psalm 50 (Misereere). Printed by dC I, p. 441 f. 666 f.; and, likewise from mss., in t. 5 of the Obras of Luis de Leon, Madrid 1806.

Luis de Leon († 1591) has translated Job, first ed. Mdrd 1779, the Song of Solomon, Salamanca 1798; Job in the Obras, Mdrd t. 1. 2. 1804, Cantares in t. 5. ib. 1806 (where also psalm 41: Como la cierva), both in Rivadeneyra's Bibliot. de aut. Esp. t. 37, = Escritores del s. XVI t. 2. Mdrd 1855.

In the Historia real y sagrada by Juan de Palafox y Mendoza 1643 [Tickn. 423]. 1655. 1661. [both in VIENNA] there are many passages from the Old Test., probably most of them retouched by the Spanish historian.

The psalms, Hebrew and Spanish by R. Jacob Juda Arich, Amsterdam 5431 = 1671 (dC I, 395. 483 f. Stnsch. n. 570. PSalvá 944). In the Prologue he rejects likewise the version hecha por un Gentil (que sin duda es la de Casiodoro de Reyna, as observes dC, from whom I take this extract) and the Ferrara Bible: aquella por fundarse en el sentido del concepto solamente, sin reparar al estilo del idioma; y esta por estribarse en la usual version de las palabras, y en el sentido ordinario de las letras conjuntivas, y serviles; sin reparar al sentido del concepto. His translation begins: Las bienaventuranzas son del varon que no anduvo en consejo de malos [dC. I, 486].

The Bible of both Testaments had not been printed in Spanish since 1602, and a Spanish New Testament not since 1708, when in 1790—93 the Bible appeared, translated into Spanish from Latin by Father Phelipe Scio de San Miguel, afterwards bishop of Segovia, the first Spanish Bible printed in Spain. 10 vls fol., Valencia. First appeared the N. T. in 1790 [STUTTG. Hd 207 f.]. 2ª ed. Madrid 1794—97. 19 vls. 8°. [Hd 207]. The N. T. Madrid 1797—99. 2 vls. is the Valencia ed. with some reprinted sheets [Hd 207]. Bible Madrid 1807—16. 15 vls [Hd 206]. According to The Bible of Every Land 263 the total number of copies comprised in these four editions (on which, however, some inaccurate statements are made there) amounted only to 6500. Biblia por Scio. Primera edicion megicana, sacada de la tercera y ultima de España. 20 vls. 8°. Mexico 1831—35. [ABS libr.]. It would seem that The Bible of Every Land is speaking of this edition when relating p. 263: „A new version of the entire Scriptures, prepared by about eight of the priests of Mexico, was printed in that country by Ribera, an enterprising publisher, in 1831—1833. This was the first Bible ever printed in Spanish America. The expenses of publication were defrayed by subscription: the work extends to 25 vols. in Spanish 4to., and a folio vol. of maps and plates: in addition to the Spanish, it comprises the Latin text, with prefaces to all the books, analyses, expositions, and dissertations. The translation was made from the French version of Vence, and from the Vulgate; but the sacred originals were also consulted, and the passages in which they differ from the Vulgate are carefully noted.“

In France: Bible. Saint-Germain-en-Laye 1847, imp. de Beau; Paris, lib. de Lecointe. 5 vls [Hd 205]. Again: Paris, lib. de Rosa y Bouret, eds. 5 vls [Hd 205 who mentions no year].

I was told that Cardinal Wiseman had supervised an edition of Scio's N. T., with a few annotations.

Editions of Scio's Bible by Protestants. The ABS reprinted Scio's N. T. New York 1819, from the edition Mdrd 1797. „In 1820, in consequence of the representations and example of the ABS, an edition of 5000 copies of Father Scio's N. T. was printed in London, followed, in 1821, by an edition of the entire Bible of this version.“ (The Bible of Every Land 264.)

The London edition of 1821 was printed by B. Bensley, who is named on both titles and at the end of the whole. At the end of the Old Test. two books of Maccabees, no other Apocrypha. [B—r.] Scio in Bagster's Polyglot Bible is mentioned by Townley in 1821 in his Biblical Illustrations. Lowndes I, 171: „Biblia sacra polyglotta, Gallice, Italice, Hispanice et Germanice. Lnd. 4to. Of this ed. no perfect copy exists; the whole were destroyed by fire in March 1822, at Mr. Bagster's, excepting 23 copies of the N. T.“ Another edition has the year 1823 on the titles, but at the end of the N. T.: 1824; on the reverse of the title of the N. T.: Impreso por Augusto Applegath; no place. It has Maccabees 1 and 2. [B—r.] But afterwards four new leaves were printed (p. 865—872, concluding the Old Test. with Malachi; also the general title was reprinted with addition of Londres to the year 1823, also the table, suppressing the Maccabees. [B—r.] 1824 on both titles and at the end, no place nor printer; no paging in the O. Test. after p. 432, no Maccab., last p. of Malachi 3 D 6 recto [VIENNA]. No Apocrypha in the following English editions of Scio's version. 1827, with the Latin, s.l., certainly by Bagster, with whose N. T. of 1825 the Spanish columns of this Bible are identical. [B—r.] Londres: impr. por Guillermo Clowes 1828 on the titles of the O. and of the N. T., the same place and printer at the end of the N. T. without year; the text is evidently taken from the same plates with the ed. of 1823/4 and 1824; the last leaves of the O. T. of 1824 and of 1828 agree with that ed. of 1823/4 which has Apocrypha, except the last page of Malachi. [VIENNA. B—r; with Francisco de Paula Ruet's autograph.] Scio's Spanish in Bagster's London Polyglot Bible 1828, folio; according to Lowndes l. cit.; I think, I saw Scio in Lee's Polyglot, Bagster 1831, and reprinted about 1868. Londres: Spottiswoode 1856. [B—r.]

The Bible printed in Spain: Barcelona. Imprenta de A. Bergnes. 1837 [B—r. Hd II, 490 registers only the N. T. of this edition.] Madrid: Alegria 1855 [B—r.] In The Bible of Every Land is related p. 265: „In 1857, an edition of the entire Bible, and one of the New Testament, printed by the British and Foreign Bible Society in the course of the preceding year, at Madrid, were completed and ready for circulation, when the authorities absolutely interdicted their dissemination amongst the people, and even the confiscation of the whole was threatened.“ No notice about the further development of the business.

Amat says in the Prologue of his N. T. 1823 p. V f.: en Barcelona solamente se acaban de imprimir diez mil ejemplares del N. T., por cuenta de una Sociedad Bíblica estrangera. Certainly Scio's N. T. Perhaps that edition which, according to VSalvá 1826, p. 203, appeared in 1820 in Barcelona. N. T., Scio's version (only the Spanish text), printed (5000 copies) in Madrid in the establishment of Mr. Borrego, proprietor and editor of an influential newspaper called El Español, by the care of Mr. Borrow, aided by Luis de Usóz i Rio. 1837. Octavo. (Borrow: The Bible in Spain 1843, new ed. London 1872, preface and ch. 19. As for the year 1837 see ch. 47, and compare ch. 18 and 36.) — Morante, Catalogus I. N. T. Bogotá: Echeverría hermanos. 1857. [B—r.] This edition was probably meant by Rvd Pratt when he wrote me, that the N. T. had been printed in Bogotá for the Agent of the BFBS.

Lucas y Hechos. Londres 1823. [Bullen 160. Menendez Pelayo III, 660.] Probably Scio.

Ev. Lucas in Aymará and Spanish, this one from Scio. Without notes. Londres imp. p. J. Moyes, Took's Court, Chancery Lane 1829 [VIENNA].

Los cuatro santos evangelios para colocar dentro de bolsitas. VSalvá 1831, p. 10. Probably Scio.

The pericopes and the Psalms from Scio in the Spanish translation of the English Common Prayer Book. Londres, Bagster. Together with the Greek 1821; this year on the Spanish title, on the Greek title 1820 [B—r]. Together with the Latin 1823 [B—r]. Together with the German 1823 [B—r].

El Sermón de J. C. en el Monte, explicado en preguntas y respuestas. Londres 1828 [Menendez Pelayo III, 660]. Probably Scio.

On the reverse of the title of the Liturgia Anglicana, edition of the SPCK, Londres: impreso por Ric. Clay 1839: Las porciones de la Escritura Santa estan tomadas de la edicion del Ilustrísimo Señor Don Felix Torres Amat, ultimamente corregida y revisada por la Sociedad para Promover el Conocimiento Cristiano. The revisor of Amat's N. T. for the SPCK was Lucena. The first edition of his revision appeared in 1837, the second London 1839 [as Lucena wrote me. I have got the ed. 1839]. Lucena revised the Liturgia of 1839 likewise [as he wrote me too].

In 1847, Usóz i Rio says at the end of the preface to his edition of Texeda's Carrascon p. LXXI: Acerca de las Traslaciones de la Escritura hechas en español, conocemos solo cinco: y no nos satisfacen tan del todo, que podamos recomendar una sola. And, after speaking of the original and of translations in English and Italian, he continues p. LXXII: A los que solo entiendan el castellano, aconsejaríamos, que si les fuese posible, leyesen la Escritura, confrontando continuamente, las tres traducciones, que nos parecen, para el caso, preferibles, y son: la conocida bajo el nombre de Biblia de los Judios de Ferrara: La de Cipriano D. de Valera: y la moderna y muy conocida del Sr. T. Amat. Esta última es muy comun: de las otras dos, dan suficiente noticia, Castro, y Pellicer, en sus respectivas Bibliotecas. A mas de esto, para el Testamento Nuevo, prefeririamos, la traduccion del Dr. Juan Perez, y la otra rarísima de J. Enzinas, ó Dryander: y ésta no por rara, sino por ser la mejor, pues Enzinas fué muy buen helenista, y escritor muy castizo.

The first edition of Amat's Bible revised for the same society seems to be that which has on both titles: version cotejada cuidadosamente con las antiguas traducciones, y revisada con arreglo al original griego. Londres: Gilbert y Rivington. 1853 [Bullen 64. twice. B—r]. Octavo. The Bible of Every Land p. 263 says that of Amat's version of the Scriptures „A corrected edition, prepared with the assistance, and printed under the care, of Señor Calderon, was published by the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, in 1853.“ Lowndes V, 2651 has: El N. T. Version cotejada revisada por J. Calderon. Lnd. 1852, 8vo. The N. T. will have been printed before the Old, and edited first; the N. T. in the Bible is probably taken from plates used for the edition of 1852. (Nogaret in his publication: Don Juan Calderon. Paris 1880. does not mention this revision of Amat. On Old. compare above n° 272). Another ed. of El N. T. de nuestro señor Jesucristo: Version cotejada . . . revisada . . Griego. Londres: Gilbert y Rivington, is without year and without the device of the SPCK [B—r. I got the copy from the Society, when I asked for their publications; it contains the Colecta which the Society uses to get pasted in the cover of their Holy Scriptures]; it seems to be from the same plates as the N. T. of the Bible of 1853 (see Mat. 1, 23 the u in tradu; at the end of the same page, however, the comma is wanting in the edition s. a.). The same is probably meant by the article of Hd 203: El N. T. de N. S. J.: version cotej. cuidad. c. l. ant. trad., y revis. c. arr. al. or. griego. Lndrs (1858), imp. Gilbert y Riswington [sic Hd]. De la soc. Bibl. de Lndrs. The Liturgia Anglicana London, imp. Gilbert y Ribington [sic] (1852) [Hd 222] possibly follows Calderon's revision of Amat.

La pasion [,] muerte y sepultura de N. S. Jesu-Cristo. Extractada de la traduccion de los Santos Evangelios, hecha por . . . Torres, de Amat . . . Eleven pages. At the end the verses Isa. 53, 4. 5 [taken from Scio]. S. l. e. a. Signed below: S. No. 251. [B—r.] Publication of some English Society. The extract is not made from the N. T. of 1839, nor from that of 1853, as may be seen John 19, 31. 35, where the extract has the additions of Amat's N. T. of 1823.

Los Salmos de David. (London, 1853) 8°. [Bullen 92.] Amat's or Valera's? „In 1853 Edward Dunigan & brother published in 12mo in New York Amat's N. T.“ E. W. Gilman, in a letter to me. On this notice Revd Pratt observed: „This N. T. must have been with notes, E. D.'s being a Roman catholic publishing house.“

Mateo. Version del padre Amat, obispo de Astorga, cuidadosam. cotejada con las demas versiones. Edicion estereotipica. Imprenta „del ramo de olivo.“ H. Matamoros. Without year. [B—r.] Registered in El ramo de olivo. H. Matamoros, octubre de 1882. p. 89. among books que acaban de imprimirse. The advertisement there characterizes the notas as relativas á las costumbres orientales para facilitar la comprension de las figuras y parábolas de Cristo, and subjoins: Pronto estará listo el de San Márcos. The Decálogo, on an open folio, I do not know of whose translation, is advertised in the same place.

As for the publications of the American Bible Society of New York, I make use principally of several notices sent me, about three years ago, by their Corresponding Secretaries, Mr. Edward W. Gilman and Mr. Alex. M'Lean, and of the extracts made for me, about the same time, by Mr. James L. Whitney of Boston Public library, from the catalogue of 1863 of the ABS's library and from O'Callaghan's list of editions of the Holy Scriptures and parts thereof printed in America previous to 1860, Albany 1861. From these communications, combined with the statements in Mr. Whitney's catal. of the Ticknor collection p. 33, I gather the following notices of editions printed at New York for the ABS. Scio's Bible was stereotyped in 8° in 1824, with Apocrypha. A new edition of those plates in 1826. Chiefly from the same plates, without Apocrypha, 1829. 1830. 1832. The N. T. from the Madrid edition of 1797. New York 1819. 12°. From the same plates 1822. Another edition 12°. 1823. Another one from the Madrid edition of 1797, stereotype 12°, 1831. Both from the plates of 1819? 1837. 32° stereotyped. In 1851 the Society stereotyped a „revised Scio, compared with Valera and the originals.“ New editions of the same: 1852. 1856.

La Biblia Sagrada. traducida en Español. Nueva-York, 1850. 12° [Bullen 64]. In all probability, Menendez means the same edition, saying (III, 661): En 1850 (Nueva-York) la Biblia, del P. Scio. Not for ABS?

A diglot of the N. T., containing the Spanish and the English, appeared in New York in 1850 [Lowndes V, 2651]. Second edition 1852 [Tickn. 35]. The edition of 1853. „12°“ [ABS's libr.] must be the third. I have got the editions of 1854 and 1868; on the back of the title, respectively: 4th Ed. and 5th Ed. Both called on the title: Bourgeois, 12mo (they have, however, layers of eight). In both: Edicion estereotipica. Ending on p. 671. as the second edition (the Boston cat. has: 16°, but in brackets: 8). Probably all from the plates of the first. The Spanish title says in ed. 4 and 5: Version cotejada cuidadosamente con las antiguas traducciones, y revisada con arreglo al original Griego por la sociedad Americana de la biblia. (The same probably in the 2^d, although Tickn. gives only Version revisada . . . Biblia.) Lowndes has l. cit. El N. T. with English. New York 1855. O'Callaghan registers a N. T. with the notice just quoted: Version cotejada cuid. c. l. a. tr. y rev. c. a. al o. G. p. la s. A. de la b. Nueva York 1856. Edicion estereotipica. Probably a separate edition of the Spanish text of that diglot. — The Spanish translator of the diglot N. T. 1854. 1868. shows independence and eclecticism. In 1 Cor. 13, reprinted above, he retains in v. 12 the Greek word enigma, translated by the other Spaniards; he takes from Reina v. 8 aunque las profecias se hayan de acabar, from Scio (= Enzinas, Perez) v. 5 se mueve a ira; he has like Ximenez 1804 v. 4 procede inconsideradamente. In all these instances he does not agree with the English Authorized version. From this he has taken v. 2 remover las montañas, A. V. remove mountains (which is more exact, because without article), and, I think, v. 5 indecorosamente, A. V. unseemly (both these translations are adopted by the Nuevo Pacto 1858). That he used Scio, seems to me evident from di de mano v. 11. An astonishing peculiarity of this Spanish edition are the numberless wrong accents, p. e. habló, 3^d person of present tense, 1 Cor. 14, 2. 3, at the side of habla v. 2. 4; edificá v. 3, at the side of profetiza; in the perfect hubé Apoc. 22, 8, dijo perhaps everywhere, vinó &c. It is still more amazing that such plates have been used again unaltered fourteen (probably even some more) years later, for a new edition.

I dare not conjecture as to the class or classes to which the following four articles belong. El Nuevo Test., traducido en español. Nueva York. 1854. 304 pp. Sm. 8°. Tickn. p. 35 with the note: „Published by the American Bible society.

First edition." — Ev. San Juan y Hechos. N. York 1855. 18°. N. T. N. York 1861. 18°. Los salmos. N. York 1862. 18°. [These three in the ABS's libr.]

The Bible of Every Land 265: „The Report of the ABS for 1856 makes mention, among their issues of the preceding year, of a Spanish N. T., recently translated in London, by a learned Spaniard, from the original Greek. The language of this version is described as pure and elegant.“

How difficult it is to ascertain the facts of the history of the ABS's editions of the Spanish Bible may be seen by the following extract from a letter written to me by my learned friend the Rerd. Mr. Pratt, who states that he has been „on close terms of relationship with the Society and its publications since 1856.“ „The ABS published in 1864 an expurgated edition of Amat's N. T. which for some cause does not bear their name. Other editions of the same were published as far back as 1855; for I took copies with me to Colombia early in 1856. My belief was that these bore the imprint of the Society; but the copy I have at hand (1864), gives no name.“ He means: „the copy of 1864 I have at hand;“ his letter is of 1880. He says in the same: „The ABS published an edition of Scio with the Apocrypha in 1824, which I have. And I imagine that is the last edition of Scio they published; though until they published Valera in 1865, I believe the Old Testament of all the Bibles they issued was Scio's, bound up with New Testaments which they changed continually. In 1854 the aforesaid expurgated edition of Amat was bound up with Scio's Old Testament. My copy of this was left in South America, and also of another published about the same time, Scio furnishing the Old Testament, but I never could learn who furnished the N. T. This N. T. was also published in parallel columns with the English translation, but in both editions the accents were as systematically false as if it were done on purpose to ruin it. Ignorance could never explain it: malice could do so very well. That, in my opinion, is the most readable version of the N. T. that Society ever published. In my many morings to and fro I have lost my copy both of the Bible and of the English and Spanish N. T. in which this version appears. Nor can I recall the precise date. But I took copies of it with me to South America in 1856, and preferred it to Scio and to Amat expurgated, because it corresponded so much more nearly with the English version. I often inquired, but never could learn who was the author, or how the accents were so falsely written and so uniformly so.“ This is the version of which I possess the diglot N. T. of 1854 and 1868, as I have said above. The Rerd. Mr. Pratt goes on to say: „The only edition of Scio ever published by the ABS which bears their name and his, is the one I have of 1824, so far as my acquaintance with their publications extends.“ (According to O'Callaghan, both names are still on the title of the edition 1832, which, however, was chiefly taken from the plates of 1824, see above.) „The Old Testament; as said, of all the Bibles published 1851—1864 I know to be Scio's, though they did not bear his name, while the N. T. which accompanied it was of two wholly different versions, one an expurgated Amat, the other, as before said, I could never learn who was the author of it, or how the accents were so wretchedly misplaced. In 1874 a noted champion of the Romish church in Bogotá publicly charged the Bible Societies with publishing and circulating falsified copies of the Scriptures under the name of Scio, printing his name on the title page. He referred particularly to thousands of discrepancies between the English and American editions. I was so convinced that it was a falsehood, that I deposited dollars 100 in the bank, and kept it there for 8 months to be paid him if he would prove his allegation." It remained unproved.

Thora. Constantinople 1872 [B—r]. To judge from Ex. 15, the Ferrara version revised. Psalms ib. 1873 [B—r]. Both Hebrew and Judeo-Spanish side by side, the Psalms paged in each text: 284—367. The Spanish text of Pentateuch and Psalms is taken from the composition of the Old Test., then under the press, and completed ib. 1873, only Spanish. [B—r.] Published for the ABS.

There is another edition of the Psalms in Judeo-Spanish of 215 pages in the Catalogue of sacred scriptures on sale at the Bible house Constantinople 1877, p. 11, n° 175. (The psalms of 1873 are those of n° 172 with 168 pgs.)

N. T. ib. 1877. Only Spanish. [B—r.] Published for the BFBS. From this N. T. the Gospel of St. Matthew has been edited separately.

This entire Spanish Bible of Constantinople is in rabb. character. Mr. Bliss, Agent of the ABS in Constantinople, mentioned the Revd. Mr. Christie as the translator, I am uncertain whether of both testaments printed in Constantinople, or only of one of them.

The gospel of St. Matthew, translated into the dialect of Curaçao by the Revd. Mr. Conradi, was printed in 1846 for the Netherland Bible Society. A specimen from it, ch. 5, v. 1—12 in The Bible of Every Land p. 270. The parable of the sower from St. Matthew in The Bonaparte Polyglot, London 1857 (mentioned, above p. 366) is probably taken from Conradi's translation.

Primera Parte De las Diferencias de libros que ay en el vniuerso, Declaradas por el Maestro Alexio Venegas. 1545. Aora nneuamente [sic] emendada y corregida por el mesmo Autor. Salamanca. 1572. Quarto Libro. Cap. XX. De la traslacion de la escriptura sagrada. . . . no es razon que la escriptura diuina sea tan comun en todas las lenguas: que por la mucha familiaridad sea menospreciada de la gente vulgar. De mas de las heregias que se leuantarian: si con ayuda de la lengua que cada vno entendiesse: presumiesse dar su sentencia y su inteligencia . . . Despues de la traslacion Latina vltimamente hecha, querer hazer otras traslaciones, seria derogar a la autoridad de la yglesia: que ha mil y ciento y cinquenta y siete años que tiene aprouada y recebida esta traslacion de sant Hieronymo. . . Saluo el mejor juyzio: los perlados auian de vedar en sus yglesias: que no se vendiessen ni se leyessen estas traslaciones modernas: que aunque algunos trasladadores ayán tenido buena intencion de aprouechar con su traslacion, han metido scisma de competencia en los animos de los simples . . . Que razon ay para que creamos que el original de donde traslado el nuevo traslado, es original verdadero: y el texto Latino que tiene recebido la yglesia tenga necesidad de ser corregido? Si vn texto se vudiesse de corregir por otro, el original Hebreo y Griego se auian de corregir por nuestro texto latino. Porque fue sacado de los originales mas correptos [sic] que auia en el mundo. Por donde nuestra Biblia latina ha de ser la medida de la hebrea y la griega. Porque nunca passo por manos de hereges, que la depravassen: como la hebrea y la griega . . . Por donde se cree, que de mano en mano se ha conseruado la synceridad del texto latino, y por consiguiente ha de ser el metro y mensura del hebreo y el griego, los quales por auer passado por manos de hombres maliciosos y scismaticos, se tienen por sospechosos: si no entreuiniesse la autoridad de la yglesia, que señaladamente aprouasse tal o tal texto: assi como aprouo el texto latino, del qual vsamos aora.

As for the translation of Hieronymus, he says: el Papa Damaso (como lo trae Bartholomeo Platina) la aprouo. Damasus died in 384, Hieronymus went to Rome in 382. Venegas seems to have taken this year as that of the approval by the Pope of that Latin Bible; those 1157 years would reach to 1539, the year in which Venegas sent his Diferencias to his patrons, as appears from several letters, printed with the book. At that time he belonged to the theological Faculty of Toledo, and the Dean and other authorities approved of his work. A Cardinal writes to him: alcançays bien lo que Horacio quiere: diciendo. Omne tulit punctum, qui miscuit utile dulci.

Certainly Venegas had read the prologue of the Complutensian Polyglot where is said: Between the Hebrew and the Greek of the Old Testament latinam beati Hieronymi translationem velut inter Synagogam et Orientalem Ecclesiam posuimus: tanquam duos hinc et inde latrones medium autem Iesum hoc est Romanam sive latinam Ecclesiam collocantes.
